LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

Legislation for 1957

WHEREAS, radio and television have made and are making significant and substantial contributions to the economic growth of agriculture, a natural factor in this country's economical standard of living, and have earned their rightful place in the farm home as a primary source of information and entertainment;

WHEREAS, broadcasting stations and networks not only give the agricultural community first-hand coverage of the vital issues of the day, but also serve the needs of the farmer with special programming covering important farm news, market reports, and up-to-the-minute weather information; and

WHEREAS, the broadcast system of radio and television broadcasting has brought within reach of every farm family as never before news and information that is timely, useful, and gives them from all points of the agricultural world;

BEFORE ME, JAMES L. HANCOCK, Secretary of the State of Minnesota, on January 2, 1957, at the City of St. Paul, Minnesota.

STATE OF MINNESOTA and upon all witnesses to give recognition to the achievements of radio and television stations and to the broadcast industry serving the agricultural community.

I, JAMES L. HANCOCK, Secretary of the State of Minnesota, do hereby certify that on this twenty-third day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifty-seven, and of the state, the ninety-ninth.
