

Letters

from readers

6-5-81
Minn.

Blame DFLers

Sen. Moe was on TV recently berating Gov. Quie, blaming him for the special session, making it sound as though he had the answers. Who got us in the mess our state is in? Who spent all the money? Who didn't have the foresight to see that tougher times were coming, with less revenue? He and the other DFL legislators, no one else.

If he didn't want a special session, why didn't he bring the tax bill to the Senate floor before 9 p.m. on the last day — he had it by early afternoon? I think the intent was to force a special session.

His accusations are as false as when he attacked me on the Senate floor last year, accusing me of spending tens of thousands of dollars to defeat my opponent in the special election. He knew that wasn't the truth, either. — Ben Omann, St. Joseph, Minn.