 29.29 next loan repayment disbursement is made. Participants remain
 29.30 eligible for loan repayment as long as they practice as required
 29.31 under subdivision 3.

Credit Card Debt Among College Students is a Public Health Issue that Requires Public Health Approaches

Edward P. Ehlinger, MD, MSPH
Director and Chief Health Officer
Boynton Health Service, University of Minnesota

Credit Card Debt is a Public Health Issue – affects a population

- 54% of freshmen have credit cards – 92% of sophomores have credit cards – 47% of students have 3 or more cards (nationally)
- Credit card debt increases as years in school increases – 20% of 4th year students have $1,000 to $3,000 in debt, 5% have over $3,000 in credit card debt (U of MN)
- 20% of 4th year students and 25% of 5th year students state they have excessive Credit Card debt.
- Average credit card balance for a US college student was $1,843 in 2001, $2,327 in 2002
- Of those students with credit cards, 21% had balances between $3,000 and $7,000.
 - Of 18-24 year old U of MN student with credit cards, 13% had a balance greater than $1,000 and 7.7% had a balance greater than $3,000

Impact:

- Linked to academic achievement
- Affects long-term educational and employment options
- Associated with health risk behaviors
- Increases stress in students' lives and confounds other mental health issues
- Long and short-term implications for physical and emotional health

Credit Card debt is linked with

- Lower GPA
- Increased hours worked
- High risk alcohol use
- Tobacco use

Implications of high debt

- Makes graduation in 4 years difficult because they need to work
- Increases isolation
- Students forgo educational experiences (internships/preceptorships) because they need to work for more money.
- Access to professional schools and graduate schools is reduced
- Interferes with dealing with other mental health issues

Why does this happen?

- Students choose a high expense lifestyle
 - Automobile, cell phone, private apartment, private room, spring break trip, restaurants, alcohol
 - Need to work more to pay the bills
 - Sleep and grades affected
- Many students don't make the connection between lifestyle and debt.
- Many students don't understand that they have control over time and expenses.
- They don't understand the long-term consequences of high credit card debt.
- Credit cards allow spending without thinking.
- They are targeted by credit card companies' marketing

University of Minnesota Policies Related to Credit Cards

- Does not allow payment of tuition by credit card
- No "tabling" on campus or in the Student Unions
 - "Tabling" is allowed in athletic venues
- Mailing with credit card information goes to season ticket holders
- No promotional materials in Bookstore bags
- Alumni Association Affinity Card is not marketed to students

Boynton Health Service Activities

- Educate all students and parents about how to make healthy choices
 - Including financial choices with other choices
- Assessing students for financial stresses
- Mental Health Counseling
- Financial Counseling
- Advocating for discussions about how best to use credit cards and how to educate students about their use.

Slow the acquisition of credit cards until education and experience catches up with marketing.

MN State Grant Tuition Maximums Overview

Conference Committee on the Higher Education Omnibus Bill

May 12, 2005

Legislative History of State Grant Tuition and Fee Maximums

- 1983 and 1984 – Initially established in law.
- 1985 to 1991 – Linked caps to ‘ cost of instruction at comparable public institution’.
 - In practice this was the average between the Morris and Duluth campuses of University of Minnesota.

History of Tuition and Fee Maximums- Continued

- Early 1990's –Mixed signals
 - Some reductions were proposed but never implemented (See 1993 Task Force Report).
 - Increases to keep pace with inflation were proposed.
- 1995- Deliberately removed direct link with public institution instructional costs.
