

Proclamation

WHEREAS: The Society for Information Management is deeply involved in the further development of the art of information management; and

WHEREAS: Knowledge of information management will affect the long and short term objectives of all Minnesota business and government as we gain recognition as the "Brainpower" state; and

WHEREAS: Increased expertise in information management significantly contributes to the economics, efficiencies and operating goals for Minnesota business and government through expanded capabilities; and

WHEREAS: The challenge for information management executives is to make the right decisions on key issues facing government and business leaders, today, tomorrow and beyond; and

WHEREAS: For twenty years the Society for Information Management has provided business leaders, executive-level practitioners, influential researchers and national figures to confront traditional thinking patterns and suggest creative solutions to pressing challenges in business climates, technology, leadership and management;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Rudy Perpich, Governor of the State of Minnesota, do hereby proclaim the third week of October to be in Minnesota.

INFORMATION MANAGEMENT EXECUTIVE APPRECIATION WEEK
