MEMORANDUM

The court is convinced by very clear and satisfactory evidence in this case: that the original canvass of the votes cast for the office of governor was inaccurate; that because of inaccuracies the statement and certificate of the state canvassing board made on November 29, 1962, was likewise inaccurate; that the recount of the votes cast for the office of governor conducted during this election contest by inspectors as provided by statute and as corrected and established herein is substantially more accurate than was the original canvass; and that Rolvaag received a plurality of the valid votes cast for the office of governor.

There was abundant and conclusive evidence that numerous mistakes and inaccuracies existed in the original canvass of the votes.

The recount was duly and properly conducted in accordance with law. The court appointed inspectors selected by the parties. The inspectors duly performed their duties in accordance with instructions and directions given to them by the court pursuant to stipulations of the parties. The inspectors carefully and conscientiously recanvassed the ballots; as required by M.S. Section 209.06 they inspected and counted the ballots in the offices and presence of the legal custodians thereof and have made written reports to this court of the recanvass, reporting the number of votes cast for Andersen and Rolvaag and any disputed ballots upon which they could not agree. Each of the parties fully participated at every stage of the entire proceedings and each fully protected his rights. It appeared to the satisfaction of the court that the ballots were preserved intact, were genuine and were securely kept without tampering. To the great credit of the parties, their attorneys and assistants, and the inspectors and referees selected by the parties, the recanvass was as accurate and reliable as any statewide recanvass could possibly be.
