1950 CENSUS OF POPULATIONADVANCE REPORTS

FOR RELEASE

September 4, 1951

Washington 25, D. C.

Series PC-8, No. 22

POPULATION OF MINNESOTA: APRIL 1, 1950

(This is one of a series of reports presenting final population figures for selected areas in each State. In this series, reports are numbered alphabetically by States. Additional reports will be issued as final figures for other States become available)

The total population of Minnesota on April 1, 1950, was 2,982,483, according to final figures for the State released today by Roy V. Peel, Director, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. During the previous 10 years, the population of the State increased by 190,188, or 6.8 percent, over the 2,792,300 persons enumerated in 1940. Among the States, Minnesota ranked eighteenth in population. The 1950 population of Minnesota was about 17 times as large as the population in 1860, the first year in which Minnesota was enumerated as a State in a Federal census.

According to the new urban definition Minnesota had 1,624,914 persons living in urban territory and 1,357,569 in rural territory. The urban population accounted for 54.5 percent of the population of the State.

Between 1940 and 1950, 38 of the 87 counties in Minnesota increased in population, 48 lost population, and 1 had no change in population. More than four-fifths of the increase for the State was accounted for by Hennepin and Ramsey, the most populous counties in the State, which had gains of 107,680 and 45,397, respectively. The counties in Minnesota ranged in size from Cook with a population of 2,900 to Hennepin with a population of 676,579.

In 1950 there were 782 incorporated places (cities, villages, and one borough) in Minnesota. There were 2,017,720 persons living in the incorporated places, 410,274 of whom were in the 691 places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Valley Acres, the one unincorporated place of 1,000 inhabitants or more delineated by the Bureau of the Census in Minnesota, had a population of 1,727. The incorporated places ranged in size from Island View village with a population of 18 to Minneapolis city with a population of 521,713.

Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Minnesota consisted of the 1,607,446 persons in the 91 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and the 17,468 persons living outside incorporated urban places in the urban-fringe areas of Minneapolis-St. Paul and Duluth. Since there were no places urban under special rule in Minnesota according to the old definition, the population of the first element constituted the urban population under the old definition. The population of the remaining element--17,468--represents the gain in the urban population of Minnesota which resulted from the change in definition.

FOR RELEASE

September 4, 1951

Washington 25, D. C.

Series PC-8, No. 22

POPULATION OF MINNESOTA: APRIL 1, 1950

(This is one of a series of reports presenting final population figures for selected areas in each State. In this series, reports are numbered alphabetically by States. Additional reports will be issued as final figures for other States become available)

The total population of Minnesota on April 1, 1950, was 2,982,483, according to final figures for the State released today by Roy V. Peel, Director, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. During the previous 10 years, the population of the State increased by 190,183, or 6.8 percent, over the 2,792,300 persons enumerated in 1940. Among the States, Minnesota ranked eighteenth in population. The 1950 population of Minnesota was about 17 times as large as the population in 1860, the first year in which Minnesota was enumerated as a State in a Federal census.

According to the new urban definition Minnesota had 1,624,914 persons living in urban territory and 1,357,569 in rural territory. The urban population accounted for 54.5 percent of the population of the State.

Between 1940 and 1950, 38 of the 87 counties in Minnesota increased in population, 48 lost population, and 1 had no change in population. More than four-fifths of the increase for the State was accounted for by Hennepin and Ramsey, the most populous counties in the State, which had gains of 107,680 and 45,897, respectively. The counties in Minnesota ranged in size from Cook with a population of 2,900 to Hennepin with a population of 676,579.

In 1950 there were 782 incorporated places (cities, villages, and one borough) in Minnesota. There were 2,017,720 persons living in the incorporated places, 410,274 of whom were in the 691 places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Valley Acres, the one unincorporated place of 1,000 inhabitants or more delineated by the Bureau of the Census in Minnesota, had a population of 1,727. The incorporated places ranged in size from Island View village with a population of 18 to Minneapolis city with a population of 521,713.

Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Minnesota consisted of the 1,607,446 persons in the 91 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and the 17,468 persons living outside incorporated urban places in the urban-fringe areas of Minneapolis-St. Paul and Duluth. Since there were no places urban under special rule in Minnesota according to the old definition, the population of the first element constituted the urban population under the old definition. The population of the remaining element--17,468--represents the gain in the urban population of Minnesota which resulted from the change in definition.
