former members of this body, and

Whereas, the high character, the devotion to public service, and the nobility of purpose of these people merit an expression of respect and veneration for their memory,

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, that the House of Representatives, in session assembled this 19th day of April, 1973, do express to the families of these deceased its heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement and its pledge to carry forward the tasks which they so ably advanced.

"They rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

Connors, Tomlinson, and Erickson moved that House Resolution No. 30 be now adopted.

The question was taken on the adoption of House Resolution No. 30, and House Resolution No. 30 was unanimously adopted.

The Speaker welcomed the relatives and friends of the deceased former members.

The University of Minnesota Band Trombone Quartet played the "Minnesota Hymn."

Connors, for the Memorial Services Committee, in honor of the deceased former members eulogized "The Great Lawmaker."

THE GREAT LAWMAKER

He was a young man who was born in a town in the southern part of the state, the child of a poor woman. He grew up ninety miles north of his birthplace. He worked in a carpenter shop until he was thirty, and then for three years he became a servant to the needs of the people. He never had a family. He never traveled two hundred miles from the place he was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He had no credentials but himself.

While he was still a young man, the tide of public opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. He was turned over to his enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed to a cross between two thieves. While he was dying his executioners gambled for the only piece of property he had on earth, and that was his cloak. When he was dead, he was laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend. Later his friends rejoiced in seeing the grave empty.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone, and today he stands out as the central figure of the human race. All the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that were ever launched, and all the legislatures that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man upon this earth as has that One Solitary Life. He is truly the Great Representative, the Legislator of all Legislators, the Creator of the Common Law.

Today we remember our brothers who, we pray, are now with Him. Let us imitate Him and the good deeds and the Laws of these Legislators who, having gone before us called for His mercy. Let us call upon Him for mercy, that when this committee do arise, we too "will be recommended to pass."
