NUMBER OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The Territory of Minnesota was organized in 1849 from unorganized area formerly within the Territories of Iowa and Wisconsin. It included an area now comprising the State of Minnesota and parts of North and South Dakota. In 1858 that portion of the Territory lying within the present boundaries of Minnesota was admitted to the Union as the thirty-second State. Its population on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 2,792,300, which represents an increase of 228,347, or 8.9 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 80,009 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 34.9, as compared with 32.0 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Minnesota from 1850, the year in which the Territory of Minnesota was first separately enumerated, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Minnesota consists of those persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, the remainder of the population being classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit. For example, Nashwauk qualified as urban in 1930 but not in 1920 or 1940.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF MINNESOTA: 1850 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Minnesota is shown by counties, townships, cities, villages, and boroughs, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards. Data for the Duluth-Superior and Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan districts are presented in tables 7 and 7-A, and for the census tracts of the tracted cities and adjacent areas in tables 8, 8-A, and 8-B.

Incorporated places of 10,000 or more.—There are 15 incorporated places in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows the population of these incorporated places at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Minneapolis, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 492,370; and St. Paul, the capital of the State, had a population of 287,736.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 87 counties of Minnesota from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. Of the 85 counties whose boundaries remained unchanged since 1930, 81 increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and 4 decreased. Part of Lac qui Parle County was annexed to Big Stone County in 1938. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which the counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties in Minnesota are the townships, some of the cities and villages, and 1 borough (Belle Plaine). There are 96 cities, 648 villages, and 1 borough, of which 579 villages, the 1 borough, and all but 1 of the cities (Wabasha) are independent of township organization and form primary divisions of the counties. The remaining incorporated places, each of which is a part of one or more townships, form secondary subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, villages, and boroughs for the last three censuses. The population of the one city and the villages that constitute secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the townships in which the places are respectively located. Where an incorporated place is located in two or more townships in the same county, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township. Where the place is located in townships in two or more counties, the total population is given in connection with each county.

Where an independent city or village is located partly in one county and partly in another, the part in a given county is presented in the regular way as a primary division of that county, but, to make the presentation complete, the population is also shown, in italics, for the part outside that county and for the city or village as a whole. Italics are also used for the figures representing the population at censuses prior to 1940 of places that have recently been made primary divisions, to indicate that the figures, having already been counted, are not to be added in with the townships and other independent areas to make the county total.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1920 TO 1940

[A blank in the column for any year indicates that no population was returned. Areas in which no population has been reported at any of the last three censuses are not shown. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1930 and 1940, see footnotes; for those between 1920 and 1930, see Reports of the Fifteenth Census (1930), vol. 1, pp. 647-670]

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests.

Table 7 shows the population of the Duluth-Superior metropolitan district (called the Duluth metropolitan district in 1930) and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade. Like several others, this district occupies territory in more than one State. In 1940 the Duluth-Superior metropolitan district had 157,098 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district had a population of 155,390. The metropolitan district in 1940 had exactly the same area as in 1930.

NUMBER OF INHABITANTS

Census tracts.—Census tracts are small areas into which certain large cities (and sometimes their adjacent areas) have been subdivided for statistical and local administrative purposes, through cooperation with a local committee in each case. The tracts are permanently established, so that comparisons may be made from census to census; they are laid out with a view to approximate uniformity in population and with some regard for uniformity in area; and each is designed to include an area fairly homogeneous in population characteristics.

In table 8 the 1940 population of the city of Duluth is shown by census tracts. In tables 8-A and 8-B, the 1940 population of the cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, respectively, together with certain adjacent areas is shown by census tracts. These tracted areas are shown on the accompanying maps. Since the tracts were not established until after 1930, there are no comparative figures for earlier censuses.

MINNESOTA: Final Population

Sixteenth Census of the United States: 1940

POPULATION OF THE STATE OF MINNESOTA - FINAL FIGURES: 1940

Between 1930 and 1940 Minnesota's urban places continued to grow faster than the rural areas, according to the final figures from the Sixteenth Decennial Census, issued today by Director William Lane Austin, of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. In this period, however, the urban areas grew more slowly than at any time since 1850, whereas the rural areas reversed their decline of the previous decade by showing an increase.

The final count of the Sixteenth Census showed that on April 1, 1940, Minnesota had a population of 2,792,300, an increase of 228,347 over the 2,563,953 residents reported in the 1930 Census. This change represents an increase of 8.9 percent as compared with 7.4 percent between 1920 and 1930. The population increase in urban areas from 1930 to 1940 was 10.5 percent as compared with 7.3 percent in the rural sections. Urban residents accounted for 49.8 percent of the State's population in 1940 as compared with 49.0 percent in 1930. In 1940, residents of urban areas numbered 1,390,093, while the rural population amounted to 1,402,207. The Census Bureau considers as urban areas the incorporated places of 2,500 or more. The remaining territory is classified as rural.

There were 15 cities of 10,000 or more in Minnesota, one (Fergus Falls) having reached this size since 1930. All but one of these cities increased between 1930 and 1940, Austin having had the most rapid growth (49.1 percent).

Eighty-three of the 87 counties gained population between 1930 and 1940. Lake of the Woods County, with an increase of 48.5 percent, had the most extensive growth.

The Census of 1850 was the first in which the Territory of Minnesota was separately enumerated, returning a population of 6,077. (This census covered an area larger than the present State.) Minnesota was admitted as a State in 1858, with boundaries as at present. In 1860 the State had 172,023 inhabitants. The population has shown an increase at every census since that time, passing 500,000 between 1870 and 1880, 1,000,000 between 1880 and 1890, 1,500,000 between 1890 and 1900, 2,000,000 between 1900 and 1910, and 2,500,000 between 1920 and 1930. The present population represents a density of 34.9 inhabitants per square mile. Minnesota's total land area is 60,009 square miles.

Table 1 presents the figures for counties and for cities of 10,000 or more and Table 2 for incorporated places of less than 10,000. Table 3 shows the population of Minneapolis and St. Paul by wards. Duluth, the only other city of 100,000 or more, was not reported by wards.

This announcement completes the list of States, since similar final announcements of the distribution of population in all other States have already been released.

POPULATION OF THE COUNTIES IN MINNESOTA BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1940

Director William Lane Austin, of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, announced today the population of the counties in the State of Minnesota by townships, cities, some villages, and one borough (Selle Plaine), these being the primary subdivisions into which the counties of Minnesota are divided.

population of Minneapolis and St. Paul by wards. Since some of the villages shown in the earlier release are located in one or more of the townships, the population figures for such villages are included in the township figures presented below, but are not shown separately.

This release is supplementary to the release of January 11, 1941 (Series P-2, No. 49), which gave the population of the counties and also the population of the incorporated places (cities, villages, and the borough) and the

These two releases taken together present the final 1940 population figures for all of the political subdivisions of the State of Minnesota, except the city wards in the smaller cities. Similar statements for other States will be issued as fast as the material can be prepared for release.

HAROLD E. STASSEN, GOVERNOR

August 25, 1941

Honorable Mike Holm
Secretary of State
Capitol Building

My dear Mr. Holm:

In compliance with Section 9892, General Statutes 1923, I am transmitting to you herewith a certified copy of the bulletin entitled, "Population, First Series, Number of Inhabitants, Minnesota" showing the population of the several political divisions of this state. This statute provides that this copy shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State.

I am also forwarding to you the certificate of J.C. Capt, Director of the Census.

Yours very truly,
