

Proclamation

REAS: Transportation provides the nation's lifeline for commerce, defense and personal travel. The system that crisscrosses the nation is made up of a vast and intricate network of highways, skyways, railways, rivers and roads. It is people that make this system work; and

REAS: From the earliest seafaring days in America to space exploration in this half of the 20th Century, women have participated in the adventure of developing this country, through transportation. Women have contributed their energy and spirit to building a transportation system in the United States that is unparalleled throughout the world; and REAS: Today, women hold many key positions in the development of transportation technologies, and serve as leaders in meeting the transportation challenges of the present and the future. In tribute to their services and in honor of the millions of women who build, operate and safeguard our country's vital network;

THEREFORE, I, Rudy Perpich, Governor of the State of Minnesota, do hereby proclaim Thursday, May 17, 1984, to be
