“TOXIC EMISSIONS AND DEPOSITION

Section 1. [116.451] [LEGISLATIVE INTENT.]

The legislature recognizes that a natural process called the “hydrological cycle of water” that involves precipitation, evaporation, evapotranspiration, snow accumulation and runoff, and that purifies the water that recharges the rivers, lakes, and groundwater aquifers, is often prevented from purifying the water by continuing releases and discharges of toxic substances.

The legislature further recognizes that toxic release/discharge, ambient concentration, and deposition substantially resulting from the conduct of commercial, institutional, industrial and governmental operations, both within and without the state, pose a present and severe danger to the delicate integrity of the ecosystem within the state and threaten human health and welfare, and the failure to mitigate sources of toxic release/discharge into the air and deposition upon the waters, vegetation, and soils will soon result in untold and irreparable damage to the agricultural, water, forest, fish, and wildlife resources of the state. It is therefore the intent of the legislature in enacting sections 1 to 8 to protect the natural processes of atmospheric water purification by ensuring the hydrological cycle of water and the integrity of the ecosystem, and to support and encourage other states, the federal government, and the province of Ontario in doing likewise.

Sec. 2. [116.452] [DEFINITIONS.]

Subdivision 1. [SCOPE.] As used in sections 1 to 8, the terms defined in this section have the meanings given them.

Subd. 2. [AGENCY.] “Agency” means the pollution control agency.

Subd. 3. [INTEGRITY OF THE ECOSYSTEM.] “Integrity of the ecosystem” means the maintenance of mutually beneficial species of plants and animals and of other natural characteristics in order that the biological viability of the ecosystem is assured.

Sec. 3. [116.453] [LIST OF TOXIC AIR POLLUTANTS.]

By January 1, 1993, the agency must develop and establish by rule a list of toxic air pollutants. The list shall include toxic substances listed in the Minnesota toxic release inventory reported as required by the federal SARA law, United States Code, title 42, section 313; toxic substances listed as hazardous air pollutants in title III of the federal Clean Air Act, Public Law Number 101-549, as amended in 1990; and any other toxic substances that, based on reasonable medical or scientific theory, have the following characteristics:

(1) acute or chronic toxicity that could materially impair the health or development of humans, animals, plants, or aquatic organisms;

(2) genetic, reproductive, neurological, or developmental toxicity to humans or other animals either directly or indirectly through substantial alteration of ecosystems;

(3) bioaccumulation, biomagnification, biotransformation, or other effects in the food chain that directly or indirectly impair humans, aquatic organisms, or other animals; or

(4) effects that otherwise pose a significant threat to the integrity of aquatic or terrestrial ecosystems.

Sec. 4. [116.454] [MONITORING PROGRAM.]

By January 1, 1992, the agency must establish a statewide monitoring program for toxic release/discharge, ambient concentration, and deposition of toxic substances from the air. The monitoring program shall include the measurement of toxic substances accumulating in animals, water, fish, and sediments of lakes.

Sec. 5. [116.455] [EMISSION AND PROBABLE SOURCE INVENTORY.]

By January 1, 1993, the agency must establish an inventory of the emission sources of pollutants contained on the list of toxic air pollutants required in section 3. If, in the future, new substances are added to the list, the agency shall establish an emission sources inventory for the newly listed substances within one year after the new listing.

Sec. 6. [116.456] [EMISSION REDUCTION REQUIREMENTS.]

By January 1, 1993, the agency must establish rules governing the release or emission of toxic air pollutants that will ensure a 50 percent reduction, based on 1987 levels, in statewide emissions of toxic air pollutants by 1998. The rules must consider:

(1) acute or chronic effects that materially impair the health or development of humans, plants, aquatic organisms, or plants;

(2) genetic, reproductive, neurological, or developmental effects on humans or other animals either directly or indirectly through substantial alteration of the ecosystems;

(3) bioaccumulation, biomagnification, biotransformation, or other effects in the food chain that directly or indirectly impair humans, aquatic organisms, or other animals; or

(4) effects that otherwise pose a significant threat to the integrity of aquatic or terrestrial ecosystems.

In setting limits for specific pollutants, the agency shall use United States Environmental Protection Agency risk assessment methods and United States Environmental Protection Agency derived reference doses, unit risk factors, and potency slopes, whenever possible. If United States Environmental Protection Agency derived values are not available, the agency must develop a scientifically defensible method for deriving pollutant specific limits that will protect public health and the environment.

In establishing the emission reduction requirements, the agency must require pollution prevention over pollution control in situations where either pollution prevention or pollution control are able to achieve the emission reduction goals.

Sec. 7. [116.457] [MERCURY EMISSIONS REDUCTIONS.]

Subdivision 1. [TOYS OR GAMES.] Beginning July 1, 1991, a person may not sell in this state a toy or game that contains mercury or a toy or game that includes a battery that contains mercury and that is not removable.

Subd. 3. [ELECTRONIC DEVICES AND APPLIANCES.] Beginning January 1, 1992, the mercury in thermostats, thermometers, electronic switches, and appliances being removed from service must be recycled or otherwise managed to ensure that the mercury is not placed in a solid waste composting, resource recovery, or disposal facility or a wastewater disposal system.

Beginning January 1, 1992, a person may not sell a thermostat, thermometer, electronic switch, or appliance that contains mercury unless the device or appliance is clearly labeled to inform the purchaser or consumer that:

(1) mercury is present in the device or appliance;

(2) it is illegal to put the device or appliance with the mercury in it in the garbage; and

(3) the mercury must be recycled or otherwise managed to ensure that it is not placed in a solid waste composting, resource recovery, or disposal facility or a wastewater disposal system.

A person who is in the business of installing or repairing thermostats, thermometers, electronic switches, or appliances containing mercury shall take custody of devices or appliances containing mercury that are no longer in use and shall remove the mercury for or shall otherwise manage the devices or appliances to ensure that the mercury is not placed in the solid waste stream or a wastewater disposal system.

Subd. 4. [VAPOR LAMPS; LIGHTING FIXTURES AND HARDWARE.] Beginning January 1, 1992, the mercury in a vapor lamp or lighting fixture or hardware that is being removed from service must be recycled or otherwise managed to ensure that the mercury is not placed in a solid waste composting, resource recovery, or disposal facility or a wastewater disposal system.

A person who installs or repairs lamps or lighting fixtures, or hardware shall take custody of lamps, fixtures, or hardware containing mercury that are no longer in use and shall remove the mercury for recycling or shall otherwise manage the lamps, fixtures, or hardware to ensure that the mercury is not placed in the solid waste stream or a wastewater disposal system.

Subd. 6. [MEDICAL AND SCIENTIFIC INSTRUMENTS.] Beginning January 1, 1992, the mercury contained in medical and scientific instruments that are discarded must be recycled or otherwise managed to ensure that the mercury is not placed in a solid waste composting, resource recovery, or disposal facility or a wastewater disposal system.

Subd. 7. [COMBUSTION SOURCES.] By July 1, 1992, petroleum refiners and electric utilities must test for emissions of mercury and must report emissions to the agency.

Sec. 8. [116.458] [REPORTS TO THE LEGISLATURE.]

By January 1, 1992, the commissioner shall submit to the legislative commission on waste management an inventory of products that contain mercury and recommend legislation to prohibit or otherwise restrict those products where appropriate.

Beginning January 1, 1993, the agency must submit reports to the legislature every two years regarding the progress toward meeting the goals of sections 1 to 7, including progress in finding alternatives to mercury for use in thermostats, electronic devices, appliances, vapor lamps, and lighting fixtures and hardware. The report may include recommendations to the legislative committees on the environment and natural resources for further mercury emission reductions and management.
