It's a fact!

There have been 66 female legislators since 1922, when women were first allowed to run for office. Of that number, well over half have been elected since 1977.

But one of the first female legislators, Mabeth Hurd Paige, still holds the title for the longest tenure as a female legislator. Rebuffed by the Republican Party in 1922, she ran as an independent and went on to serve Hennepin County for 10 terms in the Minnesota House.

She chaired the Welfare Committee and helped pass a law that outlawed street selling by minors.

But Paige may soon have to share her title. When Rep. Phyllis Kahn (DFL-Mpls) completes this legislative term, she will tie Paige's record.

Committee deadlines

If you're tracking important legislation and it has yet to have had a hearing, you might have to wait until next year before the measure is considered.

The first committee deadline is April 12, which is less than two weeks away. If a bill hasn't been approved by then in one House or Senate policy committee, chances are it won't be considered this session.

Here's how the deadline system works: The first deadline (April 12) bars bills from being heard unless they have been approved in one policy committee in either the House or Senate.

The second deadline, which this year is

April 24, prevents bills from being heard in one body unless it has been approved by a policy committee in the other.

Because there are literally thousands of bills introduced each year, the deadlines help the Legislature focus on just a few of the proposals before them.

There are always exceptions to the rules, however. The authors of bills that have missed a deadline can plead their case with the Rules and Legislative Administration Committee to get a reprieve.

These deadlines generally don't apply to tax and appropriations bills, which aren't fashioned until late in the session.
