

Proclamation

WHEREAS: In 1952, Congress, with the National Day of Prayer Committee, instituted the annual observance of National Prayer Day in the United States; and

WHEREAS: Interest in such a project was no doubt inspired by a proclamation written in 1863 by Abraham Lincoln, which declared April 30th a national day of humiliation, fasting and prayer; and

WHEREAS: For over thirty years now, concerned citizens and civic leaders have organized a day in spring when Americans are asked to bow their heads in humility and thanksgiving; and

WHEREAS: This year, all over the country, activity will grind to a halt at noon on May 3rd, when citizens will "Take 5 at 12", that is, for five minutes at the beginning of the noon hour, people from all walks of life will pause in prayer for their nation and their fellow man; and

WHEREAS: National Prayer Day officials hope that this five minute break from the day's schedule will have a revitalizing and spiritually awakening impact on our people and our nation;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Rudy Perpich, Governor of the State of Minnesota, do hereby proclaim Thursday, May 2, 1985, to be
