Subject: Report of obsolete rules – December 1, 2002

The Board of Examiners for Nursing Home Administrators regularly completes an assessment of Minnesota Rules 6400 pertaining to the Administration of Minnesota nursing homes and finds that current rules are applicable and not deemed obsolete, unnecessary or duplicative. The board spent significant time reviewing Continuing Education requirements during this past year and determined that rules are consistent with the needs of a contemporary administrator. We will continue to be proactive in updating statutes and rules in the changing health care environment.
