KNUTE NELSON

Knute Nelson was born February 2, 1843, at Evanger, Voss, in a little hut on a barren mountainside overlooking a beautiful valley. His father died when he was three years old. Two years later he and his mother came to America. On the Atlantic, finding his mother weeping and in prayer in her cabin, the boy exclaimed, "Don't cry, mother, we are poor now, but when I grow up, I shall be next to the king."

They came to Chicago, and the five-year-old lad became a news-boy. A year later we find them in Dane County, Wisconsin, on a farm. The boy received all the education afforded in the common schools and in Albion Academy. The strong arms and ready hands inspired his youthful companions with respect, as did his industry his conscientious teacher with due admiration.

In 1861, the war broke out and Nelson enlisted in Company B, Fourth Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry. He participated in the capture of Fort Jackson, St. Philip and New Orleans, in the expedition against Vicksburg and in the battles of Baton Rouge, Camp Bisland, Franklin and Opelousas. He was wounded and taken prisoner in the charge against Fort Hudson. He returned to Wisconsin in 1864, broken in health but not in spirit. He had sent his monthly wages to his mother, and she had saved them for him so that he might re-enter Albion Academy. Later he entered the Law School at the University of Wisconsin.

The year he was admitted to the bar he was elected to the Legislature on the Republican ticket. He had not yet recovered his health, and seeking a more healthful climate, he came to Minnesota in 1871, and took a homestead at Alexandria, upon which he lived until his death.

He engaged in the practice of law, served as county attorney three years, state senator four years, as a member of the University board of regents eleven years, and in Congress six years. He retired voluntarily to re-engage in the practice of law, but two years later was drafted as his party's nominee for governor. He was pitted against D. W. Lawler, then Minnesota's most brilliant young man, and Ignatius Donnelly, famed from coast to coast. He was elected by a fair plurality and two years later he was re-elected.

The Legislature of 1895 elected him United States Senator. He was re-elected by the Legislature in 1901, 1907, and 1913, and by popular vote in 1918. In war and in peace, he served his country a total of fifty-nine years, a most unusual record.

His service in Congress was particularly marked by his fearless stand on the tariff, he being one of three Republicans to vote for the Democratic Mills bill. He ever since maintained his attitude for a low protective tariff.

As governor, he distinguished himself because of his recommendations affecting the grain and warehouse business. He showed his ability to cope with a difficult situation when the Hinckley fire broke out in 1894. His efforts for reclamation in the Red River Valley are still remembered by the people in that section, as are his attainments in connection with the development of our iron ore mines.

In the United States Senate he served with untiring energy for nearly thirty years. He was unostentatious and never boasted of his attainments, although he was one of the most distinguished members of that body. Senator Beveridge said of him that he "was the nearest approach to the ideal senator." In Washington he was known as the senator who had stepped into the shoes of Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. His industry was the greatest of any man in the capital.

Senator Nelson was the father of the department of commerce and labor. The bankruptcy act of 1898 was his work and bears his name as the "Nelson cure." It was due to him that national banks can be established with a capital of $25,000. He served with distinction as chairman of the senate judiciary committee from 1919 until his death. His speeches and actions supporting the government during the World War were vigorous and emphatic.

In the winter of 1923, Senator Nelson suffered a severe attack of influenza. During his illness he often expressed a longing for the peace and quiet of his farm home at Alexandria. This wish was to be denied to him, he succumbed to heart failure on the train, near Harrisburg, Pa., April 28, 1923. His remains lie buried near his homestead at Alexandria, and a permanent memorial will be erected on the State Capitol grounds.

Senator Nelson fulfilled his boyish prediction that he "would be next to the king." A man of oak, in whose early childhood instinct became intelligence; in whose youth anger begot ambition; in whose life's evening his fellow-citizens viewed him as a mental colossus, he at all times had the love and admiration of all who knew him. Truly, he could have said: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." His life is the greatest inspiration of our day to the lowly American immigrant; may his memory be as lasting as the noble purposes for which he lived.

CALVIN LUTHER BROWN

Calvin Luther Brown, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota from 1899 to 1912, and Chief Justice from then until his death, was born at Goshen, New Hampshire, April 26th, 1854, and died at his home in Minneapolis, Minnesota, September 24th, 1923.

Like his close friend and predecessor, Mr. Chief Justice Start, he possessed the heritage of New England ancestry. His great-grandfather, William Brown, was a soldier of the Revolution; his grandfather, Luther Brown, took part in the war of 1812, and his father, John Harrison Brown, for many years a District Judge in this State; was in the Commissary Department of the Union Army during the Civil War, stationed at Madison, Wisconsin, with the rank of Captain.

When the late Chief Justice was but one year old his parents settled at Shakopee, in this State. Minnesota was then a territory, so that during the subsequent sixty-seven years of his life he witnessed and took part in the development of the State to its present position.

As a boy in Shakopee he saw the trembling fugitives from the Sioux massacre of 1862; he experienced the thrill of horror which swept over the nation at the assassination of Lincoln; he saw the survivors of the Minnesota regiments return to their homes after the suppression of the rebellion; he knew when the first mile of railway was constructed in Minnesota and when the Indians ceased to come with their Red River carts to barter with the fur traders; and then, when the St. Paul and Pacific Railway pierced the "Big Woods" and emerged upon the prairie, he joined in the movement which filled the western lands of Minnesota with happy homes and prosperous citizens.

In 1870 the family removed to Willmar, Kandiyohi County, Minnesota, and there, on September 1st, 1878, the late Chief Justice married Miss Annette Marlow, who bore him five children; one, Olive, dying in infancy, and four who survived him—Alice A., now the wife of Dr. B. J. Branton, of Willmar; Edna M., and Margaret E., residents of Minneapolis, and Montreville J. Brown, attorney at law of St. Paul.

Mrs. Brown, an ideal mother and helpmate, died at Minneapolis, October 13th, 1919.

After some ventures into other fields, usually to be expected of a restless and ambitious young man in a frontier state, Calvin L. Brown seriously took up the study of law, and was admitted to the Bar of Minnesota, February 22nd, 1876. He first practiced in Willmar, in partnership with his brother, Horace W. Brown, and in 1878 removed to Morris, Stevens County, where he served as County Attorney from 1883 until his appointment by Gov. McGill, on March 10th, 1887, as District Judge of the Sixteenth Judicial District.

Presiding for eleven years as District Judge, he earned the approbation and love of all with whom he came in contact, with the result that in 1898 he was elected Associate Judge of the Supreme Court for the term commencing January 1, 1900. Before the beginning of his term Mr. Justice Buck resigned, and Gov. Lind, on November 20th, 1899, appointed the newly elected Justice to fill the vacancy. In 1912, when Mr. Chief Justice Start refused to accept a re-election, Justice Brown was elected Chief Justice, and continued to serve in that position until his death.

The real life work of the Chief Justice began with his elevation to the Supreme Court, and his legal attainments, his clear vision and common sense, and his gentle heart and intellectual honesty may be gathered from the opinions written by him, beginning with Skone vs. Barnard, 78 Minn., 210. Since then he delivered the opinion of the Court in cases which cover the whole field of law, and show him to have been a profound lawyer as well as a practical man of affairs.

The dignity, poise and patience with which he presided in the Supreme Court as its Chief Justice, and the unfailing courtesy which he extended to counsel appearing in that tribunal, won him the universal esteem of the members of the bar in addition to their admiration for him as a jurist.

The Chief Justice was essentially an original thinker, and in the performance of his judicial duties he first endeavored to arrive at what he felt should be the law and justice of the case under consideration. Following this, he studied precedents to test the correctness of his judgment, and when he found sufficient authority to support his own conclusions, he immediately, and in longhand, wrote his opinion, the first draft of which was generally so clear and simple as to need little or no revision.

Although occupying the highest judicial position in the State, he never lost his simplicity or kindness of heart, and although pre-eminently of a domestic disposition, he mingled freely with other men in a spirit of fraternity, and was Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Minnesota during the years 1894 and 1895.

His sympathetic and broad Christian charity came into full play in connection with the performance of the duties imposed upon the Chief Justice as a member of the Board of Pardons. No shrinking waif, unhappy parent or distracted wife failed of a sympathetic hearing from him, and even when he could give no assurance of mercy, his sympathetic bearing and kindly counsel brought solace to the class upon whom the punishment for crime often bears the heaviest.

His is the story of a real American, and although to some the maxim noblesse oblige may present the picture of an armored knight of the old regime, to the American, saturated with traditions of his country, it brings a vision of a sturdy, self-reliant and self-supporting man who reveres God, believes in the sanctity of the home, recognizes the dignity of labor and equality of all men before the law; of one who appreciates a government of laws and not of men, and who classifies humanity not by wealth, religion or race, but by conduct and attainments.

And so this man, who endured the privations of the frontier, remained unsullied by its rudeness. With only the scant aid of inadequate educational institutions he mastered the intricacies of the great legal profession. Called to high positions, he remained a kindly, simple gentleman, unspoiled by the temptations of place and power. He thought upon the things which are good and true and beautiful, and we do not so much sorrow at his death as rejoice in the fact that we knew him and loved him, and that his name will always stand high on the Honor Roll of Minnesota.

assembly shall meet at such place on such day as the governor shall appoint, but thereafter the time, place and manner of holding and conducting all elections by the people, and the apportioning of the representation in the several counties or districts to the council and house of representatives, according to the population, shall be prescribed by law, as well as the day of the commencement of the regular session of the legislative assembly; provided, that no one session shall exceed the term of sixty days.

And the sum of twenty thousand dollars, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, is hereby appropriated and granted to said Territory of Minnesota, to be applied by the governor and legislative assembly to the erection of suitable public buildings at the seat of government.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That a delegate of the house of representatives of the United States, to serve for the term of two years, may be elected by the voters qualified to elect members of the legislative assembly, who shall be entitled to the same rights and privileges as are exercised and enjoyed by the delegates from the several other territories of the United States to the said house of representatives. The first election shall be held at such times and places and be conducted in such manner as the governor shall appoint and direct; and at all subsequent elections the times, places and manner of holding the elections shall be prescribed by law. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be declared by the governor to be duly elected, and a certificate thereof shall be given accordingly.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That all suits, process and proceedings, civil and criminal, at law or in chancery, and all indictments and informations, which shall be pending and undetermined in the courts of the Territory of Wisconsin, within the limits of said Territory of Minnesota, when this act shall take effect, shall be transferred to be heard, tried, prosecuted and determined in the district courts hereby established, which may include the counties or districts where any such proceedings may be pending. All bonds, recognizances, and obligations of every kind whatsoever, valid under the existing laws, within the limits of said Territory, shall be valid under this act; and all crimes and misdemeanors against the laws, in force within said limits, may be prosecuted, tried, and punished in the courts established by this act; and all penalties, forfeitures, actions and causes of action may be recovered under this act the same as they would have been under the laws in force within the limits composing said Territory at the time this act shall go into operation.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That all justices of the peace, constables, sheriffs, and all other judicial and ministerial officers, who shall be in office within the limits of said Territory when this act shall take effect, shall be and they are hereby authorized and required to continue to exercise and perform the duties of their respective offices as officers of the Territory of Minnesota, temporarily, and until they or others shall be duly appointed and qualified to fill their places, in the manner herein directed, or until their offices shall be abolished.

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That the sum of $5,000 be and the same is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended by and under the direction of the said governor of the Territory of Minnesota, in the purchase of a library, to be kept at the seat of government for the use of the governor, legislative assembly, judges of the supreme court, secretary, marshal, and attorneys of said Territory, and such other persons and under such regulations as shall be prescribed by law.

SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That every bill which shall or may pass the council and house of representatives, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the Territory; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated; which shall cause the objections to be entered at large upon their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall also be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law; but in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislative assembly, by adjournment, prevent it, in which case it shall not become a law.

MINNESOTA STATE SEAL

The state seal is similar in design to the territorial seal, although various other devices were proposed and even adopted as laws.

First official reference to the seal appears in the message of Governor Ramsey to the first territorial legislature, September 9, 1849. A legislative committee, October 31, recommended as a seal device, "an every-day scene, consisting of an Indian family with their lodge, canoe, etc., and a single white man visiting them, with no other protection than the feeling of hospitality and friendship existing between the two people. The white man is receiving from the Indian the pipe of peace." That seal was authorized by law but never used.

The territorial seal depicted instead a scene at St. Anthony Falls, as shown in the accompanying engraving. The earlier proposal may have influenced the design, but substitution of the musket and powderhorn for the pipe of peace may have had special significance. The motto, "Quo sursum velo videre," the third word a misprint for "volo," meaning "I wish to see what lies beyond," was selected by H. H. Sibley, while a delegate in Congress. Governor Ramsey commissioned D. O. Hare of Washington to engrave the seal and the cost was $157.

Although ridiculed by journalists as representing "a scared white man and an astonished Indian," and "a man plowing one way and looking another," this territorial seal was used until the adoption of the state seal in 1858.

During the first session of the state legislature, assembled December 2, 1857, Charles F. Lowe, a member of the convention of 1857 which drafted the state constitution, including a provision for a state seal, procured from Mr. Buechner, a St. Paul artist, a design shown on page 658 of W. H. C. Folsom's "Fifty Years in the Northwest."

The state government upon beginning operations in May, 1858, was without a state seal. Authorizing temporary use of the territorial seal, Governor Sibley brought up the subject at the adjourned legislative session in June and a special committee was named. W. H. C. Folsom, chairman, submitted the design mentioned, which on July 16 was adopted by joint resolution. When the new seal was delivered, however, it was found that the legislative intent had failed, and in place of that elaborate design one resembling the territorial seal was used, as it appears in the illustration. The word "state" was added and the date of admission substituted for the territorial year. The motto was changed to "L'Etoile du Nord," translated "The North Star," and this state seal has ever since been in official use. The Minnesotian published articles ridiculing the French motto and declaring that Governor Sibley had chosen it simply because he spoke that language.

ACT

AUTHORIZING A STATE GOVERNMENT.

[Passed Feb. 26, 1857.]

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the inhabitants of that portion of the Territory of Minnesota which is embraced within the following limits, to-wit: Beginning at the point in the center of the main channel of the Red River of the North, where the boundary line between the United States and the British Possessions crosses the same; thence up the main channel of said river to that of the Bois de Sioux river; thence up the main channel of said river to Lake Traverse; thence up the center of said lake to the southern extremity thereof, thence in a direct line to the head of Big Stone lake; thence through its center to its outlet; thence by a due south line to the north line of the State of Iowa; thence along the northern boundary of said state to the main channel of the Mississippi river; thence up the main channel of said river, and following the boundary line of the State of Wisconsin, until the same intersects with the St. Louis river; thence down the said river to and through Lake Superior, on the boundary line of Wisconsin and Michigan, until it intersects the dividing line between the United States and the British Possessions; thence up Pigeon river and following said dividing line to the place of beginning, be and they hereby are authorized to form for themselves a constitution and state government by the name of the State of Minnesota, and to come into the Union on an equal footing with the original states, according to the Federal Constitution.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the State of Minnesota shall have concurrent jurisdiction on the Mississippi and all other rivers and waters bordering on the said State of Minnesota, so far as the same shall form a common boundary to said state and any state or states now or hereafter to be formed or bounded by the same; and said river or waters leading into the same shall be common highways, and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of said state as to all other citizens of the United States, without any tax, duty, impost, or toll therefor.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That on the first Monday in June next, the legal voters in each representative district then existing within the limits of the proposed state, are hereby authorized to elect two delegates for each representative to which said district shall be entitled according to the apportionment for representatives to the territorial legislature; which election for delegates shall be held and conducted, and the returns made, in all respects in conformity with the laws of said Territory regulating the election of representatives, and the delegates so elected shall assemble at the capitol of said Territory on the second Monday in July next, and first determine by a vote whether it is the wish of the people of the proposed State to be admitted into the Union at that time; and if so, shall proceed to form a constitution, and take all necessary steps for the establishment of a state government, in conformity with the Federal Constitution, subject to the approval and ratification of the people of the proposed State.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That in the event said convention shall decide in favor of the immediate admission of the proposed State into the Union, it shall be the duty of the United States marshal for said Territory to proceed to take a census or enumeration of the inhabitants within the limits of the proposed State, under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the secretary of the interior, with the view of ascertaining the number of representatives to which said State may be entitled in the Congress of the United States. And said State shall be entitled to one representative, and such additional representatives as the population of the State shall, according to the census, show it would be entitled to according to the present ratio of representation.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That the following propositions be and the same are hereby offered to the said convention of the people of Minnesota for their free acceptance or rejection, which, if accepted by the convention, shall be obligatory on the United States, and upon the said State of Minnesota, to-wit:

First—That sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in every township of public lands in said State, and where either of said sections, or any part thereof, has been sold or otherwise been disposed of, other lands, equivalent thereto, and as contiguous as may be, shall be granted to said State for the use of schools.

Second—That seventy-two sections of land shall be set apart and reserved for the use and support of a state university, to be selected by the governor of said State, subject to the approval of the commissioner at the general land office, and to be appropriated and applied in such manner as the legislature of said State may prescribe; for the purpose aforesaid, but for no other purpose.

Third—Ten entire sections of land to be selected by the governor of said State, in legal subdivisions, shall be granted to said State for the purpose of completing the public buildings, or for the erection of others at the seat of government, under the direction of the legislature thereof.

Fourth—That all salt springs within said State, not exceeding twelve in number, with six sections of land adjoining or as contiguous as may be to each, shall be granted to said State for its use; and the same to be selected by the governor thereof within one year after the admission of said State, and, when so selected, to be used or disposed of on such terms, conditions and regulations as the legislature shall direct; provided, that no salt spring or land the right whereof is now vested in any individual or in individuals, or which may be hereafter confirmed or adjudged to any individual or individuals, shall by this article be granted to said State.

Fifth—That five per centum of the net proceeds of sales of all public lands lying within said State, which shall be sold by Congress after the admission of said State into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be paid to said State for the purpose of making public roads and internal improvements as the legislature shall direct; provided, the foregoing propositions herein offered are on the condition that the said convention which shall form the constitution of said State shall provide, by a clause in said constitution, or an ordinance, irrevocable without the consent of the United States, that said State shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the soil within the same by the United States, or with any regulations Congress may find necessary for securing the title in said soil to bona fide purchasers thereof; and that no tax shall be imposed on lands belonging to the United States, and that in no case shall non-resident proprietors be taxed higher than residents.

MINNESOTA STATE FLAG.

The State Legislature of 1893, by Chapter 16, provided for the adoption of a state flag.

Mrs. Franklyn L. Greenleaf, Mrs. A. A. White, Mrs. Edward Durant, Mrs. F. B. Clarke, Mrs. H. F. Brown and Mrs. A. T. Stebbins were by this act named and designated a commission to select and adopt an appropriate design for a state flag.

Conformably to the provision of this act, this commission called for designs, and on Tuesday, Feb. 28, 1893, met, selected and adopted the design presented by Mrs. Edward H. Center, of Minneapolis.

Following is a description of the flag: "The ground is of white silk, and the reverse side of blue silk, bordered with bullion fringe. In the center is the state seal, wreathed with white moccasin flowers, on a blue ground. The red ribbon of the seal bearing the motto is continued through the wreath, entwining the blossoms and floating carelessly over the lower portion of the flag. It bears, in gold, the dates 1819, the time of the settlement of Minnesota, and 1893. Above, also in gold, is the date 1858, the time of the admission of Minnesota to the Union. Below the design, in gold letters, is wrought 'Minnesota.' Grouped around the seal are nineteen stars in the design of star points, with the North Star, significant of the North Star State, in a group of three at the top."

The choice of the number nineteen is a peculiarly happy one, as Minnesota was the nineteenth state, after the original thirteen, to be admitted to the Union. The standard to the flag was surmounted by a golden gopher, and tied with a gold cord and tassel. The execution of the design is entirely in needle work.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Under the enabling act of Congress, approved March 3, 1857, a constitutional convention of one hundred and eight members (each council district to elect two for each councilman and representative it was entitled to) was authorized to meet at the capitol on the second Monday in July, to frame a state constitution, and submit it to the people of the territory. The election was held on the first Monday in June. On July 13th the delegates met, but, a disagreement arising in the organization, the Republican members organized one body, and the Democratic members organized separately. Each of these bodies, claiming to be the legal constitutional convention, proceeded with the work of forming an instrument to be submitted to the people. After some days an understanding was effected between them, and, by means of committees of conference, the same constitution was framed and adopted by both bodies. On being submitted to the people October 13th, it was ratified.

ARTICLE I.

BILL OF RIGHTS.

Object of government. SECTION 1. Government is instituted for the security, benefit and protection of the people, in whom all political power is inherent, together with the right to alter, modify or reform such government, whenever the public good may require it.

Rights and Privileges. SEC. 2. No member of this State shall be disfranchised, or deprived of any of the rights or privileges secured to any citizen thereof, unless by the law of the land, or the judgment of his peers. There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in the State otherwise than in the punishment of crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted.

Liberty of the press. SEC. 3. The liberty of the press shall forever remain inviolate, and all persons may freely speak, write and publish their sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of such right.

Trial by jury. SEC. 4. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate, and shall extend to all cases at law without regard to the amount in controversy, but a jury trial may be waived by the parties in all cases in the manner prescribed by law; [and the legislature may provide that the agreement of five-sixths of any jury in any civil action or proceeding, after not less than six (6) hours' deliberation, shall be a sufficient verdict therein.]*

No excessive bail or unusual punishments. SEC. 5. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor shall excessive fines be imposed; nor shall cruel or unusual punishments be inflicted.

Rights of accused in criminal prosecutions. SEC. 6. In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the county or district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which county or district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel in his defense. (a)

Further rights of accused—when bailable. SEC. 7. No person shall be held to answer for a criminal offense without due process of law, and no person for the same offense shall be put twice in jeopardy of punishment, nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. All persons shall before conviction be bailable by sufficient sureties, except for capital offenses when the proof is evident or the presumption great; and the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless when in case of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require.

Redress of injuries or wrongs. SEC. 8. Every person is entitled to a certain remedy in the laws for all injuries or wrongs which he may receive in his person, property or character; he ought to obtain justice freely and without purchase; completely and without denial; promptly and without delay, conformable to the laws.

Treason defined. SEC. 9. Treason against the State shall consist only in levying war against the same, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

Right against unreasonable searches. SEC. 10. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the person or things to be seized.

*The clause in brackets was adopted Nov. 4, 1890.

(a) The jury contemplated by article 1, section 6, securing the right to jury trial in criminal cases, is a body of twelve men, and it is error to try a party charged with crime in a justice court, against his objection, with a jury of six. The fact that he may appeal to the district court, on entering into recognizance with sureties, does not change the rule. 14 Minn. 330.

Prohibits ex post facto laws, or laws impairing contracts. SEC. 11. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts shall ever be passed, and no conviction shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate.

Imprisonment for debt—property exemption. SEC. 12. No person shall be imprisoned for debt in this State, (a) but this shall not prevent the legislature from providing for imprisonment, or holding to bail, persons charged with fraud in contracting said debt. A reasonable amount of property shall be exempt from seizure or sale for the payment of any debt or liability. The amount of such exemption shall be determined by law. [Provided, however, that all property so exempted shall be liable to seizure and sale for any debts incurred to any person for work done or materials furnished in the construction, repair or improvement of the same, and provided further, that such liability to seizure and sale shall also extend to all real property for any debt incurred to any laborer or servant for labor or service performed.]*

Private property for public use. SEC. 13. Private property shall not be taken, destroyed or damaged for public use without just compensation therefor, first paid or secured.†

Military power subordinate. SEC. 14. The military shall be subordinate to the civil power, and no standing army shall be kept up in this State in times of peace.

Lands declared allodial—leases, when void. SEC. 15. All lands within the State are declared to be allodial, and feudal tenures of every description, with all their incidents, are prohibited. Leases and grants of agricultural lands for a longer period than twenty-one years hereafter made, in which shall be reserved any rent or service of any kind, shall be void.

Freedom of conscience—no preference to be given to any religious establishment or mode of worship. SEC. 16. The enumeration of rights in this constitution shall not be construed to deny or impair others retained by and inherent in the people. The right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience shall never be infringed, nor shall any man be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship, or to maintain any religious or ecclesiastical ministry, against his consent; nor shall any control of or interference with the rights of conscience be permitted, or any preference be given by law to any religious establishment or mode of worship; but the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be so construed as to excuse acts of licentiousness, or justify practices inconsistent with the peace or safety of the State, nor shall any money be drawn from the treasury for the benefit of any religious societies, or religious or theological seminaries.

(a) 23 Minn. 1; 23 Minn. 411.

*The clause in brackets was adopted Nov. 6, 1888.

†The words "destroyed or damaged" inserted by amendment adopted Nov. 3, 1896.

No religious test or property qualifications to be required. SEC. 17. No religious test or amount of property shall ever be required as a qualification for any office of public trust under the State. No religious test or amount of property shall ever be required as a qualification of any voter at any election in this State; nor shall any person be rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity in consequence of his opinion upon the subject of religion.

No license to peddle. SEC. 18. Any person may sell or peddle the products of the farm or garden occupied and cultivated by him without obtaining a license therefor.*

ARTICLE II.

ON NAME AND BOUNDARIES.

Name and boundaries. SECTION 1. This State shall be called and known by the name of the State of Minnesota, and shall consist of and have jurisdiction over the territory embraced in the following boundaries, to-wit: Beginning at the point in the center of the main channel of the Red River of the North, where the boundary line between the United States and British Possessions crosses the same; thence up the main channel of said river to that of the Bois des Sioux river; thence up the main channel of said river to Lake Traverse; thence up the center of said lake to the southern extremity thereof; thence in a direct line to the head of Big Stone lake; thence through its center to its outlet; thence by a due south line to the north line of the State of Iowa; thence east along the northern boundary of said State to the main channel of the Mississippi river; thence up the main channel of said river and following the boundary line of the State of Wisconsin until the same intersects the St. Louis river; thence down the said river to and through Lake Superior, on the boundary line of Wisconsin and Michigan, until it intersects the dividing line between the United States and British Possessions; thence up Pigeon river and following said dividing line to the place of beginning.

*Adopted Nov. 6, 1906.

The northern boundary of the state at the Lake of the Woods is projected beyond the 49th parallel a distance of about twenty miles, making a wedge-shaped jog through the lake until it strikes firm ground on the west bank of the lake; thence in a due south line to the 49th parallel. The explanation of this jog is found in the subjoined paragraphs. In the seventh article of the treaty of Ghent, section 19 reads as follows: Sec. 19. Resolved that the following described (also represented on said map as before mentioned), is, in the opinion of the commissioners, so far as the same extends, the true boundary intended by the before mentioned treaties, namely: * * * thence through the middle of the waters of this bay to the northwest extremity of the same; being the most northwestern point of the Lake of the Woods, and from a monument in this bay, on the nearest firm ground to the above northwest extremity of said bay, the courses and distances are as follows: 56° W. 1,565½ feet; 2d, N. 6° W. 861½ feet; 3d, N. 28° W. 615.4 feet; 4th, N. 27° 10' W. 495.4 feet; 5th, N. 5° 10' E. 1,322½ feet; 6th, N. 70° 45' W. 493 feet, the variation being 12° east. The termination of this 6th and last course and distance being the above said most northwestern point

Jurisdiction on bordering rivers. SEC. 2. The State of Minnesota shall have concurrent jurisdiction on the Mississippi and on all other rivers and waters bordering on the said State of Minnesota, so far as the same shall form a common boundary to said State, and any other state or states now or hereafter to be formed by the same; and said rivers and waters, and navigable waters leading into the same, shall be common highways and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of said State as to other citizens of the United States, without any tax, duty, impost, or toll therefor.

Acceptance of propositions in enabling act. SEC. 3. The propositions contained in the act of Congress entitled, "An act to authorize the people of the Territory of Minnesota to form a constitution and state government, preparatory to their admission into the Union on equal footing with the original states," are hereby accepted, ratified and confirmed, and shall remain irrevocable without the consent of the United States; and it is hereby ordained that this State shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the soil within the same, by the United States, or with any regulations Congress may find necessary for securing the title to said soil to bona fide purchasers thereof; and no tax shall be imposed on lands belonging to the United States and in no case shall non-resident proprietors be taxed higher than residents.

ARTICLE III.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE POWERS OF GOVERNMENT.

Division of powers. SECTION 1. The powers of government shall be divided into three distinct departments—legislative, executive, and judicial; and no person or persons belonging to or constituting one of these departments shall exercise any of the powers properly belonging to either of the others, except in the instances expressly provided in this constitution. (a) of the Lake of the Woods, as designated by the seventh article of the treaty of Ghent, and being in latitude 49° 23' 55" north of the equator, and in longitude 95° 14' 38" west from Greenwich. The second article of the convention of 1818 is as follows: Article 2. It is agreed that a line drawn from the most northwestern point of the Lake of the Woods along the 49th parallel of north latitude, or, if the said point shall not be in the 49th parallel of north latitude, then that a line drawn from the said point due north or south, as the case may be, until the said line shall intersect the said parallel of north latitude, and from the point of such intersection due west, along and with the said parallel, shall be the line of demarkation between the territories of the United States and His Britannic Majesty, and that the said line shall form the northern boundary of the said territories of the United States and the southern boundary of His Britannic Majesty, from the Lake of the Woods to the Stony Mountains. This boundary was re-established and determined by a commission authorized by congress, and the surveys embracing four years were made and reported to congress in 1877.

(a) Courts cannot control or interfere with an executive officer of the state in his official acts, even though they are such that the duty to perform them might have been entrusted to some other officer. 28 Minn. 50.

ARTICLE IV.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

Legislature meets biennially—length of session. SECTION 1. The legislature shall consist of the Senate and House of Representatives, which shall meet biennially at the seat of government of the State, at such time as shall be prescribed by law, but no session shall exceed the term of ninety (90) legislative days; and no new bill shall be introduced in either branch, except on the written request of the governor, during the last twenty (20) days of such sessions, except the attention of the legislature shall be called to some important matter of general interest by a special message from the governor.

Apportionment of members. SEC. 2. The number of members who compose the Senate and House of Representatives shall be prescribed by law, but the representation in the Senate shall never exceed one member for every 5,000 inhabitants, and in the House of Representatives one member for every 2,000 inhabitants. The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the State, in proportion to the population thereof, exclusive of Indians not taxable under the provisions of law.

Eligibility of members—quorum. SEC. 3. Each house shall be the judge of the election returns and eligibility of its own members; a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to transact business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as it may provide.

Rules of government. SEC. 4. Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, sit upon its own adjournment, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member; but no member shall be expelled the second time for the same offense.

Officers—journal of proceedings. SEC. 5. The House of Representatives shall elect its presiding officer and the Senate and House of Representatives shall elect such other officers as may be provided by law; they shall keep journals of their proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, and the yeas and nays, when taken on any question, shall be entered on such journals.

Length of adjournments. SEC. 6. Neither house shall, during a session of the legislature, adjourn for more than three days (Sundays excepted), nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be assembled, without the consent of the other house.

Compensation. SEC. 7. The compensation of senators and representatives shall be three dollars per diem during the first session, but may afterwards be prescribed by law. But no increase of compensation shall be prescribed which shall take effect during the period for which the members of the existing House of Representatives may have been elected.

Privileged from arrest. SEC. 8. The members of each house shall in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during the session of their respective houses, and in going to or returning from the same. For any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.

Restriction as to holding office. SEC. 9. No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he is elected, hold any office under the authority of the United States or the State of Minnesota, except that of postmaster, and no senator or representative shall hold an office under the state which has been created or the emoluments of which have been increased during the session of the legislature of which he was a member, until one year after the expiration of his term of office in the legislature.

Bills of revenue to originate in House. SEC. 10. All bills for raising a revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose and concur with the amendments as on other bills.

Approval of bills by Governor—action on non-approval. SEC. 11. Every bill which shall have passed the Senate and House of Representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the State. If he approves, he shall sign and deposit it in the office of secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by adjournment within that time, prevents its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law.

Governor may cut out items of appropriation bills and otherwise approve. If any bill presented to the governor contain several items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more of such items, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects, and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money.

Money appropriations, how made. SEC. 12. No money shall be appropriated except by bill. Legislature to prescribe general limits of charter—amendment of charter—upon application of 5 per cent of legal voters. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election, and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the Constitution and laws of the State of Minnesota. Proceeds of school lands to be a perpetual fund. SEC. 2. The proceeds of such lands as are or hereafter may be granted by the United States for the use of schools within each township of this State shall remain a perpetual school fund to the State; and not more than one-third ($\frac{1}{3}$) of said lands may be sold in two (2) years, one-third ($\frac{1}{3}$) in five (5) years, and one-third ($\frac{1}{3}$) in ten (10) years; but the lands of the greatest valuation shall be sold first; provided, that no portion of said lands shall be sold otherwise than at public sale. The principal of all funds arising from sales or other disposition of lands or other property, granted or entrusted to this State in each township for educational purposes, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished; and the income arising from the lease or sale of said school land shall be distributed to the different townships throughout the State, in proportion to the number of scholars in each township, between the ages of five and twenty-one years; and shall be faithfully applied to the specific objects of the original grants or appropriations.

*A revolving fund of not over two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) may be set apart from the fund derived from the sale of school and swamp lands, to be used in constructing roads, ditches and fire breaks in, through and around unsold school and swamp lands and in clearing such lands, such fund to be replenished as long as needed from the enhanced value realized from the sale of such lands so benefited.

Investment of funds. Suitable laws shall be enacted by the legislature for the safe investment of the principal of all funds which have heretofore arisen or which may hereafter arise from the sale or other disposition of such lands, or the income from such lands accruing in any way before the sale or disposition thereof, in interest-bearing bonds of the United States, or of the State of Minnesota, issued after the year one thousand eight hundred and Swamp lands—division of proceeds. All swamp lands now held by the State, or that may hereafter accrue to the State, shall be appraised and sold in the same manner and by the same officers, and the minimum price shall be the same less one-third ($\frac{1}{3}$), as is provided by law for the appraisal and sale of the school lands under the provisions of title one (1) of chapter thirty-eight (38) of the General Statutes. The principal of all funds derived from sales of swamp lands, as aforesaid, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished. One-half ($\frac{1}{2}$) of the proceeds of said principal shall be appropriated to the common school fund of the State. The remaining one-half ($\frac{1}{2}$) shall be appropriated to the educational and charitable institutions of the State in the relative ratio of cost to support said institutions.

Public schools in each township to be established. SEC. 3. The legislature shall make such provisions, by taxation or otherwise, as, with the income arising from the school fund, will secure a thorough and efficient system of public schools in each township in the State.

Prohibition as to aiding sectarian school. But in no case shall the moneys derived as aforesaid, or any portion thereof, or any public moneys or property, be appropriated or used for the support of schools wherein the distinctive doctrines, creeds or tenets of any particular Christian or other religious sect are promulgated or taught.

University of Minnesota—location confirmed. SEC. 4. The location of the University of Minnesota, as established by existing laws, is hereby confirmed, and said institution is hereby declared to be the University of the State of Minnesota. All the rights, immunities, franchises and endowments heretofore granted or conferred are hereby perpetuated unto the said university; and all lands which may be granted hereafter by Congress, or other donations for said university purposes, shall vest in the institution referred to in this section.

Permanent school funds may be loaned to districts or counties for school purposes. SEC. 5. The permanent school funds of the State may be loaned upon interest at the rate of five (5) per cent per annum to the several counties or school districts of the State, to be used in the erection of county or school buildings. No such loan shall be made until approved by a board consisting of the governor, the state auditor and the state treasurer, who are hereby constituted an investment board for the purpose of the loans hereby authorized; nor shall any such loan be for an amount exceeding three (3) per cent of the last preceding assessed valuation of the real estate of the county or school district receiving the same. The state auditor shall annually, at the time of certifying the state tax to the several county auditors, also certify to each auditor to whose county, or to any of the school districts of whose county, any such loan shall have been made, the tax necessary to be levied to meet the accruing interest or principal of any such loan, and it shall be the duty of every such county auditor forthwith to levy and extend such tax upon all the taxable property of his county, or of the several school districts, respectively, liable for such loans—as the case may be—and in all such cases the tax so assessed shall be fifty (50) per cent in excess of the amount actually necessary to be raised on account of such accruing principal or interest. It shall be levied, collected and paid into the county and state treasuries in the same manner as state taxes, and any excess collected over the amount of such principal or interest accruing in any given year shall be credited to the general funds of the respective counties or school districts. No change of the boundaries of any school district after the making of any such loan shall operate to withdraw any property from the taxation herein provided for; nor shall any law be passed extending the time of payment of any such principal or interest, or reducing the rate of such interest, or in any manner waiving or impairing any rights of the State in connection with any such loan. Suitable laws, not inconsistent with this amendment, may be passed by the legislature for the purpose of carrying the same into effect. (a)

The permanent school and university fund of this state may be invested in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state, and in first mortgage loans secured upon improved and cultivated farm lands of this state. But no such investment or loan shall be made until approved by the board of commissioners designated by law to regulate the investment of the permanent school fund and the permanent university fund of this state; nor shall such loan or investment be made when the bonds to be issued or purchased would make the entire bonded indebtedness exceed 15 per cent of the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the county, school district, city, town or village issuing such bonds; nor shall any farm loan or investment be made when such investment or loan would exceed 30 per cent of the actual cash value of the farm land mortgage to secure said investment, nor shall such investments or loans be made at a lower rate of interest than 3 per cent per annum, nor for a shorter period than five years, nor for a longer period than thirty years, and no change of the town, school district, city, village or of county lines shall relieve the real property in such town, school district, county, village or city in this state at the time of issuing of such bonds from any liability for taxation to pay such bonds.

Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property, and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine: Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and, provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads.

Funds derived from the tax herein provided for shall be apportioned; fifty percent to the State General Revenue Fund, forty percent to the Permanent School Fund and ten percent to the Permanent University Fund. The Legislature shall by law make the necessary provisions for carrying out the provisions of this section.

N. B.—Sections 2, 3 and 4 obsolete, because in 1906 there was adopted the section which now is Section 1 in this article. It supplanted Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 and the unnumbered section of 1896. This amendment is sometimes called the wide open tax amendment. No amendments have been adopted to take the place of the old sections 2, 3 and 4. There is therefore a gap in the numbering from 1 to 5.

State debt limited—how contracted. *SEC. 5. For the purpose of defraying extraordinary expenditures, the state may contract public debts, but such debts shall never, in the aggregate, exceed two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; every such debt shall be authorized by law, for some single object, to be distinctly specified therein; and no such law shall take effect until it shall have been passed by the vote of two-thirds of the members of each branch of the legislature, to be recorded by yeas and nays on the journals of each house respectively; and every such law shall levy a tax annually sufficient to pay the annual interest of such debt, and also a tax sufficient to pay the principal of such debt within ten years from the final passage of such law, and shall specially appropriate the proceeds of such taxes to the payment of such principal and interest; and such appropriation and taxes shall not be repealed, postponed, or diminished, until the principal and interest of such debt shall have been wholly paid. The state shall never contract any debts for works of internal improvements, or be a party in carrying on such works, except as authorized by section 16 of Article 9, and by Article 16 of this Constitution, but it may levy an excise tax upon any substance, material, fluid, force or other means or instrumentality, or the business of dealing in, selling or producing any or all thereof, used or useful, in producing or generating power for propelling motor or other vehicles used on the public highways of this State, and shall place the proceeds of such tax in the Trunk Highway Fund provided for in Section 2 of said Article 16, and further except in cases where grants of land or other property shall have been made to the state, especially dedicated by the grant to specific purposes, and in such cases the state shall devote thereto the avails of such grants, and may pledge or appropriate the revenues derived from such works in aid of their completion.

Issue of bonds for created debt. SEC. 6. All debts authorized by the preceding section shall be contracted by loan on State bonds of amounts not less than five hundred dollars each on interest, payable within ten years after the final passage of the law authorizing such debt; and such bonds shall not be sold by the State under par. A correct registry of all such bonds shall be kept by the treasurer, in numerical order, so as always to exhibit the number and amount unpaid and to whom severally made payable.

Limitation as to when debt may be contracted. SEC. 7. The State shall never contract any public debt, unless in time of war, to repel invasion or suppress insurrection, except in the cases and in the manner provided in the fifth and sixth sections of this article.

Money drawn from the State treasury. SEC. 9. No money shall ever be paid out of the treasury of this State except in pursuance of an appropriation by law.

Credit of the State limited. SEC. 10. The Credit of the State shall never be given, or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated "Minnesota State Railroad Bonds," under what purports to be an amendment to section ten (10) of article nine (9) of the Constitution, adopted April 15th, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the State, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. Provided*, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the State may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the State upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. General banking law—provision and restrictions. SEC. 13. The legislature may, by a two-thirds vote, pass a general banking law, with the following restrictions and requirements, viz.:

First—The legislature shall have no power to pass any law sanctioning in any manner, directly, or indirectly, the suspension of specie payments by any person, association or corporation issuing bank notes of any description.

Additional Routes.

Whenever, either by reason of the creation of a new county, or by reason of the change of the county seat of any existing county, any city or village not a county seat at the time of the adoption of this amendment is lawfully constituted the county seat of any county, the legislature is authorized to add to the trunk highway system such additional routes connecting such newly constituted county seats with other county seats and other points in the state.

When after at least seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes embraced in the trunk highway system hereinbefore specified shall have been constructed and permanently improved, the legislature shall have authority to add new routes to such trunk highway system; provided, however, that no such new routes shall be added until and unless the funds available for the construction, improvement and maintenance of such additional routes shall be sufficient therefor in addition to the construction, improvement and maintenance of the several routes hereinbefore specifically described.

Section 2. There is hereby created a fund which shall be known as the trunk highway sinking fund. Said fund shall consist of the proceeds of any tax imposed on motor vehicles as herein authorized. The moneys in said fund shall be used for the payment of the principal and interest of any bonds which may be issued under the authority of this article; and any moneys in excess of such requirements shall be transferred to a fund which is hereby created and which shall be known as the trunk highway fund. The trunk highway fund shall be used solely for the purposes specified in section 1 of this article, and when duly authorized by legislative enactment to reimburse any county for the money expended by it subsequent to February 1st, 1919, in permanently improving any road hereinbefore specifically described, in accordance with plans and specifications therefore approved by the commissioner of highways.

Section 3. The legislature is hereby authorized to provide, by law, for the taxation of motor vehicles, using the public streets and highways of this state, on a more onerous basis than other personal property; provided, however, that any such tax on motor vehicles shall be in lieu of all other taxes thereon, except wheelage taxes, so-called, which may be imposed by any borough, city or village. Any such law may, in the discretion of the legislature, provide for the exemption from taxation of any motor vehicle owned by a non-resident of the state, and transiently or temporarily using the streets and highways of the state. The proceeds of such tax shall be paid in to said trunk highway sinking fund.

Section 4. The legislature may provide by law for the issue and sale of the bonds of the state in such amount as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of section 1 of this article, provided, however, that the amount of bonds which may be issued in any one calendar year shall not exceed, in the aggregate, ten million dollars, par value, and provided, further, the total amount of such bonds issued and unpaid shall not at any time exceed seventy-five million dollars, par value. The proceeds of the sale of such bonds shall be paid into the treasury of the state and credited to the trunk highway fund. Any bonds so issued and sold shall be for a term not exceeding twenty (20) years. They shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest and shall not bear interest at a greater rate than five per cent per annum. In case the trunk highway sinking fund shall not be adequate to meet the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds authorized by the legislature as hereinbefore provided, the legislature may provide by law for the taxation of all taxable property of the state in an amount sufficient to meet the deficiency, or it may, in its discretion, appropriate to such sinking fund moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Section 5. Any and all provisions of the constitution of the state of Minnesota are hereby repealed, inconsistent with the provisions of this article, so far, but only so far, as the same prohibit or limit the power of the legislature, to enact laws authorizing or permitting the doing of the things hereinbefore authorized.

ARTICLE XVII.*

SECTION 1. The state and (or) any of its political subdivisions, if and whenever authorized by the legislature, may contract debts and pledge the public credit for and engage in any work reasonably tending to prevent or abate forest fires, including the compulsory clearing and improvement of wild lands (whether belonging to the public or privately owned) and the assessment against such lands of the value of all benefits so conferred and the payment of damages so sustained in excess of such benefits.

SEC. 2. Any and all provisions of the constitution of the state of Minnesota inconsistent with the provisions of this article, are hereby repealed, so far, but only so far, as the same prohibit or limit the power of the legislature to enact laws authorizing or permitting the doing of the things hereinbefore authorized.

Judicial districts. SEC. 14. Until the legislature shall otherwise provide, the State shall be divided into judicial districts as follows, viz.:

The counties of Washington, Chisago, Manomin, Anoka, Isanti, Pine, Buchanan, Carlton, St. Louis and Lake shall constitute the First judicial district.

The county of Ramsey shall constitute the Second judicial district.

The counties of Houston, Winona, Fillmore, Olmsted and Wabasha shall constitute the Third judicial district.

The counties of Hennepin, Carver, Wright, Meeker, Sherburne, Benton, Stearns, Morrison, Crow Wing, Mille Lacs, Itasca, Pembina, Todd and Cass shall constitute the Fourth judicial district.

The counties of Dakota, Goodhue, Scott, Rice, Steele, Waseca, Dodge, Mower and Freeborn shall constitute the Fifth judicial district.

The counties of Le Sueur, Sibley, Nicollet, Blue Earth, Faribault, McLeod, Renville, Brown, and all other counties in the State not included within the other districts, shall constitute the Sixth judicial district.

SEC. 15. Each of the foregoing enumerated judicial districts may, at the first election, elect one prosecuting attorney for the district.

First State election. SEC. 16. Upon the second Tuesday, the thirteenth day of October, 1857, an election shall be held for members of the House of Representatives of the United States, governor, lieutenant governor, supreme and district judges, members of the legislature, and all other officers designated in this Constitution, and also for the submission of this Constitution to the people, for their adoption or rejection.

Voters at the first election. SEC. 17. Upon the day so designated as aforesaid every free white-male inhabitant over the age of twenty-one years, who shall have resided within the limits of the State for ten days previous to the day of said election, may vote for all officers to be elected under this Constitution at such election, and also for or against the adoption of this Constitution.

Vote on the constitution. SEC. 18. In voting for or against the adoption of this Constitution, the words, "For Constitution," or "Against Constitution," may be written or printed on the ticket of each voter; but no voter shall vote for or against this Constitution, on a separate ballot from that cast by him for officers to be elected at said election under this Constitution; and if upon the canvass of the vote so polled it shall appear that there was a greater number of votes polled for than against said Constitution, then this Constitution shall be deemed to be adopted as the Constitution of the State of Minnesota, and all the provisions and obligations of this Constitution, and of the schedule thereunto attached, shall thereafter be valid to all intents and purposes as the Constitution of said State.

Election—how conducted. SEC. 19. At said election the polls shall be opened, the election held, returns made, and certificates issued, in all respects as provided by law for opening, closing and conducting elections and making returns of the same, except as hereinbefore specified, and excepting also that polls may be opened and elections held at any point or points in any of the counties where precincts may be established as provided by law, ten days previous to the day of election, not less than ten miles from the place of voting in any established precinct.

Returns of election. SEC. 20. It shall be the duty of the judges and clerks of election, in addition to the returns required by law for each precinct, to forward to the secretary of the Territory, by mail, immediately after the close of the election, a certified copy of the poll book containing the name of each person who has voted in the precinct and the number of votes polled for and against the adoption of this Constitution.

Canvassing returns. SEC. 21. The returns of said election for and against this Constitution, and for all state officers and members of the House of Representatives of the United States, shall be made, and certificates issued in the manner now prescribed by law for returning votes given for delegates to Congress; and the returns for all district officers, judicial, legislative or otherwise, shall be made to the register of deeds of the senior county in each district, in the manner prescribed by law, except as otherwise provided. The returns for all officers elected at large shall be canvassed by the governor of the Territory, assisted by Joseph R. Brown and Thomas J. Galbraith, at the time designated by law for canvassing the vote for delegates to Congress.

SEC. 22. If, upon canvassing the votes for and against the adoption of this Constitution, it shall appear that there has been polled a greater number of votes against than for it, then no certificate of election shall be issued for any State or district officer provided for in this Constitution, and no State organization shall have validity within the limits of the Territory, until otherwise provided for and until a Constitution for a State government shall have been adopted by the people.

CYPRIPEDIUM.—THE MOCCASIN FLOWER.

STATE FLOWER OF MINNESOTA.

MINNESOTA STATE FLOWER

The state flower is the showy pink and white moccasin flower, the largest blossom pictured in the accompanying illustration, and known as the Cypripedium Spectabile and the earlier name of Cypripedium Reginae.

The state legislature adopted a state flower or floral emblem during February, 1892, on a petition signed by Mrs. A. L. Stebbins of Rochester and other members of the Woman's Auxiliary, Board of World's Fair Managers, urging adoption of the "Wild Lady Slipper or Moccasin Flower," Cypripedium Calceolus, which was followed.

Women of the St. Anthony Study Circle, through Mrs. E. C. Chatfield of Minneapolis, announced later that the calceolus was not found in Minnesota and in February, 1902, the legislature changed the designation to the reginae.

Thus the Cypripedium Reginae became the Minnesota state flower. The name Cypripedium, from the Greek words meaning the shoe of Venus, published for this genus in 1737 by Linnaeus, and its common English and American popular names, as Lady's Slipper, Moccasin Flower and Indian Shoe, refer to the saccate and somewhat shoe-like form of the most conspicuous petal (in this Orchis family called the lip) of the flower. The plants grow preferably in cool and moist woods and in bogs, flowering from May to July. The reginae is one of six species found in Minnesota.

NOTE.—Minnesota has fourteen genera, including forty-one species, of the Orchis family, to which the Cypripediums belong. In total, 1,583 species of flowering plants, and sixty-eight ferns and their allies, making together 1,650 species, were tabulated, as known to grow without cultivation in this state, by Warren Upham in the Catalogue of the Flora of Minnesota, published in the Twelfth Annual Report of the Geological and Natural History Survey for the year 1883 (193 pages, with a map showing the areas of forest and prairie). Within the basin of the Minnesota river, according to the report in 1892 by Prof. Conway MacMillan, the state botanist, 1,174 species and varieties of flowering plants, including all our Cypripediums, are known and have been collected for the Herbarium of the State University. The State Flower is thus chosen from among more than a thousand others which bloom on our prairies, in the northern woods, in their cool bogs, and in our streams and lakes.

ACT OF ADMISSION INTO THE UNION.

An Act for the admission of Minnesota into the Union,
[Passed May 11, 1858.]

WHEREAS, An act of Congress was passed February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, entitled "An act to authorize the people of the Territory of Minnesota to form a constitution and state government preparatory to their admission into the Union on an equal footing with the original states;" and, whereas, the people of said Territory did, on the twenty-ninth day of August, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, by delegates elected for that purpose, form for themselves a constitution and state government, which is republican in form, and was ratified and adopted by the people at an election held on the thirteenth day of October, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, for that purpose; therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the State of Minnesota shall be one, and is hereby declared to be one, of the United States of America, and admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatever.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said State shall be entitled to two representatives in Congress, until the next apportionment of representatives among the several states.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That from and after the admission of the State of Minnesota, as hereinbefore provided, all the laws of the United States which are not locally inapplicable shall have the same force and effect within that State as in other States of the Union; and the said State is hereby constituted a judicial district of the United States, within which a district court, with like powers and jurisdiction as the district court of the United States for the district of Iowa, shall be established; the judge, attorney and marshal of the United States of the said district of Minnesota shall reside within the same, and shall be entitled to the same compensation as the judge, attorney and marshal of the district of Iowa; and in all cases of appeal or writ of error heretofore prosecuted and now pending in the supreme court of the United States, upon any record from the supreme court of Minnesota Territory, the mandate of execution or order of further proceedings shall be directed by the supreme court of the United States to the district court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, or to the supreme court of the State of Minnesota, as the nature of such appeal or writ of error may require; and each of those courts shall be the successor of the supreme court of Minnesota Territory, as to all such cases, with full power to hear and determine the same, and to ward mesne or final process therein.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed, by their Creator, with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature—a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable and distant from the repository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time after such dissolutions to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large, for their exercise, the State remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering, fundamentally, the forms of our government:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has incited domestic insurrections among us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity; and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind—enemies in war, in peace, friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in general congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which INDEPENDENT STATES may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of DIVINE PROVIDENCE, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union between the States of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

ARTICLE 1. The style of this confederacy shall be "THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA."

ART. 2. Each state retains its sovereignty, freedom, and independence, and every power, jurisdiction, and right, which is not by this confederation expressly delegated to the United States in Congress assembled.

ART. 3. The said states hereby severally enter into a firm league of friendship with each other for their common defense, the security of their liberties, and their mutual, and general welfare, binding themselves to assist each other against all force offered to or attacks made upon them, or any of them, on account of religion, sovereignty, trade, or any other pretence whatever.

ART. 4. § 1. The better to secure and perpetuate mutual friendship and intercourse among the people of the different states in this Union, the free inhabitants of each of these states (paupers, vagabonds, and fugitives from justice excepted) shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of free citizens in the several states, and the people of each state shall have free ingress and egress to and from any other state, and shall enjoy therein all the privileges of trade and commerce, subject to the same duties, impositions and restrictions as the inhabitants thereof respectively; provided, that such restrictions shall not extend so far as to prevent the removal of property imported into any state, to any other state of which the owner is an inhabitant; provided, also, that no imposition, duties, or restriction shall be laid by any state on the property of the United States, or either of them.

§ 2. If any person guilty of, or charged with, treason, felony, or other high misdemeanor, in any state, shall flee from justice, and be found in any of the United States, he shall, upon the demand of the governor or executive power of the state from which he fled, be delivered up and removed to the state having jurisdiction of his offense.

§ 3. Full faith and credit shall be given in each of these states to the records, acts and judicial proceedings of the courts and magistrates of every other state.

ART. 5. § 1. For the more convenient management of the general interests of the United States, delegates shall be annually appointed in such manner as the legislature of each state shall direct, to meet in congress on the first Monday in November, of every year, with a power reserved to each state to recall its delegates, or any of them, at any time within the year, and to send others in their stead, for the remainder of the year.

§ 2. No state shall be represented in congress by less than two, nor more than seven, members; and no person shall be capable of being a delegate for more than three years, in any term of six years; nor shall any person, being a delegate, be capable of holding any office under the United States, for which he, or any other for his benefit, receives any salary, fees, or emoluments of any kind.

§ 3. Each state shall maintain its own delegates in a meeting of the states, and while they act as members of the committee of these states.

§ 4. In determining questions in the United States in congress assembled, each state shall have one vote.

§ 5. Freedom of speech and debate in congress shall not be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of congress, and the members of congress shall be protected in their persons from arrests and imprisonments during the time of their going to and from, and attendance on, congress, except for treason, felony, or breach of the peace.

ART. 6. § 1. No state, without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, shall send any embassy to, or receive any embassy from, or enter into any conference, agreement, alliance or treaty with, any king, prince or state; nor shall any person holding any office of profit or trust under the United States, or any of them, accept any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever from any king, prince, or foreign state; nor shall the United States in congress assembled, or any of them, grant any title of nobility.

§ 2. No two or more states shall enter into any treaty, confederation, or alliance whatever, between them, without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, specifying accurately the purposes for which the same is to be entered into, and how long it shall continue.

§ 3. No state shall lay any imposts or duties which may interfere with any stipulations in treaties entered into by the United States, in congress assembled, with any king, prince, or state, in pursuance of any treaties already proposed by congress to the courts of France and Spain.

§ 4. No vessels of war shall be kept up in time of peace by any state, except such number only as shall be deemed necessary by the United States in congress assembled, for the defense of such state, or its trade; nor shall any body or forces be kept up by any state, in time of peace, except such number only as, in the judgment of the United States in congress assembled, shall be deemed requisite to garrison the forts necessary for the defense of such state; but every state shall always keep up a well regulated and disciplined militia, sufficiently armed and accoutered, and shall provide and constantly have ready for use, in public stores, a due number of field pieces and tents, and a proper quantity of arms, ammunition and camp equipage.

§ 5. No state shall engage in any war without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, unless such state be actually invaded by enemies, or shall have received certain advice of a resolution being formed by some nation of Indians to invade such state, and the danger is so imminent as not to admit a delay till the United States in congress assembled can be consulted; nor shall any state grant commissions to any ships or vessels of war, nor letters of marque or reprisal, except it be after a declaration of war by the United States in congress assembled, and then only against the kingdom or state, and the subjects thereof, against which war has been so declared, and under such regulations as shall be established by the United States in congress assembled, unless such state be infested by pirates, in which case vessels of war may be fitted out for that occasion, and kept so long as the danger shall continue, or until the United States in congress assembled shall determine otherwise.

ART. 7. When land forces are raised by any state for the common defense, all officers of or under the rank of colonel shall be appointed by the legislature of each state, respectively, by whom such forces shall be raised, or in such manner as such state shall direct, and all vacancies shall be filled up by the state which first made the appointment.

ART. 8. All charges of war, and all other expenses that shall be incurred for the common defense or general welfare, and allowed by the United States in congress assembled, shall be defrayed out of a common treasury, which shall be supplied by the several states, in proportion to the value of all lands within each state, granted to or surveyed for any person, as such land and the buildings and improvements thereon shall be estimated, according to such mode as the United States in congress assembled shall, from time to time, direct and appoint. The taxes for paying that proportion shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the legislatures of the several states within the time agreed upon by the United States in congress assembled.

ART. 9. § 1. The United States in congress assembled shall have the sole and exclusive right and power of determining on peace and war, except in the cases mentioned in the sixth article; of sending and receiving ambassadors, entering into treaties and alliances; provided, that no treaty of commerce shall be made whereby the legislative power of the respective states shall be restrained from imposing such imposts and duties on foreigners as their own people are subjected to, or from prohibiting the exportation or importation of any species of goods or commodities whatsoever; of establishing rules for deciding in all cases what captures on land or water shall be legal, and in what manner prizes taken by land or naval forces in the service of the United States shall be divided or appropriated; of granting letters of marque and reprisal in times of peace; appointing courts for the trial of piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and establishing courts for receiving and determining finally appeals in all cases of captures; provided, that no member of congress shall be appointed a judge of any of the said courts.

§ 2. The United States in congress assembled shall also be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences now subsisting, or that may hereafter arise, between two or more states concerning boundary, jurisdiction, or any other cause whatever; which authority shall always be exercised in the manner following: Whenever, the legislative or executive authority or lawful agent of any state in controversy with another shall present a petition to congress, stating the matter in question, and praying for a hearing, notice thereof shall be given by order of congress to the legislative or executive authority of the other state in controversy, and a day assigned for the appearance of the parties by their lawful agents, who shall then be directed to appoint, by joint consent, commissioners or judges to constitute a court for hearing and determining the matter in question; but if they cannot agree, congress shall name three persons out of each of the United States, and from the list of such persons each party shall alternately strike out one, the petitioners beginning, until the number shall be reduced to thirteen; and from that number not less than seven nor more than nine names, as congress shall direct, shall, in the presence of congress, be drawn out by lot; the persons whose names shall be so drawn, or any five of them, shall be commissioners or judges to hear and finally determine the controversy, so always as a major part of the judges who shall hear the cause shall agree in the determination; and if either party shall neglect to attend at the day appointed, without showing reasons which congress shall judge sufficient, or being present shall refuse to strike, the congress shall proceed to nominate three persons out of each state, and the secretary of congress shall strike in behalf of such party absent or refusing; and the judgment and sentence of the court, to be appointed in the manner before prescribed, shall be final and conclusive; and if any of the parties shall refuse to submit to the authority of such court, or to appear to defend their claim or cause, the court shall nevertheless proceed to pronounce sentence or judgment, which shall in like manner be final and decisive; the judgment or sentence and other proceedings being in either case transmitted to congress and lodged among the acts of congress, for the security of the parties concerned; provided, that every commissioner, before he sits in judgment, shall take an oath, to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme or superior court of the state where the cause shall be tried, "well and truly to hear and determine the matter in question, according to the best of his judgment, without favor, affection, or hope of reward;" provided, also, that no state shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States.

§ 3. All controversies concerning the private right of soil claimed under different grants of two or more states, whose jurisdiction, as they may respect such lands, and the states which passed such grants are adjusted, the said grants or either of them being at the same time claimed to have originated antecedent to such settlement of jurisdiction, shall, on the petition of either party to the congress of the United States, be finally determined, as near as may be, in the same manner as is before prescribed for deciding disputes respecting territorial jurisdiction between different states.

§ 4. The United States in congress assembled shall also have the sole and exclusive right and power of regulating the alloy and value of coin struck by their own authority, or by that of the respective states; fixing the standards of weights and measures, throughout the United States; regulating the trade and managing all affairs with the Indians, not members of any of the states; provided, that the legislative right of any state, within its own limits, be not infringed or violated; establishing and regulating postoffices from one state to another, throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing through the same as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office; appointing all officers of the land forces in the service of the United States, excepting regimental officers; appointing all the officers of the naval forces, and commissioning all officers whatever in the service of the United States; making rules for the government and regulation of the said land and naval forces, and directing their operations.

§ 5. The United States in congress assembled shall have authority to appoint a committee, to sit in the recess of congress, to be denominated "A Committee of the States," and to consist of one delegate from each state; and to appoint such other committees and civil officers as may be necessary for managing the general affairs of the United States under their direction; to appoint one of their number to preside; provided, that no person be allowed to serve in the office of president more than one year in any term of three years; to ascertain the necessary sums of money to be raised for the service of the United States, and to appropriate and apply the same for defraying the public expenses; to borrow money or emit bills on the credit of the United States, transmitting every half year to the respective states an account of the sums of money so borrowed or emitted; to build and equip a navy; to agree upon the number of land forces, and to make requisitions from each state for its quota, in proportion to the number of white inhabitants in such state, which requisition shall be binding; and thereupon the legislature of each state shall appoint the regimental officers, raise the men, and clothe, arm and equip them, in a soldier-like manner, at the expense of the United States; and the officers and men so clothed, armed and equipped shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in congress assembled; but if the United States in congress assembled shall, on consideration of circumstances, judge proper that any state should not raise men, or should raise a smaller number than its quota, and that any other state should raise a greater number of men than the quota thereof, such extra number shall be raised, officered, clothed, armed and equipped in the same manner as the quota of such state, unless the legislature of such state shall judge that such extra number cannot be safely spared out of the same, in which case they shall raise, officer, clothe, arm and equip as many of such extra number as they judge can be safely spared, and the officers and men so clothed, armed, and equipped shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in congress assembled.

§ 6. The United States in congress assembled shall never engage in a war, nor grant letters of marque and reprisal in time of peace, nor enter into any treaties or alliances, nor coin money, nor regulate the value thereof, nor ascertain the sums and expenses necessary for the defense and welfare of the United States, or any of them, nor emit bills, nor borrow money on the credit of the United States, nor appropriate money, nor agree upon the number of vessels of war to be built or purchased, or the number of land or sea forces to be raised, nor appoint a commander-in-chief of the army or navy, unless nine states assent to the same; nor shall a question on any other point, except for adjourning from day to day, be determined, unless by the votes of a majority of the United States in congress assembled.

§ 7. The congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn to any time within the year, and to any place within the United States, so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months, and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly, except such parts thereof relating to treaties, alliances, or military operations as in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each state, on any question, shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegate; and the delegates of a state, or any of them, at his or their request, shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the legislatures of the several states.

ART. 10. The committee of the states, or any nine of them, shall be authorized to execute, in the recess of congress, such of the powers of congress as the United States in congress assembled, by the consent of nine states, shall, from time to time, think expedient to vest them with; provided, that no power be delegated to the said committee, for the exercise of which, by the articles of confederation, the voice of nine states, in the congress of the United States assembled, is requisite.

ART. 11. Canada acceding to this confederation, and joining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into and entitled to all the advantages of this Union; but no other colony shall be admitted into the same, unless such admission be agreed to by nine states.

ART. 12. All bills of credit emitted, moneys borrowed, and debts contracted by or under the authority of congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered as a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged.

ARTICLE I.

SECTION 1. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States, which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives.

SEC. 2. The house of representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states, and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every 30,000, but each state shall have at least one representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose 3; Massachusetts, 8; Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, 1; Connecticut, 5; New York, 6; New Jersey, 4; Pennsylvania, 8; Delaware, 1; Maryland, 6; Virginia, 10; North Carolina, 5; South Carolina, 5. Georgia, 3.

When vacancies happen in the representation from any state the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

*SEC. 3. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided, as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year; and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year. *When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the Senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

The vice president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

The senate shall choose their own officers, and also a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments.

When sitting for that purpose they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment; and punishment according to law.

SEC. 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meetings shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall, by law, appoint a different day.

SEC. 5. Each house shall be the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same; excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither house, during the session of congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

SEC. 7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the president of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.

Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States, and, before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the senate and house of representative, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular states and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the government of the United States; and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock yards, and other needful buildings; and

To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

SEC. 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight; but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

SEC. 10. No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

No state shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws; and the net produce of all duties and imposts laid by any state on imports or exports shall be for the use of the treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress.

No state shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another state or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.

SECTION 1. The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the vice president, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the Congress; but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.

[The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate. The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates; and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be appointed, if such a number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the house of representatives shall immediately choose, by ballot, one of them for president; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said house shall, in like manner, choose the president. But in choosing the president the vote shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. In every case after the choice of the president, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the vice president. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the senate shall choose from them, by ballot, the vice president.]*

No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution; shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president; and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed, or a president shall be elected.

The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected; and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

SEC. 2. The president shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices; and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur, and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law. But the Congress may, by law, vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the president alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

The president shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.

*The portion in brackets has been superseded by the 12th amendment.

SEC. 3. He shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them; and in case of disagreement between them with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers. In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

SEC. 3. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture, except during the life of the person attained.

The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution, but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

PRESIDENT PRO TEM.

5. The president shall call some member into the chair when the Senate goes into committee of the whole. MOTION TO ADJOURN.

23. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, and also a motion to adjourn to a time certain. The latter motion is debatable. When either motion is refused it shall not be renewed until further business shall be transacted.

It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present, and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate, and bring the Senate to a direct vote upon amendments reported by a committee, if any, then upon all pending amendments in their order and then upon the main question. On a motion for the previous question, and prior to the ordering of the same, a call of the Senate shall be in order, but after a majority shall have ordered such motion, no call shall be in order prior to the decision of the main question.

25. On a previous question there shall be no debate. All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

26. When a motion or question has been once put and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the prevailing party to move for reconsideration thereof, on the same day on which the vote was taken, or within the next two days of actual session of the Senate thereafter; and such motion shall take precedence of all other questions, except a motion to adjourn. A motion for reconsideration being put and lost, shall not be renewed.

DIVISION OF QUESTION.

27. Any member may call for a division of the question, when the same will admit of it. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed to be indivisible. A motion to strike out being lost shall not preclude an amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.

29. Every petition, memorial, remonstrance, resolution, bill and report of committee, shall be indorsed with its appropriate title, and immediately under the indorsement the name of the member presenting the same shall be written.

Then in the proper place, shall be inserted the words and characters constituting the new amending matter which shall be underscored, and when printed, put in italics. The words and characters to be eliminated by the amendment shall be stricken out by a line drawn through the eliminated matter, and when the bill is printed such eliminated matter shall be capitalized and inclosed in brackets. And, if reported identical, such Senate file may, by a majority vote, be substituted for the House file (the latter in such case being considered withdrawn) and shall take the place of the House file; provided, however, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered on the Journal.

Every member who shall be present before the vote is declared from the chair, shall vote for or against the matter before the House, unless the House shall excuse him, or unless he is immediately interested in the question, in which case he shall not vote.

34. Procedure in Excusing Member From Voting.

When a member declines to vote on a call of his name, he shall be required to assign his reasons therefor; and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the House, "Shall the member for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which shall be decided without debate. And these proceedings shall be had after the roll call and before the result is announced, and any further proceedings in reference thereto, shall be after such announcement.

35. Order During Session.

When the Speaker is putting the question, no member shall walk out of or across the House, nor when a member is speaking shall any other member entertain any private discourse or pass between the speaking member and the chair.

36. Order of Putting Question.

All questions, whether in committee or in the House, shall be put in the order in which they are moved, except in the case of privileged questions, and in filling up blanks the largest sum and the longest time shall be put first.

37. Division of a Question.

If the question in debate contains several points any member may have the said question divided. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost shall preclude neither amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.

38. Questions of Order.

If any member of the House in speaking or otherwise, transgress the rules, the Speaker shall (or any member may) call him to order, in which case he shall immediately sit down unless permitted on motion of another member to explain, and the House, if appealed to, shall decide in either case without debate. If the decision be in favor of the member called to order, he shall be at liberty to proceed, but not otherwise; and if the case require it, he shall be liable to censure or such punishment as the House may deem proper.

39. Called to Order for Offensive Words in Debate.

If any member be called to order for offensive words in debate the person calling him to order shall report the words excepted to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the clerk's desk and no member shall be held to answer, or be subject to the censure of the House, for language used in debate if any other member has spoken or other business has intervened after the words spoken and before exception to them shall have been taken.

40. Members May Demand Yeas and Nays.

The yeas and nays shall not be ordered unless demanded by ten members, except upon final passage of bills, joint resolutions, and motions directing the payment of money. In these cases yeas and nays shall be ordered without demand.

41. Notice of Intention to Debate.

Upon any member giving notice of his intention to debate any resolution, the same shall lie over one day without debate or any other action.

42. Call of the House.

Ten members may demand a call of the House and require absent members to be sent for; but a call of the House cannot be made after the voting has commenced, and such call being ordered, the doors shall be closed and no member permitted to leave the chamber until the call is suspended. And, pending the call, no motion shall be in order except it pertains to matters incidental to the call or motion to suspend further proceedings under the same, provided that the call shall not be suspended, until the calling of the roll has been completed. Thereafter the call may be suspended by majority vote of the entire House only when all members are present or at any time by a two-thirds vote of the entire House. After the call of the House has been ordered and proceedings thereunder are suspended, the Sergeant-at-Arms shall not permit any member to leave the chamber unless excused by the Speaker.

43. Suspension of Rules to Hasten a Bill.

Every bill shall be read on the three different days unless in case of urgency, two-thirds of the whole House deem it expedient to dispense with this rule; and no bill shall be passed until it shall have been read at length twice, provided that no motion for suspension of the rules to advance a bill for consideration out of its regular order shall be made or entertained unless presented to the Speaker in writing stating the present position of the bill and then only under the order of business "Motions and Resolutions," as such order of business is reached under Rule 3. Unanimous consent must be first obtained by the member making the motion before the Speaker can entertain the motion to suspend the rules at any other time.

44. Proceedings of the Passage of Bills.

No resolution involving the expenditure of money out of the legislative expense fund or otherwise, or joint resolution, shall be declared passed until voted for by a majority of all members elected to the House, to be determined by a roll call. All resolutions involving the expenditure of money out of the legislative expense fund shall be referred to the Rules Committee before being acted upon by the House. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of its being an amendment. No bill or resolution shall at any time be amended by annexing thereto or incorporating therein any other bill or resolution pending before the House.

45. Amendments to Appropriation Bills.

No amendment increasing the amount or amounts carried by any appropriation bill shall be declared passed until voted for by a majority of all members elected to the House.

46. Motion for Reconsideration.

When a question has once been made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the prevailing party to move for the reconsideration thereof; but no motion for the reconsideration of any vote shall be in order after a bill, resolution, message, report, amendment or motion upon which the vote was taken shall have gone out of the possession of the House, announcing their decision. Nor shall any motion for reconsideration be in order unless made on the same day upon which the vote was taken, or within the next two days of actual session of the House thereafter.

Such motion shall take precedence over all other questions, except the motion to adjourn; provided that when notice of the intention to move such reconsideration shall be given by such member, the Clerk of the House shall retain the said bill, resolution, message, report, amendment or motion until after the expiration of the time during which such motion can be made, as hereinbefore provided, unless the same is previously disposed of. A motion for reconsideration having been put and lost shall not be renewed.

47. The Motion to Rescind.

The motion to rescind shall not be in order at any time.

48. Authorized Manual of Parliamentary Practice.

The rules of parliamentary practice embraced in Roberts' Rules of Order shall govern the House in all cases where they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with the standing rules of the House and joint rules and orders of the Senate and House of Representatives.

If the committee fails to report, within three days, any member may at any time after the expiration of such three days, during the order of "Motions and Resolutions" demand the return forthwith to the House of the bill in question, which shall constitute the demand of the House, and the said bill shall at once be considered

PART II.

I.

HISTORY.

MINNESOTA.

Brief Historical Sketch of the North Star State.

The great and prosperous commonwealth now known as the State of Minnesota had earlier formed part of three great sovereignties: France, Spain and Great Britain. At different periods sections of it bore the names of the Northwest Territory, Louisiana, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, and finally "Minnesota," a name derived from two Sioux words meaning "sky-colored water," which was applied to its principal river.

The economic, political and institutional life of Minnesota can be traced back to the brilliant period of Louis XIV of France, and the French conquest of the territory furnishes one of the most fascinating chapters in American history. Whether this was effected by devoted priests under the direction of various religious orders or by intrepid adventurers encouraged in their undertakings by officials of the French government, makes little difference. The French were the pioneers in the development of the Northwest fur trade and it was the discovery of potential wealth in the large number of fur bearing animals in the territory that offered a promising field for white adventurous spirits from the settlements along the St. Lawrence river.

Thus it was that in the spring of 1655 traders, now indisputably identified as Medard Chouart, Sieur des Groseilliers, and Pierre Esprit Radisson, reached Minnesota, having crossed Wisconsin to the Mississippi river, and after more than a year's sojourn returned to Montréal laden with valuable pelts. They were the first white men to visit Minnesota, excepting a party from Scandinavia in the year 1362, made known by the Kensington rune stone, as narrated in Volume XV of the Minnesota Historical Society Collections.

Thereafter the possibilities of great wealth in the vast empire beyond the Great Lakes became known, and the commercial life of Minnesota may well be said to have commenced in the seventeenth century.

In 1679 Daniel Greysolon DuLhut (Duluth), a French officer, explored the region along the shores of Lake Superior and inland to Mille Lacs, where he held a council with the Indians. During the next summer he journeyed to the Mississippi river and there met Father Louis Hennepin, a missionary priest. Father Hennepin was on a voyage of discovery also, the object being to trace the source of the Mississippi. He reached the Falls of St. Anthony, the present site of the City of Minneapolis, in July, 1680.

The spirit of romance and adventure was ever present during this early period of Minnesota's history, in the latter part of the seventeenth century, but the aborigines did not always take kindly to the visitors. It was, therefore, a matter of self preservation that led to the erection by Nicholas Perrot of a fort on the shore of Lake Pepin in 1689, and of a similar means of defense by Pierre LeSueur, French explorer, on the Blue Earth river near its mouth, eleven years later.

When France lost her American dependencies in 1763, all that part of Minnesota east of the Mississippi river came under the control of Great Britain, and the result was that English trading enterprises began to supersede the French companies.

During the early years of this commercial warfare, there arrived in the territory Jonathan Carver, coming from Connecticut, who was the first "Yankee" to venture into the territory. With characteristic foresight, Carver established friendly relations with the Indians, and it is alleged that on May 1, 1767, he received a grant of land from the Sioux, including the present site of the city of St. Paul, but no government recognition of the grant, currently referred to as "Carver's Claim," has ever been obtained.

The battle for supremacy in the fur trade continued to occupy the attention of the French, British, and American companies, until the Northwest Company was organized in 1783, which ten to fifteen years later gained exclusive control of the trading region beyond the Great Lakes. This supremacy it practically maintained until 1808, when the American Fur Company came into existence. This latter company has been credited with being commercially and politically the greatest single force in the development of the territory of which Minnesota forms a part.

The section of this state west of the Mississippi had prior to 1803 been alternately possessed by Spain and France, but following the "Louisiana Purchase" in that year the southern and western area of Minnesota came under the jurisdiction of Missouri territory, and incidentally became a political division of the United States. In 1818 that part east of the Mississippi, which had been at first a section of the Northwest Territory and afterward successively of Indiana and Illinois, was included in Michigan Territory.

Geographers and scientific explorers were also taking an active interest in the territory, for in 1798 David Thompson traversed and mapped the Red Lake region, and the source of the Mississippi, later named Itasca lake, was visited in 1804 by William Morrison.

Two years after the Louisiana Purchase the Federal government sent an expedition here, commanded by Lieut. Zebulon M. Pike, who wintered near what is now Little Falls and visited the Indian trading posts which had been established at Leech and Cass Lakes.

Lieutenant Pike negotiated with the Sioux for the purchase of a tract of land extending from below the confluence of the Mississippi and St. Peter's (Minnesota) rivers, up the Mississippi to include the Falls of St. Anthony, extending nine miles on each side of the river. Another tract nine miles square at the mouth of the St. Croix river was included in the cession. In consideration of these grants the Government paid $2,000, the actual payment being made in the distribution of goods to the Indians by Major Forsyth in 1819; and in that year Fort St. Anthony, six years afterward renamed Fort Snelling, was located at the mouth of the Minnesota river.

Another Government expedition arrived in the territory in 1820, headed by General Lewis Cass, who then was governor of Michigan, which comprised all the territory between the Detroit river on the east and the Mississippi on the west. This expedition, coming by the way of Lake Superior, ascended the Mississippi river to Cass Lake, so named by the historian, Henry Schoolcraft, who accompanied it.

Three years later the country north and west of Fort St. Anthony was traversed by Major Stephen H. Long and a military escort. Italy was represented in this exploration but not officially, for with Major Long was Giacomo C. Beltrami, an Italian political exile. Beltrami left Long's expedition at Pembina and traveled alone, or with Indian companions, past Red Lake and down the Mississippi to the fort.

May 10, 1823, the first steamboat on the upper Mississippi, the little "Virginia," laden with supplies, picked its way slowly up the river to Fort St. Anthony, but almost a decade passed after the advent of soldiers at the fort before settlers began to arrive in any number.

Hon. Henry H. Sibley, afterward the first governor of the State of Minnesota, arrived at St. Peter's (Mendota) in 1834 from Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, as resident partner and manager of the American Fur Company; and the Anglo-Saxon influence, which had first manifested itself in the years following the treaty of Versailles in 1763, when the territory's allegiance was changed from France to England, began to take more definite shape.

The Sioux and Ojibway Indians had, up to the beginning of the nineteenth century, held the territory practically undisturbed, but the commercial spirit entered during this period, the Indians finding material advantage in many transactions with the fur traders. In exchange for peltries, they received guns, ammunition, blankets, calicoes, knives, tobacco and rum. Under this system of barter the traders were undoubtedly able to reap large profits, the Indians obtaining desired articles at the trading posts and being given credit according to their hunting and trapping ability.

The first permanent settlement of the present State of Minnesota followed as a result of treaties negotiated in 1837 with the Indians by Governor Dodge of Wisconsin at Fort Snelling, and by Joel R. Poinsett, a special commissioner, at Washington. By the first of these treaties the Ojibways ceded all their pine lands on the St. Croix and its tributaries, and by the Washington treaty the Dakota Indians ceded their lands east of the Mississippi and all its islands. The United States government thus gained possession of the land between the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers, south of a line drawn through the mouth of the Crow Wing river; and after the ratification of the treaties by Congress, in 1838, these lands were opened for settlement.

In the next few years small settlements were made at St. Paul, Mendota, Marine, and Dakota (Stillwater), at which latter place the "Stillwater Convention" was held August 26, 1848, whereby measures were adopted for separate territorial organization, and that the proposed new territory be named Minnesota. Henry H. Sibley was elected delegate to Congress, with the result that on March 3, 1849, the bill organizing Minnesota as an independent territory was passed. The territorial government was declared fully organized June 1, 1849, by Hon. Alexander Ramsey of St. Paul, who had been appointed governor.

With the creation of the territory of Minnesota, which extended to the Missouri river, a change took place in the industrial and commercial life of the people. The region was still mainly Indian country, and the magnificent opportunities for development brought negotiations with the tribal chiefs for approximately 24,000,000 acres of the finest agricultural land in the world, by the signing of the famous Traverse des Sioux and Mendota treaties. The first of these was signed July 23, 1851, in the presence of a large number of Sioux chiefs at a council presided over by Governor Ramsey, the United States government being represented by Hon. Luke Lea, Indian Commissioner; the second was negotiated at Mendota on the fifth of August. By the Traverse des Sioux treaty the chiefs ceded all the lands claimed by the Sisseton and Wahpeton bands of Sioux, east from the Bois des Sioux river and Lakes Traverse and Big Stone to the Mississippi, excepting a reservation about one hundred and thirty miles long by twenty wide, along the upper part of the Minnesota river and onward to Lake Traverse. The Indians, under the terms of the treaty, were to move within two years to the reservation; to receive from the Government, after removal, $275,000 to enable them to become established in their new domain; and $30,000 was to be expended in breaking land, establishing mills, and providing a manual labor school. They also were to receive an annuity of $68,000 for fifty years, payable $40,000 in cash, $10,000 in goods and provisions, a civilization fund of $12,000, and an education fund of $6,000.

By the Mendota treaty, which was signed by sixty-four chiefs of the Medawakanton and Wahpekuta bands of Sioux, all their lands in the territory of Minnesota and Iowa were ceded. In consideration for this the United States was to reserve for them a tract of an average width of ten miles on each side of the Minnesota river, between the Yellow Medicine river on the west and the Little Rock river on the east; to pay them $220,000, with which to settle debts and aid in their removal to the reservation; $30,000 to be used for the erection of buildings and opening farms; an annual civilization fund of $12,000; an annual education fund of $6,000; to provide $10,000 in goods and provisions annually, and $30,000 in cash. These annuities were to continue for fifty years. The treaties were ratified by Congress in June, 1852.

September 20, 1851, a treaty was effected by Governor Ramsey with the Red Lake and Pembina bands of Ojibways at Pembina, but it was not ratified by the Government. A second treaty with these Ojibway bands, by Governor Ramsey and Ashby C. Morrill, at a crossing of the Red Lake river near the later site of Crookston, on the second of October, 1863, was ratified by the United States Senate, March 1, 1864, and on May 5 President Lincoln by proclamation confirmed it. By this treaty 11,000,000 acres of land within and adjoining the Red river valley, in northwestern Minnesota and the present state of North Dakota, were added to the already large ceded tracts available for white settlement.

The United States census of 1850 showed that the white population of Minnesota numbered 6,077, but immigration increased rapidly after the negotiations and ratification of the Indian treaties, and by 1853 steamboats of the upper Mississippi and the Minnesota river trade carried capacity cargoes and passengers. Villages grew rapidly in the valley of the Minnesota, which was regarded as a veritable Eden, and farms appeared in all directions. A period of unprecedented immigration continued from 1853 to 1857, at which time the population of the territory was 150,037. During these years of prosperity Minnesota attracted the best class of men and women from the eastern states and from Europe. They were hardy frontiersmen indeed, with slender financial resources, a condition typical always of those who have been in the vanguard of settlement. As a class they were, in morality, education, and intelligence, far superior to the pioneers in many of the older territories. Many were farmers who came west in "prairie schooners," with their own stock. Southeastern Minnesota gained more from the incoming population than any other section, but the unusual success which attended the beginning of the lumber industry had its effect on every branch of trade and brought a rapid increase in the wealth of the newcomers.

The adventurous spirit, however, of many of the settlers led them to locate near the extreme limits of the land cessions and in immediate proximity to Indian settlements. Occasionally the younger Indians on hunting expeditions returned to the ceded lands in the southern section near the Iowa border. One band under the leadership of Inkpaduta, composed of about fifteen lodges, were particularly given to marauding. It was this band which caused the first serious trouble for the whites. Early in 1857 a few of these Indians hunting about forty miles south of Spirit Lake, Iowa, killed a dog belonging to a white settler. The owner of the dog assaulted one of the Indians, and then gathering a few neighbors went to the Indian camp and disarmed them. In revenge the Indians went to the white settlement at Spirit Lake, March 7, 1857, massacred the men, and took four women captives, two of whom were later rescued. Other settlements were attacked, including Springfield, on the later site of Jackson, Minnesota, and altogether forty-two settlers were killed. An expedition was dispatched by Hon. Charles E. Flandrau, the Indian agent, but all escaped across the prairies into the wilds of Dakota territory, except the eldest son of Inkpaduta who was killed in an attempt to capture him.

Prosperity of the years prior to 1857 resulted in a demand for an extensive railroad system, and for a state government for the territory; therefore Congress, on February 26, 1857, passed an act authorizing a constitutional convention and also granting lands in aid of public schools. In March of the same year, Congress enacted legislation making large grants of lands to railroad companies. But as the year 1857 advanced, financiers began to feel the effects of uncertain conditions in the East. Stringency in the money market caused business to be dull. Local bankers had little money for business loans, having invested heavily in real estate. The crash came August 27, when a telegram reached St. Paul, announcing the suspension of several eastern banking institutions. Within a week real estate transactions ceased; payments became slower, past due accounts began to accumulate; gold commanded a stiff premium and soon disappeared from general circulation, and money of any kind was scarce. Early in October St. Paul banks suspended specie payments, more banking firms went under, and instead of immigration an exodus from the territory had actually begun. Bankers held meetings and unsuccessfully urged Governor Samuel Medary to call an extra session of the territorial legislature. The Constitutional convention which had assembled at St. Paul July 13, acting on the demands of the people, incorporated into the fundamental laws of the proposed state the constitutional basis for a sounder financial policy, but it was not until after the Civil War that prosperity returned.

The proposed State Constitution also changed the western boundary of Minnesota, which heretofore had extended to the Missouri river. The Red River of the North, the Bois des Sioux river, and Lakes Traverse and Big Stone, with a line extending due south to the Iowa border, were the established western limits. The Constitution also provided for the election of state officers at the time of voting on the adoption of the Constitution. The first state legislature convened December 2, 1857, and continued in session until March 25, 1858, when a recess was taken, pending the admission of Minnesota to statehood by Congress. The act of admission was passed May 11, 1858, and the state's first governor, Henry H. Sibley, assumed office May 24. On June 3, the legislature having again assembled, Governor Sibley delivered his inaugural address and the state's law-making body continued in session until August 12, 1858, working diligently on financial and railroad legislation.

For securing the government land grant, a scheme was devised to aid companies willing to undertake the construction of railroads. This act came to be known as the "Five Million Loan Bill," under which the credit of the state could be loaned to that amount. It was proposed as an amendment to the constitution and was adopted by a large majority. There always was much opposition to the measure, however, and when the State Supreme Court later ruled that the constitutional provision did not require the railroads to give the state a prior lien on their property, the railroad bonds depreciated in value. Eastern financiers refused to buy the bonds, and finally the entire scheme collapsed, with the foreclosure of the mortgages which the state had taken upon railroad franchises and lands. The result was the abandonment of railroad construction temporarily. The total amount of bonds issued was $2,275,000, and by foreclosing the state acquired about 250 miles of graded road, the franchises and the lands, amounting to about five million acres indemnity.

Minnesota struggled desperately, in the period from 1858 to 1863, to overcome the financial disasters of 1857 and to regain the prosperity which, a few years before, had seemed the State's natural heritage. Abundant crops of 1859 and 1860 restocked the granaries, and it was hoped that the difficulties would be overcome. But the presidential campaign served only to develop the disturbing situation throughout the country, followed by the Civil War commencing in April, 1861, in which the young state not only contributed her full quota of men for the preservation of the Union, but also was forced to fight for her own existence through the worst Indian uprising ever witnessed in America.

Governor Alexander Ramsey was at Washington on the twelfth of April, 1861, when Fort Sumter was fired upon, and war, which so long had been a probability, became a reality. He hastened at once to the war department and offered one thousand men from Minnesota, the first tender of troops from any quarter after the attack on the Charleston fortress. On April 15th President Lincoln's war proclamation was published, and on the 16th Ignatius Donnelly, acting governor, issued a call for the first regiment of Minnesota volunteers, which was assembled and organized at Fort Snelling with amazing rapidity. Before Lee surrendered at Appomattox, thus ending the War of the Rebellion, Minnesota had furnished a total of 22,016 troops.

The war, calling so many able-bodied men from the State, left the frontiers almost defenseless. Although the Indians had more or less complaint to make regarding extortions practiced on them by post traders, no serious outbreak occurred during the first year and four months of the Civil War. They were, however, becoming more and more restless and coming off their reservations at increasingly recurring intervals.

A sentiment had grown among the whites that the Indians should adopt modes of civilization, that their splendid agricultural lands should not be left idle. Therefore the head chiefs were induced to go to Washington in 1858, in charge of Hon. Joseph R. Brown, for the purpose of negotiating for the transfer of the whole, or part, of the twenty-mile strip along the upper valley of the Minnesota river, which had been reserved for them by the treaties of 1851. The transfer was made and the ten-mile strip on the north side of the river was relinquished to the Government for an agreed price of $140,000. The Government also provided that every head of a family, or single person over 21, adopting civilization, should receive in fee eighty acres of land. When, however, for some cause, the payments were not made and no money was divided, on account of the relinquishment, the more hostile Indians became rebellious. Internal strife arose and was augmented from time to time by the withdrawal of families who were willing to sever tribal relations and accept the civilization fund provided in the treaties. These were, however, annuity Indians and had a right to be heard in councils. They numbered about six thousand two hundred and received an annual cash payment from the Government of about fifteen dollars each. They were treated as wards of the Government and handled little or no actual cash, agencies having been established, around which gathered storekeepers who sold goods to the Indians in anticipation of the annual payments.

The discontent increased, however, and the hostile feeling against the whites, intensified by injustices which crept in with the dealings at the agency stores, culminated in the great massacre of 1862.

On Sunday, August 17, six young Indian hunters attacked two families of white settlers in the township of Acton, twelve miles west of the later site of Litchfield, killing three men and two women. They hurriedly returned to their villages on the Sioux reservation, at the south side of the Minnesota river, and reported what they had done. The Indians, after consultation, decided to stand by their fellows, and on the next day there was a general uprising by the entire Sioux bands. Their movements were so swift that before effective resistance could be brought, nearly four hundred men, women and children were massacred within a few days.

The number was even estimated to be about 800, and has been commonly so reported in histories and in many editions of this manual; but recent reliable search of all available records, by Marion P. Satterlee, published in Volume 2 of Dr. Folwell's History of Minnesota, gives only 360 killed during the massacre in 1862, and twenty-one murdered by Sioux marauders in the state within the next three years. To these should be added sixty-one soldiers and twenty-nine citizen volunteers killed in Minnesota during the campaign against the Sioux in 1862, five others within the next three years, and thirty-one soldiers in Dakota during the expeditions of 1863 and 1864. Five hundred and seven white people are thus known to have been killed in the Sioux massacre and war, including ninety-seven men in the army service.

State and national authorities took prompt action, and a detachment of volunteers, under command of General Sibley, aided by Union troops, met the savages near Wood Lake, on September 23, overwhelmed them, and three days afterward released 269 women and children, who had been taken captive. The Indians captured were given a trial, and 303 were adjudged guilty of murder and rape and condemned to death by a military court martial. A reprieve by President Lincoln saved all but thirty-eight of the most prominent, who were hanged at Mankato on the 26th of December, 1862. Many of the Indians who escaped capture fled into Dakota, but two expeditions were sent after them, and in 1864 the final chapter of the Sioux outbreak was written, when the Indians surrendered their ponies and arms to the Government.

Settlers, who had lost property through the Indian raids, were compensated to the amount of $1,370,374, following an investigation by a commission appointed by the Government. This money was taken from the trust fund, which had been created for the Indians under the treaties of 1851, and which amounted, at that time, to $2,520,000. With the payments of the claims to settlers by act of congress, further annuities to the Indians were stopped.

Despite the drain of war upon the male population of the State, an increased acreage was sown during this period; and, with the beginning of Scandinavian immigration into Minnesota, the outlook appeared brighter for its future.

At the close of the Civil War, in 1865, with the return of the soldiers, and with no further outbreaks by Indians, a new era of prosperity loomed. New railroad companies had been granted charters on the road-beds taken in the foreclosure proceedings of 1858, and during the next five years the population increased to 439,706. The Government was making large expenditures for war claims, war bounties, payments to discharged soldiers, and the payment of other bills, which made money plentiful. Agriculture was given a great impetus by the steady influx of immigration, most notably from northern European countries, and in 1875 Minnesota's population was 597,407. An effort was made, during this era of prosperity, to meet the obligation of the dishonored railroad bonds; but it was not until 1881, at an extra session of the legislature, that an act was passed authorizing final adjustment on the basis of 50 per cent, payments to be made from the proceeds of 500,000 acres of internal improvement lands.

The million population mark was passed by the State between 1880, when the national census was 780,773, and 1885, when the figures of the state census were 1,117,798. The development of Dakota subsequent to 1885, and the breaking up of virgin soil in that territory, doubled the wheat yield of the Northwest; and the Minnesota farmer turned his attention more to diversified activities, with especial reference to dairying.

In 1890 the United States census gave Minnesota credit for 1,301,826 inhabitants, and in 1895 the state census showed a population of 1,574,619.

In April, 1898, the United States declared war on Spain, and Minnesota, following the example shown in the Civil War, was the first to respond to the call for troops, and furnished four regiments. They were designated the Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth. The first three were mustered into service at St. Paul, May 6-8, after being mobilized April 29. The Fifteenth Regiment was mustered into service July 18. A total of 5,315 officers and men were furnished by this state.

At the beginning of the present century Minnesota's population was 1,751,394; the state enumeration taken in 1905 showed 1,979,912; and the federal census in 1910 was 2,075,708, and in 1920 it was 2,387,125.

During the four years and three months from August, 1914, to November, 1918, the world was in a turmoil, and although President Wilson did not declare war on Germany until April 7, 1917, Minnesota troops had been in active service through a year prior to that date on the Mexican border.

For better enabling this state to do its share in the World War, the legislature of 1917 passed an act creating the Commission of Public Safety, to be composed of seven members, including the Governor and Attorney General, and appropriated $1,000,000 for its use. This commission had almost unlimited powers, and continued in existence for many months after the war ended. One of the first acts of the commission was to create the Minnesota Home Guard, comprising volunteers in practically every city and town in the State, and approximately 20,000 men became members. It also adopted and enforced other orders, notably the closing of saloons in certain sections of the State, and aided the Government in its "work or fight order," as well as by establishing standard minimum prices to be charged for commodities. In addition to these activities, the State co-operated fully with the National Government in bringing to bear every natural resource, including the output of the mines and forests.

DESCRIPTIVE

NAME.

This state derives its name from the river called "Minisota" by the Dakotas, pronounced "Min-nee-sotah" (Mini, water; sotah, whitishly clouded, sky-colored). For correct pronunciation, the convention held at Stillwater in 1848, to secure a territorial organization, instructed their delegates that the name of the Territory be written Minnesota.

GEOGRAPHY.

Minnesota includes the geographic center of North America. The state is bounded on the south by Iowa, on the west by South and North Dakota, on the north by Manitoba and Ontario, and on the east by Wisconsin. It extends from latitude 43 degrees 30 minutes to 49 degrees 23 minutes, and from 89 degrees 29 minutes to 97 degrees 13 minutes west longitude. It is about 406 miles long, and from its most eastern point to the extreme western point about 358 miles wide. In a foot-note on article 2 of the State constitution, the boundaries are fully defined, with explanation of the part projecting twenty-six miles north beyond the forty-ninth parallel, at the west side of the Lake of the Woods.

AREA.

In area Minnesota is the eleventh state of the Union. It contains 84,286.53 square miles, or 53,943,379 acres, of which 5,637 square miles, or 3,607,680 acres, are water. The headwaters of three great river systems are found in its limits, those of streams flowing northward to Hudson bay, eastward to the Atlantic ocean, and southward to the Gulf of Mexico. About a third of this surface, on the south and west, consists of rolling prairie. The district north and west of Lake Superior has rich iron ore ranges. On the northwest border of this state, reaching also west into North Dakota and north into Manitoba, is the very fertile and broad Red river valley, formerly the bed of the Glacial Lake Agassiz, famed for its great harvests of wheat. This ancient lake, also its large Beltrami island, are shown by the map on page 222.

RIVERS.

Few states are so well watered as Minnesota. Its navigable rivers are the Mississippi, the Minnesota, the St. Croix, the Rainy river, the St. Louis, the Red River of the North, and the Red Lake river, all of which, near their sources, have valuable water powers. Smaller streams include the Rum river and Snake river, the Cannon, Zumbro and Root rivers, the Vermilion, Crow Wing, Sauk and Elk rivers, the Blue Earth, Le Sueur, Des Moines, Cottonwood and Chipewewa rivers.

LAKES.

Minnesota has about ten thousand lakes, the largest of which is Red Lake, with an area of 440 square miles, in the central northern part of the State. On the same northern slope, in St. Louis county, is the beautiful Vermilion lake. Adjoining the northeast part of the State for one hundred and fifty miles, the waters of the great Lake Superior wash its shores. On the southward slope of the State is Itasca lake, the source of the Mississippi, with Bemidji and Cass lakes, Lake Winnebagoishish, Leech Lake, and a multitude of others, all adding volume to the water of the Mississippi, eventually flowing into the Gulf of Mexico. There we have also Mille Lacs, about 200 square miles in area, the source of Rum river. The picturesque Lake Minnetonka, White Bear, Bald Eagle, the Chisago lakes, and very many more, have been much utilized as summer resorts. The northeastern and southwestern sections, likewise, have many lakes to attract the summer visitor.

ELEVATION.

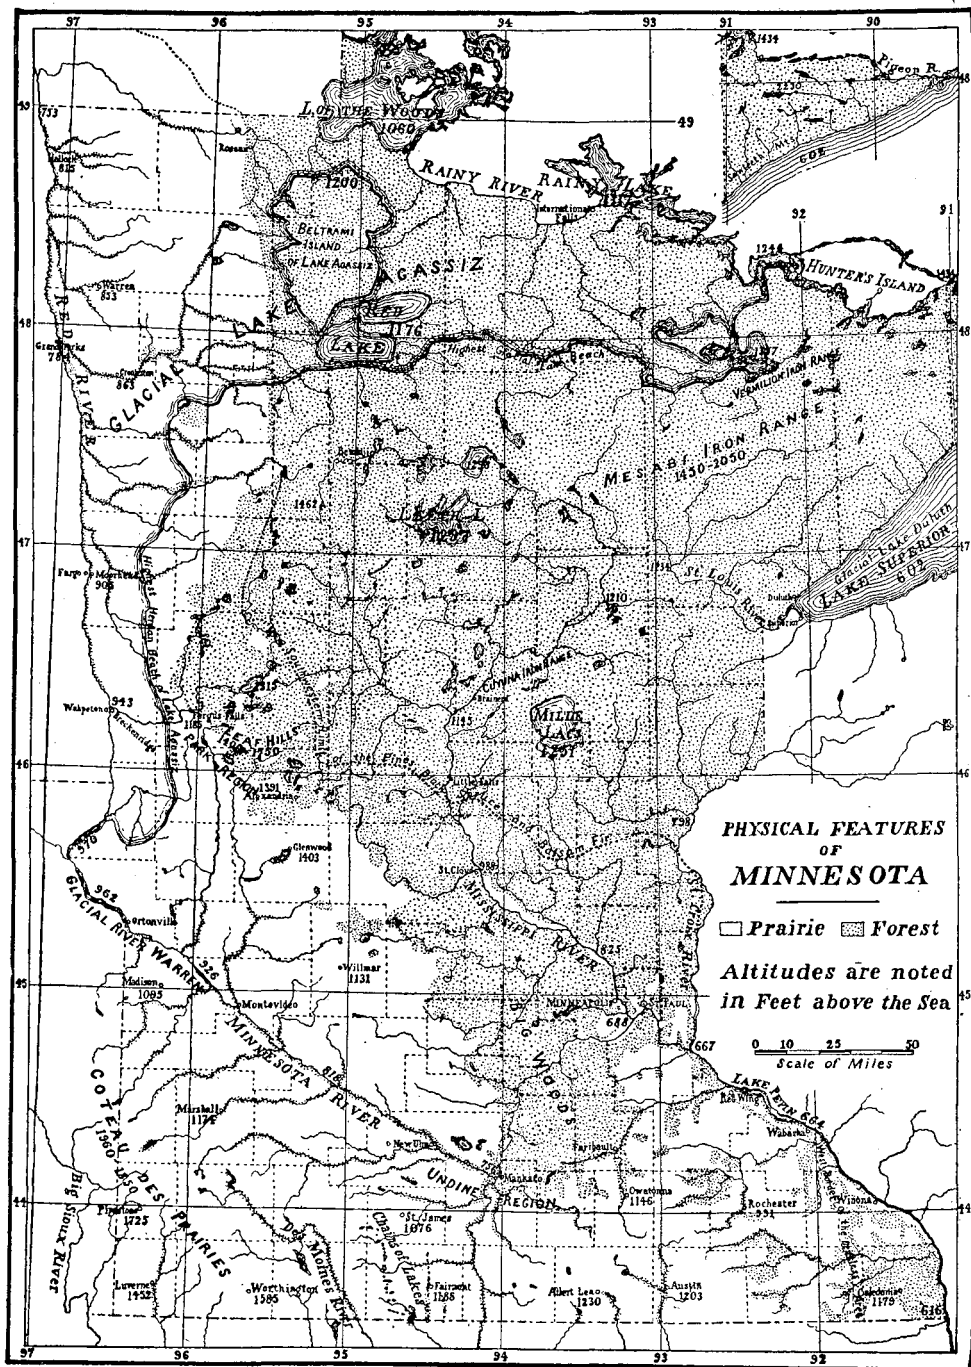

The shore of Lake Superior is the lowest land in the State, 602 feet above sea level. The waters of the northeastern part of the State south of the Mesabi iron range, flow into Lake Superior, and are carried east to the Atlantic ocean. The Mississippi river, having its chief source in Lake Itasca, at 1,462 feet elevation, leaves the State at 620 feet above sea level.

The Red River of the North, beginning near Itasca, at a height of 1,500 feet above the ocean, leaves the State at an elevation of 750 feet. The average altitude of the State is about 1,250 feet. The highest elevations are the tops of the Misquah hills, near the center of Cook county, which rise about 1,630 feet above Lake Superior, or 2,230 feet above the sea.

CLIMATE.

Recorded observations through long series of years show that Minnesota has an annual mean temperature of 44 degrees, and its mean summer temperature is about 70 degrees, like that of middle Illinois, Ohio, and southern Pennsylvania. The high latitude gives longer days in summer than in states farther south, and during the middle part of the growing season there are two and a half hours more of sunshine than in the latitude of Cincinnati. The winters are not severe, and the rainfall during the summer is usually abundant.

Through all the eighty-seven years since considerable agricultural settlements were first made within the area of this State, its temperature and rainfall, though showing marked contrasts in different years, have always been so favorable for farming that there has been no instance of failure to secure at least a generally remunerative harvest, while most of the years have yielded very abundantly.

Minnesota, "land of sky-blue waters," with thousands of clear lakes set in virgin pine and other great forests and noted for scenic beauties, is developing rapidly as a recreation state. Every summer brings increases in the numbers of tourists and vacationists from virtually all parts of the country to enjoy Minnesota's playground attractions.

Minnesota forests, counted an important asset, stretch over hundreds of thousands of acres and are unbroken save where lakes or hogbacks split the areas. They abound with wild life which with the fish found in the lakes attract thousands of sportsmen.

For the small boy who bobs for perch or sunfish in the shallow lake waters, or for the scientific angler who drops deep for pike or casts for the great muscallonge, bass or other game fish, there is sport galore. The black bass specialist finds good sport in the lakes in the southern and north central sections. Streams and lakes in the northeastern part abound in speckled and lake trout. Pike, crappies, sunfish and other varieties can be pulled out of the waters almost anywhere in Minnesota. Extensive commercial fisheries are located on the larger lakes in the north.

Big game is plentiful in northern districts; duck shooting is good on most lakes and marshes and every season in Minnesota furnishes sport for the man with gun or rod.

Accommodations ranging from modern hotels to mere hunting lodges and fishing camps, and including summer cottages and log cabins, are located less than a day's ride apart. Good roads are equipped with signposts to guide tourists and thousands find motoring in Minnesota a pleasure in the summer and fall months. Maps of roads, canoe routes and other like literature are easily procurable.

The state auditor and Highway Department has been engaged for years in exploiting Minnesota's recreational advantages. It is continuing the work and has been joined by the Minnesota Ten Thousand Lakes Association. All are ready to assist tourists and vacation parties to make their visits to Minnesota resorts most enjoyable.

Minnesota now has a number of state parks, acquired for their peculiar attractions and historical value, being improved and made available for recreational purposes, and there are also important federal reserves within its borders.

Itasca State Park of 32,000 acres of forest and lake area in the famous Lake Park region, has many kinds of fish, a herd of elk, colonies of beaver and much other wild life; embraces the headwaters of the Mississippi river; is noted for Douglas lodge, built from pine logs and offering ideal conditions for a healthful outing, and was established by the Legislature of 1891 and since has been enlarged by federal grants and acquisitions by the state. C. M. Roberts, superintendent.

Burntside Forest, a 20,000 acre tract of rocky, non-agricultural land containing 43 connected lakes and located 10 miles from Ely, near Burntside Lake, in a region famed for big game and good fishing, was granted to the state by an act of Congress, April 28, 1904, for tree propagation and playground purposes.

Pillsbury Forest, located in Cass county and near Gull Lake, comprises 1,000 acres of cut-over, non-agricultural land, donated in 1899 by the estate of the late John S. Pillsbury, and now is being replanted to Norway and white pine by the state forest service.

Interstate Park at the Dalles of the St. Croix, a tract of 150 acres at Taylors Falls, is opposite a 6,000-acre Wisconsin state park, with which it shares the scenic grandeur of a chasm with cliffs from 75 to 150 feet high through which flows the St. Croix River. It was set aside by the Legislature of 1895. Charles M. Truesdell is superintendent.

Minneopa State Park is a 60-acre tract four miles west of Mankato, with two waterfalls only a few rods apart over which the creek water drops 60 feet into a gorge surrounded by high hills. The name is the Indian word for "two falls," and to them are attached many Indian legends, the names of great Indian chiefs, pow-wows and the romantic wooing of the Indian maid. Established by the Legislature of 1905. John W. Ellis is superintendent.

Alexander Ramsey State Park, at the junction of Ramsey creek with the Redwood river, is at Redwood Falls. With winding streams and magnificent falls, it is one of the prettiest state reservations. It was named after Alexander Ramsey, first governor of the territory and second governor of the state of Minnesota. The park is surrounded by points of interest connected with the Indian outbreak of 1862.

Fort Ridgely State Park, in Nicollet county, 20 miles southeast of Alexander Ramsey Park and on the field of the first engagement of the 1862 Indian uprising. Between here and Alexander Ramsey Park is located the stone building which was the agency post and most important structure of frontier days and nearby are the sites of the early trading points, the Indian stone church, Birch Coulee battlefield, Brown's castle and several others marked by monuments.

The Fort Ridgely monument, built of granite and bronze, with a legislative appropriation of $3,500, was dedicated Aug. 22, 1896, on the 34th anniversary of the defense of the fort against the Sioux. On the shaft, 12 feet square at the base and 42 feet high, is inscribed an account of the siege and attack with a list of the garrison of soldiers, the armed citizens, and the women who aided in the defense.

In the Fort Ridgely cemetery is a monument 16 feet high, dedicated August 20, 1914, as a memorial to an Ojibway chief of the Mille Lacs band, Mou-zoo-mau-nee, who with other Ojibways persuaded that tribe of Northern Minnesota from joining the Sioux outbreak and massacre in 1862, and a monument to John S. Marsh and his party who were nearly annihilated at the lower agency.

Camp Release State Park is located one mile southwest of Montevideo, in Lac qui Parle county. In it is located a granite monument, fifty-one feet high, dedicated July 4, 1894, and commemorating the release September 26, 1862, of 269 prisoners, mostly women and children, from captivity among the Sioux Indians.

Traverse Des Sioux State Park is situated near a ford of the Minnesota river, whence Traverse village and township in Nicollet county also were named, and where a treaty with the Dakotas or Sioux was made in 1841 by Governor James D. Doty, of Wisconsin, but failed of ratification in the United States Senate. Ten years later, on July 23, 1851, a treaty with the Wahpeton and Sisseton Sioux of the Minnesota Valley was concluded here by Governor Ramsey and Colonel Luke Lea, whereby the Indians ceded to the United States for white settlement, the greater part of their lands in southern Minnesota. This treaty with changes was duly proclaimed February 24, 1853, by President Fillmore. The park contains a commemorative tablet of bronze erected in 1914 by Captain Richard Somers chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, St. Peter. The signing of the treaty is depicted in a painting by Frank D. Millet, displayed in the governor's reception room at the capitol.

Sibley State Park, one of the newer state acquisitions, embraces about 355 acres located north of Lake Andrew, Kandiyohi county, and in the Monongalia game refuge. It is one of the most beautiful and picturesque places in the state. Virgin hardwood forests clothe the rugged moraines, including "Mount Tom," on which a tall flagstaff has been erected. The legislature of 1919 appropriated $25,000 for the purchase of the property. The park was named in honor of the late Governor H. H. Sibley, who found much pleasure in hunting and fishing in the district and frequently referred to it in his writings.

Horace Austin State Park is located at Austin and named in honor of the sixth governor of Minnesota. It consists of 50 acres on the Red Cedar river and includes a number of deeply wooded islands. The park marks the historical site where camped Companies B, H and I, of the First U. S. Dragoons in 1835. The following year it was visited by a party of hunters from Fort Snelling, headed by Major Laurence Taliaferro and Dr. John Emerson, with whom was a slave, Dred Scott, who later became famous through the "Dred Scott" decision. In 1846, H. H. Sibley, Alexander Fari-bault, W. H. Forbes, John C. Fremont and a party of Sioux Indians camped here and in 1841 Sibley, as agent for the American Fur Company, with Sioux Indians camped on the site and spent the winter trapping and hunting. Sibley's diary shows they got 2,000 deer, 50 elk, 50 bears and a few buffalo.

Jay Cooke State Park is in Carlton county. More than 3,200 acres have been secured through gifts and purchase. It is a remarkably beautiful place near Duluth. F. R. Paine is the superintendent.

Toqua Lakes State Park in Graceville has been platted and a landscape architect has prepared a plan for bringing out the natural beauties of the site. The Legislature of 1917 designated the governor, state auditor, secretary of state and R. A. Costello, of Graceville, a commission to acquire the park property, and voted an appropriation which was vetoed by the governor. The Legislature of 1919 appropriated $5,000 for the same purpose and the project was advanced. Parcels were given by the Keating and Hickey estates, and others acquired, and the boulevard is named "Keating" and a tract is called "Hickey Park" in honor of the donors.

Whitewater State Park, established by the Legislature of 1919, is in Elbo township, Winona county. An appropriation of $10,000 for acquisition and expenses was made and the commission was made up of the governor, state auditor and A. C. Gooding, of Rochester. The name is a translation of the Dakota or Sioux name, "Mini-ska."

Sleepy Eye Lake State Park was created by the Legislature of 1921 by merely taking over the Sleepy Eye City park property within the city limits, which park property fronts on Lake Sleepy Eye. The park comprises only a few acres, but has been well equipped.

Scenic State Park was authorized by the 1921 Legislature and is located well to the north in Itasca county. In the park is included most of the shore line of two lakes—Sanwick and Coon—and about half of the shore line and park property is on state-owned lands.

Birch Coulee Monument, near Morton, is not a state park in reality, but is the site of two large, impressive monuments to commemorate one of the greatest battles of the Sioux Uprising of 1862, in which hundreds of white settlers in Minnesota lost their lives.

Garvin Heights Park is a beautiful tract of land of about 12 acres situated on the high bluffs south of Winona Lake and is the nucleus of a high line drive and park affording a wonderful view of Winona and surrounding country. This was donated to the State by Hon. H. C. Garvin, of Winona, and has cost the State nothing.

John Latsch Park. This is a tract of land containing about 600 acres near the town of Minneiska and about 10 miles northwest of Winona on State Highway No. 3 and bordering on the Mississippi River. This is a magnificent tract of land and will prove to be a valuable addition to the State Park system. This was donated by the Hon. John Latsch, of Winona, and cost the State nothing.

Bemidji State Park on Lake Bemidji, Beltrami county, is a tract of forest land containing 421 acres and was recently purchased by act of the Legislature of 1923, appropriating $45,000 for the purpose.

Pillsbury Forest, a tract of approximately 1,000 acres in Cass county, southwest of Gull Lake, donated by the Pillsbury Estate. No expense to the State. No improvements yet made.

Pipestone State Park, so-called, is a tract of 22 acres in the famous Pipestone Indian Reservation in Pipestone county, Minnesota, which Congress will be asked to set aside for a park to perpetuate the historical points therein contained.

REFORESTATION

Forestry or timber growing is a business and occupation that is here to stay and must be so recognized. Public sentiment towards forestry, forest protection and timber production has had a greater impetus the last two years than has obtained in any equal length of time in this country. Timber manufacturers, with the assistance of Forest Service laboratories and research, have revolutionized both the utilization of forest products and the methods of manufacture. Although wood substitutes are being developed, more new and important uses for wood itself are coming in daily. We need no longer look to Europe for demonstration of successful reforestation and timber growing projects, since we have in our own Eastern and Southern States, many plantations of trees twenty-five to fifty years old which were established purely for timber production and which have been continuously managed for that purpose with gratifying results.

However, there must be moulded in the public mind a better sentiment and sympathy for the protection of privately owned timber, particularly as against trespass, fire and unjust taxation.

The forests and forest lands of Minnesota need no public subsidies, but do need a fair chance to expand and produce. Minnesota forests are fortunately situated as to location. Minnesota has substantial industries and capital enough to consume the major portion of raw products both from the farm woodlot and the big forests; it has a large agricultural region within its own borders that needs the products of the woods; it has the vast prairie regions of adjoining states as a market for surplus timber products and which form a strong barrier between Minnesota timber and that manufactured from the forests of the West and South. The citizens, labor and the many manufacturing interests of the State should unite at this time in a program of greater forest protection and production.

III.

EXECUTIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE.

THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

OFFICERS IN 1925

Hon. Theodore Christianson, Dawson—Governor.
Hon. W. I. Nolan, Minneapolis—Lieutenant Governor.
Hon. Mike Holm, Roseau—Secretary of State.
Hon. Ray P. Chase, Anoka—State Auditor.
Hon. Henry Rines, Mora, State Treasurer.
Hon. Clifford L. Hilton, Fergus Falls—Attorney General.

The constitution of the state provides that these officers shall be elected for two years, except the state auditor, whose term of office is for four years. They constitute the executive department.

The Governor. The duties of the governor are prescribed by the constitution and the laws of the state. The office assistants of the governor are a private secretary, executive clerk, two stenographers and executive messenger. Connected with the executive office is the appointment of notaries public.

The Lieutenant Governor is ex-officio president of the senate, and has no other duties to perform, except in a protracted absence of the governor from the state he may be called to act. In case of vacancy in the office he becomes governor during said vacancy.

The Secretary of State is the recording officer of the state and the official custodian of official papers. All the private and public corporations of the state are recorded, and the official bonds of all state and county officers are filed in this office. He is the custodian of all the volumes of laws and journals and all the legislative records of whatever nature as well as the United States government surveys of Minnesota, recently turned over to the state. The whole machinery of state elections and the final canvassing of votes is carried forward in his office. The preparation of the volumes of law for publication is part of his duty, and the care and disposition of all printed executive documents of the state. His office is the place of registration of motor vehicles. For the general purposes of the office, the clerical force is an assistant secretary, a chief clerk, one record clerk, a clerk of government surveys, a document clerk, a general clerk, a motor vehicle license force and other employees.

The State Auditor has charge of two departments of the government, the auditing department and the land department. The auditing department is to keep a record of all public accounts, audit all claims presented, and issue warrants in payment. He has charge of the tax law, makes all the drafts for state taxes, and keeps an account of the same, and is required to make a detailed and exhaustive report of the affairs of his office to the legislature.

The duties of the land department are the care and sale of school, university, agricultural, college and swamp lands; the leasing of mineral lands; and the making out and record of all deeds and conveyances for the disposition of lands, besides keeping a classified account of all money transactions connected with these lands. He has supervision of the state parks.

The Treasurer is the receiving and disbursing officer of the state. His duties are defined by law to keep an accurate account of the receipts and disbursements of the treasury, specifying the names of persons from whom received, to whom paid, on what account the same is received and paid out, and the time of such receipt and payment. For all payments into the state treasury by county treasurers he issues two receipts, one to the treasurer and the other to the county auditor.

The Attorney General is the legal adviser of all the departments of state and counsel for the state or departments in all suits at law; prosecutes all official bonds of delinquent officers; prepares all forms of contracts; receives reports of criminal actions in all the counties of the state from the county attorneys, and makes a biennial report to the legislature. His staff is made up of a deputy attorney general, under a 1917 act, and a number of regular and special assistants.

ADMINISTRATIVE.

The Department of Public Examiner was created in 1878. The public examiner is appointed by the governor for the term of three years. It is required that he shall be a skillful accountant. The duties of this officer, being of a fiduciary character, his bonds were fixed at $25,000. The law gives him almost unlimited power in the examination of the accounts of public officers, state, county, city, village and school district and the prescribing of systems of accounting. He also examines railroad, express, sleeping-car and telephone companies on their earnings returns for taxation purposes. The law providing for the department of public examiner was re-enacted in 1913 with important amendments.

The Insurance Department was organized in 1872. The department has supervision of all classes of insurance companies, doing business in the state. The commissioner is required to examine each domestic company at least once in two years, and he may examine foreign companies whenever in his opinion such examination is necessary. By the provisions of a law passed in 1913 the commissioner is given authority to pass upon securities issued by insurance companies doing business in this state.

Department of Banking. By an act of the 1909 legislature the visitation of state banks, etc., was divorced from the public examiner's office, and a new department under the above caption created. By the act the superintendent of banks, or his deputies, is given authority to visit each of the banking, savings and other moneyed corporations created under the laws of this state, and thoroughly examine into their affairs and ascertain their financial condition at least twice in each year. His term is for three years.

The Dairy and Food Department is charged with the enforcement of the dairy and food laws, also special laws regulating the manufacture and sale of feeds for domestic animals, the sale of commercial fertilizers, the sale of cigarettes and prohibiting fraudulent advertising. Its aim is to prevent fraud and deception in the manufacture of food and drinks and of feeds for domestic animals. The commissioner and inspectors have access to all places where foods are manufactured, stored or kept for sale and is authorized to take all proper educational measures to foster and promote the manufacture and sale of pure food products.

The state oil inspection division in 1919 was placed in the dairy and food department. The act authorized the commissioner, with the approval of the governor, to appoint a chief oil inspector and extended the latter's term of office to four years from two years.

The Fire Marshal Department was established by the Legislature of 1905 to enforce laws relating to fire prevention, storage, sale and use of combustibles and explosives; adequacy of exits in buildings in which people congregate; to investigate fires of a suspicious nature and prosecute arson cases; and to compile statistics on the origins and circumstances of fires and resulting losses of life and property. The law was revised in 1913, the governor being authorized to appoint the fire marshal and first assistant. An effort to consolidate the fire marshal's office with the department of insurance failed in the 1917 session, but was practically effected by the governor. A 1919 revision provides that the fire marshal shall be appointed by the commissioner of insurance.

Hotel Inspection. All hotels, restaurants, boarding houses, lodging houses and places of refreshment in Minnesota are subject to inspection and licensing by the state hotel inspector, under a 1919 revision of the law creating that office. The inspector is appointed by the governor for a two-year term. He is required to inspect places under his regulation at least once a year and may enforce sanitary and other regulations relating to such places. License fees—$3.50 each—are turned into the state treasury and the inspector and his assistants receive salaries.

Apiary Inspection. An inspector of apiaries at a salary of $1,500 a year and such deputies as may be required, to be paid $5 a day, but not more than $500 in all in any one year, are provided for in Chap. 311, Laws 1911. The inspector has charge of the work of the suppression of contagious diseases among bees and is given large powers along that line.

State Library. The state library was originally established by an act of Congress creating the Territory of Minnesota in 1849. It is under the general supervision of the supreme court, and, though the scope of the library is not fixed by law, it has in fact been built up as a law and legislative reference library. It contains a fairly comprehensive collection of books of law, American, English, Canadian and Colonial. It also contains collections of Minnesota public documents and documents of other states and of the United States. It contains approximately 90,000 volumes. The state librarian is appointed by the governor for a term of two years.

The Department of Agriculture was created by the Legislature of 1919. It is in charge of a commissioner, appointed by the governor for a four-year term, and given a deputy and such other assistants as may be required. The duties of this department consist largely of regulatory work in connection with the agencies handling Minnesota farm products, the administration of the co-operate law, and the organization of co-operative marketing associations. It also administers the cold storage law. Agricultural statistics are collected, and it has power to establish grades for certain farm products. In co-operation with the federal bureau of markets it issues market reports and crop estimates, and in general encourages agricultural development in Minnesota. Under a special act it has conducted investigations relative to costs and trade practices in the necessities of life, issuing reports and recommendations relative to its findings. It has charge of weed inspection work.

COMMISSIONS AND BOARDS.

Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission is a state department exercising supervision over the rates and service of steam railroads, city street railways, suburban electric lines, express and telephone companies, also over weights and measures, grain inspection and weighing, commission merchants of grain and agricultural products, warehousemen in cities of the first class (other than grain and cold storage warehousemen), and public stock yards. The board is made up of three elective commissioners and its various departments have several hundred employees.

The first Minnesota legislation for the regulation of railroads was an act approved March 4, 1871, providing for a railroad commissioner to be appointed by the governor at a salary of $3,000 per annum for a two-year term. Governor Austin appointed A. J. Edgerton, who served until March, 1875. The first statute was superceded by an act of March 6, 1874, creating a board of three commissioners, appointive by the governor for two-year terms and vested with broader powers. In 1875 the office was made elective with only one commissioner, but on March 5, 1885, the three-member commission appointive by the governor was restored and continued until 1899. The commission was made elective again in 1900 and in November 1899, Ira B. Mills, Joseph G. Miller and Charles F. Staples were elected to the offices. Eli S. Warner, first secretary, served from 1885 to 1888, inclusive; was succeeded by Tams Bixby, who resigned in September, 1890, and then A. K. Teisburg was appointed. Ten years later, A. C. Clausen was named secretary and he continued to hold the office until his death in 1921, when Thomas Yapp succeeded him.

The authority of the commission has been extended from time to time to cover lines enumerated in the first paragraph.

Grain Inspection. Minnesota has had a system of inspection, weighing and registration of grain since June 1, 1885. The department is in charge of a chief inspector, appointed by the railroad and warehouse commission, employs about 415 deputies, weighers and other assistants and has supervision of county and terminal warehouses. The state is divided into three principal inspection districts—Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth—but inspection or weighing service or both are established at 28 other places within and five places outside of the state. Each main district has a chief deputy inspector with as many assistants and helpers as the work requires.

Boards of Grain Appeals. Two of these boards are maintained, one at Minneapolis and the other at Duluth. Each board consists of three members, appointed by the governor for three-year terms, one being named each year.

The boards are required to meet annually in joint session to establish grades of all grains to be known as "Minnesota Grades." Appeals may be taken to these boards from the decisions of the inspectors as to grades and dockage.

Weights and Measures. This department was created by the legislature of 1911, and placed under the railroad and warehouse commission. The commissioner of weights and measures and a corps of inspectors are employed. Weights and measures conform to the United States standards.

Telephones. The Legislature of 1915 conferred upon the railroad and warehouse commission powers over Minnesota telephone systems similar to those exercised by it over railroad and express companies. The telephone department is under a supervisor with a staff of seven aids. It concerns itself with the rates and service of about 2,000 telephone companies operating in the state. The commission through this department has completed a state-wide investigation and valuation to determine and establish reasonable rates and charges for all classifications of telephone service.

Stock Yards. Public stockyards in Minnesota were placed under the jurisdiction of the railroad and warehouse commission by an act of the Legislature of 1919. Authority was given to regulate rates and charges, require additional facilities and supervise weighing in all public yards and to license live stock commission merchants and control their trade practices. Employees include the chief supervisor, assistants and weighers and inspectors. Federal control in 1922 superseded the state control, but the state weighers were continued.

Commissioner of Highways. The State Highway Commission, as such, was abolished by the 1917 legislature and one commissioner was provided for, to be appointed by the governor and to be known as "Commissioner of Highways" upon whom devolved all powers, rights, duties, privileges and obligations theretofore imposed upon the State Highway Commission. The offices of "Secretary of the Highway Commission" and of "State Engineer" were likewise abolished.

The Minnesota Tax Commission, created in 1907, exercises general supervision over the administration of the assessment and taxation laws of the state, over assessors, town, county and city boards of review and equalization, and all other assessing officers. It is given power to issue instructions and directions to local assessors. All public officers are required to report to it as to the assessment of property and collection of taxes received from licenses and other sources.

Game and Fish Commissioner. The administration of the laws relating to wild animals is made the duty of a state game and fish commissioner, appointed for a term of four years by the governor. Other employes and officers of the department include a superintendent of fisheries, superintendents of the several hatcheries, and a force of wardens. The state game code was revised and re-enacted by the legislature of 1919.

Board of Inspectors of Steam Vessels and Boilers. It is the duty of the inspectors to inspect all steam vessels and steam boilers in use in the state and to grant certificates of license to steam engineers. The board meets once a year in St. Paul to establish regulations for the inspection of vessels and boilers, etc. Masters and pilots are examined and licensed by the inspectors. Inspectors retain 50 per cent of fees and turn the balance into the state treasury.

The Minnesota State Board of Immigration was created by an act of the legislature approved April 22nd, 1907. The act provides that the governor, auditor, and secretary of state shall be ex-officio members, and they are empowered to select two additional members to hold their offices for the term of two years. The duties of the board are to collect, arrange and disseminate statistics and other information in reference to the lands and general and special resources of the State of Minnesota, and the advantages of this state as a place of residence.

The board elects a secretary and a state forester, and has general charge of the state forest service.

ORTONVILLE ARMORY

THE MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Commander-in-Chief,

His Excellency, Theodore Christianson, Governor.

Executive Officer of Department,

Walter F. Rhinow, Adjutant General.

Official National Guard Organizations

The Minnesota National Guard and the Minnesota Naval Militia are the official designations of the active military and naval forces of the State of Minnesota, of which Brigadier General Walter F. Rhinow is the Chief of Staff.

The passage of the National Defense Act of June 3, 1916, as amended by the Act of June 4, 1920, necessitated a complete reorganization of the National Guard of the United States as it existed prior to April 6, 1917. Under the provisions of the Act of June 4, 1920, the United States was divided into three army areas, each army area being sub-divided into three corps areas, making a total of nine corps areas in the United States, each with a population of approximately twelve millions of people. To each corps area was allocated six Infantry Combat Divisions, one Regular Army, two National Guard and three Organized Reserve Divisions, each consisting of approximately twenty thousand men. In addition there was allocated to each corps area certain G. H. Q., army and corps troops. These units were in turn allocated to the several states in the army or corps area.

In 1919 and 1920, a committee of General Staff officers, many of whom were National Guard officers, met in Washington and perfected the scheme of allocation of units. This scheme was submitted to the several states and territories in October, 1920, in a series of conferences held at each of the corps area headquarters. Minnesota finally approved her allotment under protest in December, 1920. Minnesota based her protest on receiving an allotment of only one infantry regiment, whereas three had been maintained heretofore. This protest was echoed by most of the states, wherein several states comprised the division. Attention is invited to the fact that in the four states comprising the 34th Division, namely, Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, there was in existence on July 15, 1917, ten regiments of infantry. Under the present plan, a combat division consists of only four regiments of infantry.

The strict enforcement of the plan of allocation would have meant either the conversion of two regiments of infantry in this state or their muster out. The difficulty was finally solved by granting to Minnesota a special allotment of two regiments of infantry.

In accordance with the scheme of allocation of units as amended, Minnesota has organized and received Federal recognition for the following units:

Regular Allotment: State Staff Corps and Departments; Quartermaster Corps Detachment; Hdq. and Hdq. Battery, 59th Field Artillery Brigade; Hdq. and Hdq. Company, 68th Infantry Brigade; 151st Field Artillery; 125th Field Artillery, less three units; 135th Infantry; 109th Squadron (observation); Air Intelligence Section, 34th Division; Photo Section, 109th Squadron, 34th Division, Air Service.

Special Allotment: 206th Infantry, 205th Infantry.

Minnesota Naval Militia: Eight Divisions.

The National Guard now consists of 353 officers, 5 warrant officers and 4,658 enlisted men on the active list, and 39 officers on the reserve list, an aggregate of 5,105. The Naval Militia consists of 26 officers and 298 enlisted men, an aggregate of 314. These figures represent a drop in strength during the past year of approximately 400 enlisted men. This decrease in strength was caused by the limitations of strength imposed by the War Department owing to the lack of appropriations to maintain a National Guard in excess of 177,000 officers and men. The present strength of the National Guard in the United States being approximately 189,000 officers and men.

The National Guard of Minnesota is in excellent condition, as evinced by the reports of Federal officers detailed by the War Department to inspect and instruct the personnel. In comparison with the total amount spent on maintenance, Minnesota spends but very little, the bulk of the cost falling on the Federal Government.

Minnesota is well supplied with adequate armories. These armories are primarily intended for military use, but this office has indicated a policy of permitting civic organizations to use the armories whenever possible. This has resulted in the armories becoming real community centers and closer co-operation between the National Guard units and the communities.

STEVENS COUNTY MEMORIAL ARMORY—MORRIS

THE JUDICIARY DEPARTMENTS.

THE SUPREME COURT.

The constitution provides that the judicial power shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, courts of probate, justices of the peace, and such other courts, inferior to the supreme court, as the legislature may from time to time establish. This latter prerogative the legislature has exercised in the establishment of municipal and conciliation courts in the larger cities of the state.

The supreme court consists of one chief justice and four associate justices, elected by the people, and holding office for six years, and until successors are elected and qualified. The 1913 session of the legislature created two positions of commissioners of the court, these commissioners to be attorneys, and to perform such duties as the court should assign to them. Appointments to be made by the supreme court.

One term of court is held in each year, commencing on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January at the capitol in St. Paul. On the filing of the record of the court appealed from and of the appellant's brief, the case is set for argument or submission on briefs as the case may be and notice of the date thereof given the parties. This court has original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law, and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity.

The clerk of the supreme court is an elective officer, the term of office being four years.

The reporter of the supreme court is an officer appointed by the supreme court to prepare the adjudicated cases for publication in official volumes, entitled, "Minnesota Reports."

Originally the reporter owned the exclusive copyright, and the reports were printed and bound at his expense, the state buying of him 200 copies of each volume at six dollars a volume. In 1881, an act was passed providing that the reporter should have no pecuniary interest in the reports, but that they should be published by contract and this is now the law. The copyright of the volumes already published vests in the secretary of state for the benefit of the people of the state, but the publisher is permitted to continue the publication and sale of such volumes so long as he complies with the requirements of law as to character and price of volumes.

The secretary of state is charged with the distribution of the volumes, one copy to each of the several departments of state, to each judge of the supreme court, and of the several district, probate and municipal courts, and to the clerks of each district court, while the University of Minnesota receives 100 copies for the law department, and the state library receives a sufficient number for exchanges with other states and for the use of the library. The remaining copies stay in the custody of the secretary of state for further distribution by law.

JUDICIAL DISTRICTS.

THE LOWER COURTS.

The district courts are created by the legislature, the state being divided into nineteen judicial districts with one or more judges in a district, as the exigencies of business may require, and the judges are elected for six years. The district courts have original jurisdiction in all civil cases, both in law and equity; also, in criminal cases where indictments or presentments are made by grand juries, or informations filed by the county attorney.

The municipal courts generally have the power of disposing of all criminal cases for infraction of city laws, and for hearing and committing for trial on arrests for violation of state laws. Chap. 146, G. L. 1891, "An act relating to villages of over 3,000 inhabitants, and providing for municipal courts therein." By the provisions of this act a municipal court has jurisdiction in civil actions where amount does not exceed $500; also, in all cases where a justice court has jurisdiction, and over certain criminal actions. Its jurisdiction is co-extensive with the limits of the county where located.

The probate courts are created by authority of the constitution, one for each county, and the judges to be elected by the people, for four years.* The probate court has jurisdiction over the estates of deceased persons and persons under guardianship, and the examination and commitment of insane persons to the asylums. The salaries of probate judges are fixed by law.

*Amended by constitutional amendment in 1920.

STATE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM.

Minnesota maintains a complete public school system from the kindergarten to the technical colleges of the university. The courses offered in the public schools are so varied that the youth of the state may receive the training necessary for economic production and effective citizenship. The system is so organized that students may progress from one school to another without loss of time and effort.

The State Department of Education has general charge of education in the rural, graded and high schools of the state. The department is organized and maintained under the direction of the state board of education composed of five representative citizens. The work of the department is directed by a commissioner of education, appointed by the board. The department of education is charged with the following responsibilities: Certification of teachers for all classes of schools; distribution of state funds under conditions prescribed by statute; supervision of schools, and promotion of sound policies of public education.

School activities authorized and encouraged with appropriations by the Legislature include:

1. State high schools maintaining a well-balanced four-year course.
2. Graded schools with four or more departments offering instruction in the eight grades.
3. High school departments for schools giving high school instruction but not meeting the requirements of a state high school.
4. Rural schools to encourage proper equipment and high standards of teaching in country districts.
5. Industrial departments of agriculture, home training, manual training and commercial training.
6. Vocational training to fit young men and young women to enter the industries.
7. Consolidation to encourage central schools in rural districts and to provide transportation for pupils and to promote the teaching of practical courses.
8. Libraries by assisting school districts in the selection and purchase of books.
9. Teacher training departments maintained in high schools of the state to prepare teachers for rural schools.
10. Placement of teachers through a teachers' employment bureau maintained in connection with the state department and at the service of local school officers and qualified teachers of any state.
11. Rehabilitation and placement of persons injured in industries.
12. Special classes for defectives, designed to furnish in the local communities training to those handicapped.

13. Tuition paid by the state to districts for furnishing high school instruction to non-resident pupils.

14. Approval of plans for all school buildings by the department of education to insure proper sanitary and hygienic conditions in the schools.

15. Institutes to train and interest teachers in the service.

16. Supplemental aid for districts burdened with a high tax for schools.

Local school districts in Minnesota receive federal, state and local support.

Federal support consists of appropriations under the Smith-Hughes act for vocational and trade instruction, and appropriations for the promotion of vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry.

Federal support is given under the Smith-Hughes act for vocational and trade instruction and in additional appropriations for the promotion of vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry.

State support is from the income on the permanent school fund and one-half the income from the state swamp land fund, from revenue derived from a one-mill state tax, and from biennial appropriations by the legislature. The appropriated funds are distributed in the form of special state aid to schools and departments. Income from trust funds and the state tax, is distributed to the districts according to the number of pupils enrolled in the public schools and attending forty or more days in the year.

Local support consists of a local tax upon the property of the district, including a one-mill tax required by law to be levied in each district.

State Teachers' Colleges are six in number, established by law to train teachers for the public schools. These colleges are controlled by a teachers' college board of nine members. The commissioner of education is ex-officio a member of this board. Other members are appointed by the governor for four-year terms. Each teachers' college is in the immediate charge of a president. The teachers' colleges are maintained by direct appropriations made by the legislature. The teachers' colleges:

Each teachers' college maintains a model or training school for elementary pupils to give college students an opportunity for observation and practice teaching under the most favorable conditions. The professional courses are: Advanced course of two years, open to high school graduates, and special three-year course with like entrance requirements.

EXTERIOR OF UNIVERSITY MEMORIAL STADIUM

UNIVERSITY MEMORIAL STADIUM

The University of Minnesota's new Memorial Stadium, situated on the main campus and seating 50,500 persons, was begun in March, 1924, and completed by Oct. 4 to a degree that permitted the Minnesota football team to meet North Dakota on that date in the first game of the 1924 season. In it Minnesota has for the first time an athletic field which is on a par with those of the other principal universities in utility and beauty, though it is less elaborate and far less expensive than the stadiums of Illinois, Ohio State, California, Harvard and Yale. The cost of the stadium to date, slightly more than $700,000, has been defrayed from the gifts of students, faculty members, alumni, and other friends of the University of Minnesota.

The new Minnesota Stadium serves a purpose that is at least threefold. First of all, it is a memorial to the men and women of Minnesota, whether students or others, who have given their lives in war for their country. It is a memorial to those who fell in earlier wars as well as in the great war that provided the immediate occasion for its erection. In the second place, the stadium provides an outstanding symbol of the value of health, bodily activity, clean sportsmanship and earnest competition. Its third value is that it is a lasting refutation to the charge that University of Minnesota students have little spirit. The gifts which made the stadium possible put this charge into the permanent discard.

Funds for the building were obtained during a campaign that was conducted on the campus in the fall of 1922 and carried throughout the state the next spring. Total pledges received for the joint project of erecting an auditorium on the campus as a memorial to Dr. Cyrus Northrop, and a stadium, amounted to nearly $2,000,000. Allowing for the usual shrinkage of performance under promise, there will be at least as much gift money left for the auditorium after the stadium has been paid for, as went into the construction of the stadium.

Besides providing a splendid field for football and track athletics which will assure all Minnesotans a chance to see games, the structure has a large amount of interior space which the athletic association will develop little by little for use as auxiliary gymnasium space, team rooms, locker rooms, coaches' headquarters, and the like.

Inasmuch as the University is part of the state, the stadium is a splendid gift to the state of Minnesota from its patriotic and appreciative citizens.

The University of Minnesota is the most widely known and most broadly serviceable institution maintained by the State of Minnesota.

Offering, as it does, the benefits of higher education and the consequent possibilities of advancement, to every boy and girl born in Minnesota who has the perseverance to complete a high school course or its equivalent, it holds out one of the great hopes for the future Minnesota, both to the young, who look forward to attendance there, and to the parents, who long to see further ambitions of their own fulfilled by the accomplishments of their children.

Although its enrollment at the end of December, 1924, made the University of Minnesota one of the largest institutions of higher education in the entire world, and although its recognized high rank in scholarship and accomplishment has long made it one of the best known universities, education at Minnesota can be obtained at a cost much below that required by conditions at the great endowed institutions of the East. Government statistics show also that the cost of living in Minneapolis and St. Paul is consistently lower than it is in most of the other cities or towns where state universities, west or east, are established. Tuition charges at the University of Minnesota are well below those of endowed universities and colleges.

Official figures compiled by the registrar show that on December 13, 1924, a total of 15,496 men and women were studying in courses directed by the University of Minnesota. Of these 9,642 were students in the twelve schools and colleges that comprise the university proper. In the four schools of secondary grade, supported and supervised by the University, namely, the University High School, Central School of Agriculture, Northwest School of Agriculture, and West Central School of Agriculture, were another 927 students. Evening extension classes made up 3,434 of the total, members of classes taught by correspondence added 1,513; and at that particular time 25 students were attending one of the many short extension courses that are offered from time to time during each year.

Between December 15, 1923, and December 13, 1924, the increase in attendance at the twelve schools and colleges, which are the heart of the University, was from 9,265 to 9,642, or approximately 4 per cent. The increase in the preceding year was approximately the same.

Briefly described, the twelve colleges which make up the University of Minnesota, are as follows:

College of Science, Literature, and the Arts (Academic College): This is the college in which students not specializing in a professional school study to obtain a liberal education in the broad cultural sense. Here also they take the preliminary work fitting them for admission to one of the professional or semi-professional colleges. (Four-year course.)

College of Agriculture, Forestry, and Home Economics: This college is to all intents and purposes described by its title. Men and women whose life work is to be agriculture, the allied profession of forestry, or the capable conduct of the home are here given the best possible opportunities to acquire expert knowledge based on the experience and research of generations. (Four-year course.)

Law School: A professional school to fit students for admission to the Minnesota bar and for the expert and ethical practice of law. Two years of work in the Academic College are required for admission. (Three-year course.)

Medical School: A professional school for training physicians and surgeons for service to the people of Minnesota. Two years of work in the Academic College are required for admission. (Five-year course.)

College of Dentistry: A professional school for training dentists and dental hygienists. One year of work in the Academic College is required for admission. (Four-year course.)

School of Mines: A four-year course of training in preparation for the profession of mining engineer.

School of Chemistry: A collegiate division of the University specializing in the science of chemistry.

College of Pharmacy: Devoted to the instruction of men and women who desire to become registered pharmacists under the laws of the State of Minnesota.

College of Education: A college specializing in the preparation of men and women to serve as teachers in Minnesota high schools, or as supervisors, principals or superintendents of Minnesota public schools.

School of Business: A collegiate division of the University in which are offered the courses in economics and allied subjects, together with specialized training that particularly fits the student to enter the business field.

Graduate School: The unit of the University of Minnesota in which students who have been granted the bachelor's degree at the completion of a four-year course can continue their studies along some specialized line, leading to the master of arts degree or to that of doctor of philosophy.

College of Engineering and Architecture: A college devoted to the technical education of those who desire to make a profession of engineering in any of several branches or of architecture.

Historically, the development of the various colleges has been outlined in the report of the survey commission, which is now available to citizens of Minnesota. This said:

"The University of Minnesota originally consisted of five departments, namely, the college of science, literature, and the arts, the law school, the school of medicine, the department of theory and practice of elementary instruction, and the department of agriculture. Actual instruction in some of these departments or colleges did not begin for many years after legal provision had been made for their establishment.

"The first charter of the University of Minnesota was provided by the territorial assembly of 1851. Changes were made in this from time to time until 1868, when the Legislature passed an amended act which constitutes the charter under which the University now is operating. The law school actually took form in 1888, the school of medicine in 1888, the college of dentistry in 1888, the school of mines in 1891, the college of pharmacy in 1891, the school of chemistry in 1897, the graduate school in 1905, the college of education in 1905, and the school of business in 1919. In the original plan of organization there were but five departments or colleges, now there are twelve.

"How the tiny school of the late sixties has grown to a great, cosmopolitan university cannot be told in a few words. The curriculum, the plant, the library, the faculty, the student body, the educational machinery, the administrative and business machinery, the finance, the experimental and research work, the publications of the University, each represents a large chapter in such a history.

"In the early days, the University consisted largely of an arts college. It provided general education. Training for the professions was secured through some modified form of the apprenticeship system which prevailed in that day, but gradually the knowledge in each of the professional fields was enlarged and the practitioners of the professions themselves began to set up standards for entrance, so that a certain amount of training was required of all recruits. Since then knowledge in the professional fields has grown more vast, more scientific and exact in character, the professional standards have been raised, and more and more training has been required of those desiring to enter the professions. The differentiation of the course of study into many different courses, the elaboration of these courses so as to provide satisfactory training and practice, are two explanations of the increased cost of the University, for professional schools must have laboratories if their work is to be carried on satisfactorily.

"The elaboration and expansion of various study courses and the establishment of professional schools have not taken place because of the whims or caprices of educators. They are the direct result in every case of pressure brought to bear upon the regents for the establishment of new units and the enrichment of the educational opportunities. In many cases the regents responded reluctantly to requests for the establishment of new units because they realized that new units always mean an added expense, but in every case the pressure was so insistent and the need so obvious, that it would have been unwise to have hesitated longer. A university is but the reflection of the people's desires. The fundamental desires of the people sooner or later find expression in the schools, particularly if they represent needs that emphasize justice, insure health, or are likely to increase wealth, improve citizenship, or advance knowledge."

In compliance with an act passed by the Minnesota Legislature on February 13, 1851, creating the University of Minnesota and making over to it the proceeds of all public lands that Congress might grant as an endowment, the institution was established "at or near the Falls of St. Anthony," a location which has long been a part of the City of Minneapolis.

The original site has been expanded until it extends for more than half a mile along the east bank of the Mississippi river. With the "old campus" as fully populated by university buildings as any pretense to beauty will justify, the regents have begun a policy of building on the more recently acquired property running from the center of the first campus, southward towards the Mississippi river across Washington avenue southeast. Here, with completion of the comprehensive building program already approved by the Minnesota Legislature, will be the new "mall" or central avenue of buildings.

The University Farm, a tract lying midway between Minneapolis and St. Paul, adjoining the State Fair Grounds, is the site of the College of Agriculture, Forestry, and Home Economics. It also is the headquarters for the Department of Agriculture.

Comprised in the Department of Agriculture are the following: The Central Experiment station, College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics, the Central School of Agriculture, and the Agricultural Extension Division, all at the University Farm; the Northwest School of Agriculture, with an experiment station, at Crookston; West Central School of Agriculture and Experiment Station, at Morris; North Central Experiment Station, at Grand Rapids; Northeast Demonstration Farm and Experiment Station, at Duluth; Southeast Demonstration Farm and Experiment Station, at Waseca; Forest Experiment Station at Cloquet, and the Fruit Breeding Farm and Station at Zumbra Heights. Activities at the Central station include the annual Farmers' Week, short courses, and the centralization of many extension services.

Important among the activities of the University of Minnesota, is the General Extension Service, a major division of the University, with which has been combined the department for correspondence study. The extension service conducts night classes and maintains offices in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth. Persons anywhere in the state who have met the requirements may enroll for the correspondence courses, which now number nearly 200. Credits attained by completing courses under the night extension or the correspondence instructors are equivalent, in most cases to those gained by attendance at regular classes. The extension division is maintained in part from the support funds of the University and in part from fees paid in by students who attend.

The University of Minnesota is governed by a board of thirteen regents, among them three ex-officio members, the Governor of Minnesota, the state superintendent of public instruction, and the president of the University. The other ten members, appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the State Senate, hold office for six years.

The Board of Regents has absolute control over all University of Minnesota affairs, save the erection of new buildings and the purchase of fuel. These items are under the supervision of the State Board of Control. The president of the University of Minnesota is the administrative head, and the chief finance officer is the comptroller.

Internal affairs of the University of Minnesota are governed by the University Senate, composed of the president, deans, all professors, including associate and acting professors, the comptroller, certain other administrative officers, and the University librarian. Some others who do not devote full time to university work are members without power to vote. The registrar of the University is clerk of the Senate and custodian of its records.

STATE BOARD OF CONTROL.

The Minnesota State Board of Control was created by Chapter 122, General Laws of 1901, succeeding the former State Board of Corrections and Charities, Board of Trustees for the Hospitals and Asylums for the Insane, Board of Directors of the Minnesota Institute for Defectives, Board of Managers of the State Training School for Boys and Girls, Board of Managers of the State Reformatory, and Board of Managers of the State Prison. In 1917 all powers and duties conferred by law on the Board of Directors of the Minnesota Schools for the Deaf and the Blind, and the Board of Managers of the State Public School, were transferred to the Board of Control.

POWERS AND DUTIES

The Board has complete financial and general control over eighteen state institutions, viz.: The hospitals and asylums for the insane. School for Feeble-Minded, Colony for Epileptics, School for Blind, School for Deaf, State Public School, Training School for Boys, Home School for Girls, Reformatory, Reformatory for Women, Prison, Sanatorium for Consumptives, and Hospital for Crippled Children.

It acts as a board of parole and discharge for the State Training School for Boys and the Home School for Girls.

The member oldest in service is ex-officio chairman of the State Board of Parole for the State Reformatories and the State Prison.

It has charge of the manufacture and sale of binder twine and farm machinery at the State Prison; and the operation of a granite quarry, a rock crushing plant, a clothing factory, and a woodworking factory, at the State Reformatory.

It collects the charge for maintenance of the insane; has supervision over paroled insane; and is charged with the deportation of non-resident insane.

It determines the legal residence of paupers.

It inspects jails, lockups, poorhouses, and infirmaries; examines all plans for new structures or for repairs; and has advisory supervision over all such institutions.

It appoints county child welfare boards.

It is the duty of the Board to promote the enforcement of all laws for the protection of defective, illegitimate, dependent, neglected, and delinquent children.

It inspects, investigates, and licenses maternity hospitals, infants' homes, and agencies for receiving and caring for children or placing them in private homes.

It has powers of legal guardianship over the persons of all children committed by the Courts to the care of the Board or to institutions under its management.

It is the duty of the Board to supervise and promote efficiency and uniformity in the administration of mothers' pensions.

It is charged with safeguarding the interests of illegitimate children; establishing their paternity; and securing for them the nearest possible approximation to the care, support and education that they would be entitled to if born of lawful marriage.

It investigates all petitions for the adoption of children, and visits the children and the homes in which they have been placed.

It is the duty of the Board to aid the blind of the state by home instruction and training; by assisting them in securing tools, appliances and supplies, and in marketing the products of their labors; and by extending care and relief to blind persons who are not capable of self-support.

It is charged with the administration of the soldiers' welfare fund; assisting ex-service men in establishing just claims for compensation, insurance, etc.; and providing emergency hospitalization, treatment, maintenance and relief for such persons.

It has general supervision over the state camp for disabled veterans of the World War and other wars.

MINNESOTA'S GOVERNMENT

Minnesota, known as The North Star State, because of the territory north of the Lake of the Woods being the northernmost land in the entire United States, has a government common to the other states.

Like the national government, the State Constitution, adopted in 1857, changing the Minnesota territory, organized in 1849, to a real unit of the United States, provides for legislative, judicial and executive branches.

As conditions have changed in the past 65 years, it has been necessary to broaden the powers and branches of government, especially as to commissions to care for the ever-increasing state institutions and for regulating industries which have sprung into existence since the state was created, such as railroads, street car companies, telephone, heating, lighting and power systems. The Constitution, as amended, provides for the present form of government.

The legislative branch of the state government is the Minnesota Legislature, with its forty-fourth session in 1925. There are 67 legislative districts, each of which has one member in the State Senate and from one to four members per district in the House, making 67 state senators and 131 House members. Senators and representatives are paid $1,000 for each two-year period. The House members are elected every two years, while the state Senators are elected for four years each even year that is not a presidential election year.

The Legislature enacts the statutes, or laws which in no way conflict with the Constitutional provisions. In case it is considered necessary to pass laws not authorized by the Constitution, the Legislature submits an amendment to the Constitution to the people of the state, which must have a majority of all votes cast at that election. An example of this is the Trunk Highway system, known as the Babcock Good Roads' Law, adopted at the election November 2, 1920, and thereby made a part—Article XVI—of the Constitution.

The Legislature also makes appropriations for the support of schools, the University of Minnesota, state institutions, erection of state buildings and for other expenses. The Legislature delegates to the State Auditor power to fix the state tax rate and to levy a tax for state revenue purposes. No revenue tax was levied for 1921 for the first time, and again for 1922. The legislature meets every two years—in January of odd-numbered years.

The executive branch of the state government is headed by the Governor. The other state executives are the lieutenant governor, attorney general, state auditor, secretary of state and state treasurer. Their duties are fixed by the Constitution. An executive officer is not subject to the control or interference of the judiciary in the performance of duties belonging to him as an executive officer. The terms of the governor, secretary of state, treasurer and attorney general are for two years as is that of the lieutenant governor. The lieutenant governor is ex-officio president of the Senate and receives $2,000 per two-year term. In case of a vacancy in the governor's office the lieutenant governor becomes the state's chief executive. Before the close of each Senate session a president pro tempore is elected, who shall be lieutenant governor in case of a vacancy.

The judicial branch of the state government consists of the Minnesota Supreme Court, district courts, probate courts, municipal courts, conciliation courts, justices of the peace and other courts that the Legislature creates, inferior to the Supreme Court.

The Legislature first provided for one chief and two associate justices of the Supreme Court, but permitted an increase to four associate justices. The justices are elected for six years. The work of the court so increased that it was considered necessary to add to the Supreme Court. As the Constitution limited the number to five, two court commissioners were added. Their duties are practically identical and the commissioners write opinions, but do not have a vote. The two commissioners took office April 1, 1913. They receive salaries of the same amount as the associate justices. A clerk of the Supreme Court is elected for a four-year term.

The district courts have original jurisdiction in all civil cases, both law and equity, where the amount in controversy exceeds $100, and in criminal cases where the punishment exceeds three months. Justices of the peace and lower courts have jurisdiction in cases involving smaller amounts or less punishment. The Supreme Court has original jurisdiction in remedial cases as prescribed by law and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity, but there is no trial by jury in the Supreme Court, which is assured all litigants in the district and lower courts. All judges are to be elected except where vacancies occur by resignation or death, in which case the Governor appoints a successor until the next election.

As times have changed, due to new inventions, discoveries and rapid forward strides in population, it has been necessary for the state government to expand and to create new departments and increase the number of officials to care for the work. Among these departments is the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of three members, elective, in charge of railroads, telephones, street railway systems, the stockyards, grain inspection and other affairs.

Practically all of the other commissioners are appointed by the Governor, with many for six-year terms. These include the State Board of Control, which directs the seventeen state institutions for the criminal, the insane and the unfortunates, acts as purchasing agent for the state departments and supervises construction of buildings; the tax commission, which serves as a sort of appellate board to which tax payers may bring complaints for re-assessments and corrections of inequalities and which assists to fix the tax rates for general purposes; the State Securities Commission, which attempts to prevent the sale of any except legitimate stocks and bonds and which passes on applications for bank charters, requiring applicants to prove good character, ability and does not allow a field to be overcrowded. The Board of Control is composed of three members, one of whom, under the law, must be a woman.

A new commission of three members was created in 1921, the State Industrial Commission, which investigates into causes of labor troubles, strikes, and acts as a board of arbitration to avoid labor disputes. In this department have been consolidated the former departments of labor, minimum wage for women, arbitration board and similar state agencies. It also deals largely with the administration of workmen's compensation insurance. The Rural Credits Board, consisting of three members, was created by the Legislature of 1923.

Other departments are: the public examiner's, which examines the accounts of all state departments and has power even to check up on the Governor's contingent fund; superintendent of banks, which is to see that all banks are maintained in a solvent condition and which places an examiner in charge of an institution to guard the interests of depositors if the bank fails to maintain the legal reserves and standards required; the department of insurance, which examines and regulates insurance companies and licenses no companies until it is satisfied that the policyholders will derive all the benefits promised; the department of agriculture, which supervises, the expenditures of huge sums to assist co-operative groups of farmers to market their products and to advise and co-operate with them to help them raise two blades of grass where one grew before; the department of education, which apportions the millions of state aid distributed annually by the state, fixes the requirements necessary for schools to share in this state aid, establishes standards of education and standards for teachers, and supervises, directs and inspects high, rural, graded and consolidated schools.

The foregoing are the principal commissions. Most of these commissions receive $4,500 a year, the same as the state executives except the Governor, who receives $7,000 and the attorney general at $6,000. The commissioner of highways, appointed, at $6,000, directs the state highway construction work, expending approximately $5,500,000 raised through the motor vehicle tax annually. Other important state departments are:

Department of weights and measures; state expert printer; state dairy and food department; oil inspection; state librarian; department of immigration; drainage and waters' department; game and fish commission; state board of investment; state hotel inspection; state fire marshal; state board of health and vital statistics; Minnesota forest service; department of public property.

In addition there are many boards, of which the Board of University Regents, in charge of the University of Minnesota, the state teachers' college board, boards of law examiners, medical examiners and board of grain appeals are the most important. These are appointed by the Governor.

The Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota Association is an important body which is working to develop the recreational advantages of the state's 10,000 lakes and thousands of acres of forests into the playground of the Northwest. There are other commissions and boards of minor importance, such as the voting machine commission.

The State Agricultural Society, in reality the State Fair Board, has charge of the Minnesota State Fair and for years it has been the greatest in America and has been of vast educational value. The Minnesota Historical Society also is an important state organization.

The county governments of the state are similar to those in other states with boards of county commissioners, auditors, treasurers, registers of deeds, county attorneys, judges of probate, surveyors, coroners, clerks of court, court commissioners and superintendents of schools in each county and some additional commissioners in Ramsey and St. Louis counties. Otherwise there are five commissioners in each county. The pay is not uniform, some of the larger counties paying more than the others.

Minnesota is one of the larger states, being the eleventh in area, with an average length of about 350 miles from north to south and an average width of 240 miles from east to west. It comprises 84,286 square miles, having 5,637 square miles of lakes and rivers, about 31,800 square miles of prairie, and, until largely cleared for farming, it had nearly 50,000 square miles of forest. It is from 602 to 2,230 feet above the sea level, and Federal reports show Minnesota's larger cities to be near the head of the list as ideal for health. The exploration of this area by white people was begun in 1655 to 1660, and a trading post was established near the outlet of Lake Pepin in 1689.

In the matter of financing, Minnesota is probably the most fortunate state in the union, having the largest trust funds of any state in the country except Texas and a reported higher net total than all of the states east of the Mississippi combined.

The various trust funds approximate 54 million. This includes approximately 9 million in land contracts bearing 4 per cent interest in the school, internal improvement, swamp and other land funds. The United States gave outright to the state 8,445,961 acres, of which 2,976,454 acres were for the common schools and 91,524 for the University.

The state government has closely guarded this great heritage and every cent ever received from the sales of land, timber and iron ore royalties is still in these funds. The school fund at the start of the fiscal year 1924 was $33,145,164.76, and it is estimated that iron ore now under lease will add at least $30,500,000 more. Much state land also remains to be sold to further increase the funds. The university permanent fund is $2,266,007.00 and ore now leased will almost double it. The swamp land fund of $5,621,692 also will be about doubled, as well as the other trust funds.

The above permanent trust funds had a cash balance June 30, 1924, of $2,049,026.46 to be invested. The above corrected figures are the exact amount of securities in the custody of the state treasurer.

There are two ore leases under lakes that will net about $4,000,000 for the state.

During the war as much as 45,990,000 tons of iron ore were shipped from the state in a year or 62 per cent of the nation's total output. Almost a billion tons have been shipped from the state and more than 1,300,000,000 tons remain. One state-owned mine, the Missabe Mountain, near Virginia, covering 160 acres, contains 44,000,000 tons of commercial ore. This mine alone will yield the state school fund $15,000,000. Minnesota has other considerable deposits of minerals, including copper in the extreme northeastern part of the state and there have been several gold rushes, only one—at Rat Root lake, which ever really paid.

While Minnesota is rich as a mineral state, its industries are diversified with agriculture the principal industry, although it has the greatest wheat flour mills in the world at Minneapolis, huge granite quarries, building stone, brick plants, sewer pipe and pottery works and raw materials for lime and cement. The commercial fisheries are no small item, producing millions of pounds of fish from Lake Superior and other lakes. Prof. E. K. Soper, formerly of the University of Minnesota, has estimated that there are more than 6,800,000,000 tons of peat, which might be made to serve the state as fuel.

The timber industry, while it has seen its best days in central and southern Minnesota, is still a large and important industry in the north, with the world's largest white pine mills at Virginia and others at Cloquet, International Falls, Bemidji and other places. The re-forestation program promises to keep Minnesota in the lumber-producing stage for an indefinite period.

Minnesota state taxes are lighter in comparison to the benefits received than most states—though taxes always are a sore point with the property owner, whether his taxes are low or high.

Minnesota taxpayers, taking the year ended 1924 for an example, paid in $9,533,526.51 in taxes, while $33,416,152.66 was returned directly or indirectly to the counties.

The state taxes collected directly for the year 1924 total $9,533,526.51, while the indirect taxes totaled $23,618,303.85, made up of railroad gross earnings taxes of $8,418,971.25, telephone earnings' tax of $686,280.68, telegraph companies' taxes of $38,109.59, sleeping car companies' taxes of $64,863.32, express companies' taxes of $75,371.40, freight lines' taxes of $44,523.31, insurances companies' taxes of $1,237,669.50, inheritance taxes of $902,854.33 and vessel tonnage taxes of $7,054.95, occupation tax on iron ore $11,738,183.75. tax on iron ore royalties $349,904.72, state fire marshal $54,517.05.

Property is classified for taxation purposes according to what is generally considered the fairest basis. Iron ore is assessed at 50 per cent of true value; city property and platted real estate, 40 per cent of true value; farm lands, unplatted real estate, live stock, merchandise, manufactured goods, tools and implements, 33½ per cent, and household goods at 25 per cent.

The tax receipts for 1924 total $9,533,526.51 distributed as follows:

	Mill rate	Amount
Revenue0035	$1,747,817.76
Soldiers' Relief0001	173,003.88
Road and Bridge001	1,800,081.83
Soldiers' Bonus0014	2,366,067.33
Historical Society Building00004	68,856.69
Itasca State Park Land00001	29,742.88
National Guard Armories00004	72,185.85
State Board of Relief	23,297.28
University Buildings0003	539,023.59
Forest Fires Relief0002	435,418.46
General School001	1,731,664.49
State University00023	426,825.04
Teachers' Insurance00005	68,431.64
State Teachers' Colleges00013	51,109.79
	.00800	$9,533,526.51

While the state collected only about $9,500,000 in direct taxes, it returned to the counties $33,416,152.66, distributed as follows: State University, $3,230,000; state aid to schools, $5,657,393.17; apportioned school fund, $3,194,219.15; agricultural activities, $654,556.33; soldiers' and sailors' tuition, $80,687.36; State Board of Relief, $109,108.77; state teachers colleges buildings, $753,210.32; state roads and bridges, $2,059,466.42; trunk highways, $11,035,498.23; state charitable and penal institutions, $4,339,376.12; counties' share of inheritance taxes, $139,589.39; state parks and monuments, $60,523.99; national guard armories, $162,279.98; state teachers colleges maintenance, $797,350.00; aid to fire companies, $205,186.20; wolf and horse thief bounties, $66,548.50; drainage assessments, $79,297.75; county sanatoria and commission, $227,871.81; livestock sanitary board refundments, $335,864.12; relief of soldiers' and sailors, $228,125.05.

Taking the average tax dollar of 100 cents paid by the average taxpayer only 9.04 cents goes for state government; 26.25 cents for county government costs; 24.92 cents for city and village governmental costs; 2.14 cents for township government costs and 37.65—the largest share—for school costs.

That directing the affairs of the business of the state is a real business proposition probably can best be realized when one knows that the receipts and disbursements through the office of the state treasurer for the fiscal year 1924 was $181,179,348.93. While the receipts exceeded the disbursements, they were quite equally divided.

The disbursements include the payments to schools, the University, agricultural development expenditures and many more items that really should be classed investments for the future benefit, rather than expenses.

The State of Minnesota annually expends hundreds of thousands of dollars to help develop new industries and to encourage present industries. The State Agricultural Society, which has charge of the Minnesota State Fair—the largest in the country—is the chief organization to assist in the aid to the state's basic industry. The state also assists to finance the State Horticultural society, the State Dairymen's association, the Bee Keepers, the Live Stock Breeders, the Field Crop breeders and other organizations. It donates $140,000 annually to assist county fairs to pay premiums and also assists to pay the premiums at county and other poultry shows. It also assists to conduct farmers' institutes and like improvement organizations.

In Minnesota the state auditor is practically custodian of the state's greater resources. He has charge of the auditing and land departments. In the auditing department it is his duty to keep records of all public accounts, audit all claims and issue warrants in payment. He makes drafts for taxes. The duties of the land department are the care and sale of school, university, agricultural, college and swamp lands, the leasing of mineral lands, and the making out and recording of all deeds and conveyances of lands, in addition to keeping a classified account of all money transactions regarding these lands.

In analyzing the state tax payments and the distribution back to the counties by the state further, it is pointed out in the state auditor's report for the fiscal year 1923, that 82 counties pay to the state $4,773,622.78 and 5 counties pay to the state $3,638,844.65, a total of $8,412,467.43, while the same 82 counties receive $9,285,173.61 and the 5 counties receive $2,438,331.03, a total of $11,723,504.64. In this way, the 5 counties receive back from the state about twice as much as they have paid in.

In most cases, the counties rich in natural resources and wealth pay more taxes than they get back. For instance, St. Louis county of iron mining fame, pays $1,557,066.19 in taxes, while it gets back only $875,863.97. Hennepin county pays $1,305,220.78 and receives $924,857.28. Ramsey county pays $680,580.62 and receives $552,348.45.

The counties which received more back than they paid in state taxes in 1921, were Aitkin, Anoka, Becker, Beltrami, Benton, Big Stone, Carlton, Cass, Chisago, Clearwater, Cook, Cottonwood, Dodge, Hubbard, Isanti, Kanabec, Koochiching, Lake, LeSueur, Mahnomon, Marshall, Mille Lacs, Norman, Pennington, Pine, Pope, Red Lake, Roseau, Sherburne, Todd, Traverse, Wadena, Watonwan and Wilkin. All other counties pay more to the state in taxes than they receive directly from the state.

The State Central committee is made up of two members from each congressional district selected at the state convention by the delegates from the district. Each candidate indorsed is entitled to select one member and the delegate appointed by the candidate for governor is chairman. Each candidate for Congress also is to select a member. The state convention is called by such State Central committee.

The general elections in the years when there is no presidential election are really the most important to Minnesota. As there are two United States senators for each state and they are elected for six years, there is an election of a United States senator at two of each three general elections.

Ten Minnesota congressmen, the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney general, one railroad and warehouse commissioner, one or more Supreme Court justices and all members of the Minnesota House of the Legislature are elected every two years. The state auditor and the clerk of the supreme court, with four-year terms, are elected at every non-presidential general election, as also are the four-year-term members of the State Senate.

The non-presidential year also is the important year in county elections, as county officials are elected for four-year terms for most county officers in Minnesota, including the county offices of auditor, treasurer, register of deeds, sheriff, attorney, surveyor, coroner, court commissioner and superintendent of schools.

Some of the members of the boards of county commissioners and some of the district judges also are elected at each general election, the county commissioners for four-year terms and the district judges for six-year terms.

In order to have the right to vote, a person must be more than 21 years old and must have been a citizen of the United States for at least three months. The adult person must have lived in the state six months and in the county, city or town and precinct for at least thirty days. Persons convicted of treason or a felony and unpardoned, persons under a guardianship and uncivilized Indians are not allowed to vote.

INSTITUTIONS FOR FEEBLE-MINDED AND EPILEPTICS

The Minnesota School for Feeble-Minded and Colony for Epileptics is located at Faribault, with a population of 1,878. It was opened in 1882.

All feeble-minded persons, residents of the state, who are of suitable age and capacity to receive instruction in the school and whose defects prevent them from receiving proper training in the public schools, and all idiotic and epileptic persons resident of the state, may be admitted to their respective departments of the institution.

The charge for maintenance is $40 a year, and is paid by the person legally responsible for the support of the inmate, or, in the event he is financially unable to make such payment, by the county from which the person is admitted.

The institution has an accredited training school for nurses, which is affiliated with the Minneapolis General Hospital. Nurses spend two years in training at the institution and their third year in Minneapolis. They are then eligible for registration.

Acting under authority granted by the legislature, the Board of Control has purchased 323 acres of land adjoining the village of Cambridge to be used as a location for a new institution to be known as the Minnesota Colony for Epileptics. As buildings are erected at this institution the epileptics now housed at Faribault will be transferred to Cambridge, and the space vacated made available for feeble-minded persons now on the waiting list.

School for Feeble-Minded, Faribault—The buildings of this institution include an administration building with wings, custodial buildings for boys and girls, two cottages for epileptic boys, two cottages for epileptic girls, a cottage for working boys, a cottage for boys employed at the dairy, Hillcrest cottage for boys, Riverview cottage for girls, general hospital, central kitchen and bakery, laundry, power house, superintendent's cottage, and building for women employes. Colony for Epileptics, Cambridge—One cottage, providing accommodations for 75 inmates and necessary employes, is under construction.

The Board of Control has requested the legislature at its 1925 session to grant an appropriation of $255,000.00 to be used to erect an administrative center group, consisting of the front main center building for administrative offices and quarters for officers and employes; a rear center building including dining rooms for inmates and employes, kitchen, bakery, etc., and quarters for employes; and ward buildings at either side of the front main center for sleeping quarters, day rooms, etc., for inmates. Area of grounds, 323 acres; values of lands and buildings, $117,065.00.

SCHOOLS FOR THE BLIND AND THE DEAF

School for the Blind, Faribault—This institution, opened in 1874, is located on a high bluff overlooking the river and the city, with spacious grounds, pleasant walks and abundant shade trees. Its opportunities are free to all blind persons, or those who have not sufficient sight to pursue their studies in the public school, who are residents of the state, between the ages of six and 21 years, who are capable of profiting by instruction. The school year extends from September to June. During the summer vacation all of the pupils return to their homes. Summer schools for adult blind men and women are maintained during the summer months. In these schools the principal emphasis is placed upon industrial and vocational training. The school co-operates with the division for the blind of the Board of Control in its work of aiding and assisting the blind of the state. The school has a land area of 50 acres, has a value of $246,900, an enrollment of 92, and an official staff of 53.

School for the Deaf, Faribault—Minnesota has a compulsory education law for the deaf, and all children of the state between eight and 20 years of age, too deaf or too dumb or defective of speech to be materially benefited by the methods of instruction in vogue in the public schools, and who are not taught in a private school or in a school having a special teacher for the deaf, are required to attend the School for the Deaf until discharged by the superintendent upon approval of the Board of Control. As in the case of the School for the Blind, the only expense is for clothing, postage and transportation. The institution was opened in 1863. The buildings are an administration building with wings (known as Tate Hall), Barron Hall, Noyes Hall (consisting of an auditorium, school building and library), service building, bakery, hospital, trades building, power house and the farm group. The land area is 116 acres and the value of the institution $598,246. The enrollment is 252. The official staff numbers 85.

STATE PUBLIC SCHOOL, OWATONNA

This school was opened at Owatonna in 1886. Dependent, neglected and ill-treated children under 15 years of age who are normal mentally and free from disease are eligible to admission on orders of the probate and juvenile courts and by transfer from private institutions which are authorized by the Board of Control to receive and find homes for children.

The cottages, occupied by groups of children, form a community of families and, with the church and school privileges, afford conditions favorable to wholesome community and family life. The location on the farm gives the children the benefits of rural life and the opportunity to receive practical instruction in all branches of agriculture. The care and training given the children is preparatory to their early transfer to foster homes, restoration to parents or, in the case of the older children, discharge to self-support.

Of the 413 outside children who were discharged during the past two years, 231 were self-supporting, 104 legally adopted and 72 restored to parents.

The main building consists of a central section with north and south wings and enlarged dining rooms. There are ten cottages, including a nursery for babies and younger children, a school house, gymnasium, superintendent's residence, laundry, power house, four cottages for employes, greenhouse and sundry farm buildings. Area of grounds, 325 acres; value, $578,765. Present population, 358. Number of children in homes or under supervision, 1,223. Official staff, including teachers and five state agents for placing children in families, 97.

INSTITUTIONS FOR DELINQUENT CHILDREN

Training School for Boys, Red Wing—This institution was created by an act of the legislature in 1867. It was first located in St. Paul but was moved to Red Wing in 1890. It occupies a beautiful site overlooking the Mississippi river.

Commitments to the institution cover incorrigibles up to the age of 18 years. All boys committed are under the care of the institution until they attain their majority unless their conduct is such as to warrant a full discharge at an earlier date.

The work has been benefited by the introduction of an improved system of vocational training in well equipped shops. This work was organized under the direction of Mr. C. R. Allen, of Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis, and has been in effect for a period of two years.

The institution maintains a good sized farm, a dairy herd of 50 cows, and a school of letters with a principal and six teachers. Vocational training, under competent instructors, is given in blacksmithing, carpentry and cabinet making, baking, cooking and meat cutting, painting, plumbing and pipe fitting, printing and truck driving and maintenance.

Fully 75 per cent of the boys passing through this institution develop into worthy, self-respecting citizens. An average of 350 boys are on parole at all times and this large number is cared for by a parole department consisting of six persons.

The buildings consist of an administration building which houses the offices, store rooms and two families of boys, six cottages for inmates, school house, auditorium and gymnasium, industrial building, hospital, cottages for the superintendent, the steward and the head farmer, and the farm group. Area of grounds, 560 acres; value, $705,402; 78 persons are employed. The population July 1, 1922, was 297—there are now 372 on parole—total under care, 669.

Home School for Girls, Sauk Centre—While this school is among the oldest of the state's correctional institutions, the location of the home at Sauk Centre is comparatively new, having been authorized by the legislature in 1907, and opened in 1911. Prior to that the institution was conducted in connection with the Training School for Boys at Red Wing. It is admirably located on a tract of wooded and farm land, with Sauk lake, a beautiful body of water, in close proximity.

Though custodial in character, the institution is a home in every sense of the word.

One of the unique features of the school is the wage-earning system. It in a large measure characterizes the work of the school in a training way, for besides its educational value it has proved the chief source of discipline. Every girl on commitment is for a month in dependency. At the end of the month she is assigned a cottage and becomes a member of the family and a citizen in the community. She is given food and shelter, but beyond that she must earn her support. She is credited for all work according to amount and skill, and is likewise fined for family or social offense.

A large farm is operated in connection with the institution. Farming, gardening, dairying, canning of fruits and vegetables, butter-making and cheese-making, are extensively carried on by the girls.

The buildings include an administration building, receiving cottage and hospital, 26 cottages for girls, chapel, a modern school building containing rooms for regular and special courses, offices and a large auditorium, and adequate farm buildings to house the large dairy herd.

The hospital is one of most modern arrangement. Population, 324; on parole, 321; total, 645. Employees, 95; acreage, 447; value, $612,812.

REFORMATORY AND PENAL INSTITUTIONS

State Reformatory, St. Cloud—The correctional institution for male first offenders in felony only is the State Reformatory, opened in St. Cloud in 1889. The age limits range from 16 to 30 years.

Located on the extensive grounds is one of the finest granite quarries in the state. From this quarry has been taken practically all the stone used in the construction of the institution buildings, and the quarrying, cutting and placing of the stone has been done entirely by the inmates. In addition there is a stone crushing plant, the product of which enters into state road work.

The woodworking industry turns out sash, doors and blinds, screens and storm sash for state institutions. In the factory attached to the institution is made nearly all of the men's clothing used in the state institutions. There are various other shops.

An extensive farm is operated in connection with the institution, and the establishment of a farm colony where some 50 men employed in the farm department are housed has proved a decided success.

The institution consists of an administration building containing offices and a chapel, five cell houses for inmates, hospital, central power plant, superintendent's residence, and additions including kitchens, bakery, dining rooms, shops and storerooms. The principal buildings are constructed of granite quarried on the institution grounds by inmates. The grounds are enclosed by a wall of granite. The walled enclosure, containing 55 acres, is one of the largest in America and is valued at $1,379,529. Population July 1, 1924, 650.

State Reformatory for Women, Shakopee—The State Reformatory for Women, created by the legislature in 1915, and located at Shakopee on a beautiful site overlooking the Minnesota river, is one of the latest institutions to be established by the state of Minnesota.

The institution has a fine farm, a large portion of which is under cultivation. It is planned to interest the women in gardening, dairying, butter-making, etc.

Women's and children's clothing for other state institutions is now being made by the inmates of this institution, and it is planned to enlarge this industry.

The buildings are an administration building and reception hospital, known as Isabel Higbee Hall, which includes offices, hospital and medical section, industrial workrooms, kitchen, dining rooms for officers and inmates, officers' bedrooms, and 20 rooms for inmates; two cottages for inmates; and cottages for the farmer and the engineer. A third cottage for inmates is under construction. The land area is 167 acres; valuation, $244,535; population, 63, and number of employes, 16.

State Prison, Stillwater—The Minnesota State Prison at Stillwater, the oldest state institution, was originally founded in 1851. The new prison, built on the most approved lines of prison architecture and stated by experts to be the most modern institution of its kind in the world, was opened in 1912.

Systematic reform in prison life and management in Minnesota started many years ago. Contracts for prison labor as fast as they expired were not renewed. In 1890 the binding twine industry was established, and in 1908 the making of farm machinery was begun. Then in rapid order came other reforms, the abolishment of the lock step, the granting of privileges to the prisoners commensurate with their conduct, the passing of the striped uniform, the payment of wages to the inmates, and the granting of monthly allowances for the support of families of prisoners.

The buildings consist of an administration building and connecting corridors containing offices of the warden and assistants, an office for use of the boards of control and parole, reception room, barber shop, telephone exchange, rooms for officers and guests, officers' kitchen and dining rooms, school rooms and lecture halls, library, printing office where the "Mirror," the newspaper published by the inmates, is printed, and space for the Bertillon and fingerprint systems used in the identification of criminals; two large cell houses, each containing 512 cells; a modern prison hospital; chapel; central power plant; greenhouse; and residences for the warden and other officers. Space is provided for two subsidiary cell houses which, when built, will provide accommodations for a total of 1,384 inmates.

The industrial group includes the twine factory, a three-story and basement building, 360 feet in length; a warehouse, 360 feet long, for the storage of raw material and manufactured twine; a main factory building of the same size for the farm machinery plant, containing machine shop, woodworking and assembling departments; foundry, 180 feet by 100 feet; blacksmith shop; steel storage house; and two large warehouses for storage of manufactured machines.

The population is 1,053 and the official staff consists of 273 persons. The land area is 1,000 acres and its value is $2,574,582.

SANATORIUM FOR CONSUMPTIVES, AH-GWAH-CHING

Minnesota probably has done more toward the prevention and control of tuberculosis than any other state in the Union. It conducts a state sanatorium, located at Ah-gwah-ching, three miles south of Walker, opened in 1908 for the study and cure of this disease, aids financially in the erection of sanatoria by counties or groups of counties, and maintains in connection with the various institutions for the insane and the School for Feeble-Minded special buildings and sick wards in which the tuberculous patients are cared for.

The state institution is situated on a beautiful wooded tract overlooking Leech Lake. In 1922 the Board of Control authorized the purchase of 200 acres located about ten miles from the sanatorium to be used for farm and garden purposes.

The charge for board and treatment is $1.40 a day, and in a large number of cases, where the patient or his family is unable to make the payments, the expense is paid by the county of which the patient is a resident.

The buildings consist of a main or administration building, infirmary, service building including kitchen, bakery, dining rooms and quarters for employes, recreation building, numerous cottages for patients, superintendent's cottage, staff house, greenhouse, cottage for head carpenter and sundry farm buildings. A new central power plant is nearing completion and a cottage for the engineer is being erected. The lands, $593,048, with an area of 866 acres. It has a population of 253 and a staff of 110 officers and employes.

HOSPITAL FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN, ST. PAUL.

Minnesota has the distinction of being the first of the states to attempt the treatment of indigent crippled and deformed children at public expense. Prior to 1897 no effort had been made by any state in the Union to relieve such children of their deformities in a public institution. There were private hospitals for this purpose, the majority of them located in the eastern states, but they were not available to the children of the poor or to those of limited means. This fact and the need for such an institution were called to the attention of the legislature of 1897 and that body, as an experiment, appropriated $5,000.00 to be used for that purpose.

From that modest appropriation has grown the substantial fireproof institution of today, the State Hospital for Indigent Crippled and Deformed Children, located on a beautiful tract of land in the suburbs of St. Paul, adjoining Phalen Park, opened in 1911, and from it has come a remarkable number of cures.

The present medical and surgical staff is made up of 35 of the foremost specialists of St. Paul and Minneapolis. These men are on call at all times and the services given these poor children are entirely gratuitous and unlimited. The resident medical and surgical staff is composed of students from the University of Minnesota graduate and undergraduate schools.

The buildings are the main building with large additions, power plant and laundry, and a service building containing central kitchen, bakery, dining room, root cellar, storerooms, steward's office and rooms for 22 employees. A new school building, to be known as the Michael J. Dowling Memorial Hall and to be used for the education and training of indigent crippled and deformed children of the state of Minnesota, is under construction and will be completed in the near future. The sum of $50,000, representing one-half the cost of this building, was donated by the Minnesota Editorial Association and the Minnesota Bankers' Association. Area, 23 acres; value, $376,136; population, 195; employes, 195.

MINNESOTA SOLDIERS' HOME.

MANAGEMENT: BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

The Minnesota Soldiers Home is located on land at the confluence of Minnehaha creek with the Mississippi river in Minneapolis.

It was established by the Legislature of 1887, acting on recommendations of a committee of the Department Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which made a study of two or more years' duration. Governor A. R. McGill approved the law and a board of seven trustees was appointed to locate and open the home. The site at Minnehaha Falls was chosen after a spirited contest. A temporary structure was erected to care for some twenty men who were the first to be admitted. Since that time, there have been 4,560 applications for admission to the home, 3,874 men and 686 women.

On June 30, 1924, the average age of Civil War men was 81 years, average service 2 years and 1 month; Spanish War men, average age 57 years, average service 11 months. Oldest man in the Home is 96 years of age. There are 3 Indian War men of 1862.

The Civil War population is growing on account of increased age and inevitable disabilities.

Population for Dec. 18, 1924, Civil War men, 234; Civil War women, 140.

Total value of property including buildings, machinery, equipment and grounds by a careful inventory taken this year is $1,110,000. The property is being brought up to as good a condition as is possible for buildings, most of which having been built for over 35 years and in constant occupancy all of the time.

STATE SOCIETIES AND ASSOCIATIONS.

State Agricultural Society—Minnesota's chief organization in aid of its principal industry is the Minnesota State Agricultural Society, which dates its corporate existence from the year 1868. It was not the first, as even in territorial days societies existed, the object of which was the advancement of the state's natural resources, but it was the first concrete attempt at consolidation and so marked was its success that its annual exposition has continued unchallenged to this day. Out of it all came the annual Minnesota state fair, regarded as the greatest of its kind on the North American continent. Up to 1885 the annual fairs of the society were held in different localities with varying financial success. That year the county of Ramsey, through the efforts of public-spirited citizens, conveyed to the State of Minnesota for state fair purposes 200 acres of land, located midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, the same to be under the management of the State Agricultural society. The Legislature of the same year met the donation with an appropriation of $100,000 for permanent improvements, which was supplemented by private subscriptions to the extent of over $31,000. This investment, together with the grounds, might be said to be the real beginning of the largest annual agricultural and industrial meet in the United States, which since, through biennial aid on the part of the Minnesota legislature and its own earnings, has reached proportions in respect to buildings and investment far beyond the wildest dreams of its organizers. Up to 1903 state control of both the society and the state fair only extended to such financial aid as was necessary, but the legislature of that year, recognizing the need of more intimate relations, together with a supervision that would place the two beyond the possibility of outside influence and petty interference with its internal affairs, enacted a law practically making both a department of the state government. In 1911 supplemental legislation was adopted defining and regulating membership in the State Agricultural society which was further amended in 1913, 1919 and 1921. This membership, together with the right to vote, includes three delegates to the annual meeting to be named by each county and district agricultural society, such honorary members as may be elected by a two-thirds vote at each annual meeting, one delegate from such counties having no county or district agricultural society and to be named by the county board, and two delegates and the president, ex-officio, representing the following societies and associations:

The state horticultural society, the state dairymen's association, the state beekeepers' association, the Minnesota live stock breeders' association, the Minnesota crop improvement association, the Minnesota swine breeders' association, the Minnesota sheep breeders' association, the Minnesota horse breeders' association, the Minnesota veterinary association, the Minnesota cattle breeders' association, the state poultry association, Minnesota implement dealers' association, the Minnesota florists' association, the Minnesota garden flowers' association, the Minnesota county exhibitors' association, the Minnesota federation of county fairs, the state forestry association, the Minnesota state grange association and the Minnesota farm bureau federation.

The following societies and associations shall be entitled to one vote each: Minneapolis market gardeners' association of Minnesota, the state growers' association, Minnesota Shorthorn breeders' association, Minnesota Guernsey breeders' association, Minnesota Jersey cattle club, Minnesota Holstein-Friesian breeders' association, the Minnesota Hereford breeders' association, Minnesota Aberdeen Angus breeders' association, Minnesota Red Polled breeders' association, Minnesota Ayreshire breeders' association, Minnesota Brown Swiss breeders' association, Minnesota Poland China breeders' association, Minnesota Duroc Jersey breeders' association, Minnesota Chester White breeders' association and Minnesota Berkshire breeders' association.

The members of the governing board of the State Agricultural society are entitled to one vote each. The annual meeting of the society occurs in St. Paul or Minneapolis on the Wednesday following the second Tuesday in January each year, and continues for three days, the election of officers occurring upon the last day of the session, when a president is elected for a term of one year; a vice president for a term of two years, and two or three managers, as the case may be, for a term of three years. The entire membership of the governing board is one president, two vice presidents and eight managers, one manager being elected from each of the following congressional districts: First, second, third, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth.

The state appropriates $170,000 annually to aid in the payment of premiums at county and other fairs and exhibitions complying with the provisions of the law.

State Horticultural Society has for its work the gathering and dissemination of knowledge pertaining to forestry, fruit and vegetable growing, the culture of flowers, etc., adapted to the soil and climate of Minnesota. The present working membership of the society consists of more than 3,600 professional and amateur horticulturists throughout the Northwest. The following societies are auxiliaries of the Horticultural Society: Minnesota Garden Flower Society, Minnesota State Florists' Association, State Vegetable Growers' Association, State Beekeepers' Association. A vegetable garden for each home, a shelter belt for each farm and trees for each school are sought.

The Minnesota Dairymen's Association (incorporated March 2, 1882) was organized February 7, 1878, for the purpose of improving the Minnesota stock and dairy products by holding an annual meeting of the representatives of these interests and the distribution of literature on such subjects among the people of the state. The association is encouraged by a permanent appropriation of $5,000 annually for the publication of its proceedings and distribution of dairy literature and dairy instruction.

• Farmers' Institutes—The holding of farmers' institutes has been in vogue for 25 years or more. The government is vested in a board of administration. This board consists of six members, three of whom are chosen from the board of regents of the State University, and the other three are the presidents of the State Agricultural Society, the State Horticultural Society and the State Dairymen's Association. The institutes are largely held during the winter months, commencing with some date in November, and closing about the middle of March. The Farmers' Institute Annual is published each year, and contains the latest and best practical information concerning agriculture in all its branches, which includes the work of the field stock interests and horticulture.

The Minnesota State Art Society was created by the 1903 session of the legislature for the advancement of fine arts, etc. The governing board consists of the governor, president of the university and seven members to be appointed by the governor, qualifications being prescribed by the act. The officers and membership are prescribed by the act, and annual exhibits are provided for, prizes being offered and paid for by the state.

The Minnesota Society for the Prevention of Cruelty was organized October 21, 1869, for the purpose of preventing cruelty to animals throughout the State of Minnesota. It was recognized by the legislature of 1905 constituting the society a state bureau of child and animal protection. The governor, the superintendent of public instruction and the attorney-general are ex-officio members of the board of directors.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association is an organization incorporated under the laws of the state composed of professional florists, nurserymen and others interested in horticulture. The object of the association is to promote the interests of floriculture and horticulture in the state.

THE MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Incorporated less than two months after the convening of the first territorial legislature in 1849, the Minnesota Historical Society is the oldest institution in the state. It is supported mainly by legislative appropriation. By gift and purchase it has accumulated one of the largest and best historical libraries in the West, containing approximately 156,000 books and pamphlets. An important part of the library consists of materials on Minnesota history—the most complete collection of its kind in existence. In the society's manuscript division is a growing body of letters, diaries, and other documents left by men who have played some part in the making of Minnesota. Included in this unique collection are the papers of such men as Sibley, Ramsey, Taliaferro, Steele, Donnelly, and J. W. Taylor. Scarcely less important historically are the twelve thousand bound volumes of Minnesota and other newspapers. An historical museum, with varied displays, visualizes the external conditions of life in Minnesota's past.

In 1919 the legislature recognized the society in effect as a state department of archives. An act authorized the transfer of non-current records from state, county, city, and township offices, and made the society the official custodian of such transferred records. Since 1919 non-current archives from six state departments and five commissions have been received, including executive records, census schedules, and pension records from the offices respectively of the governor, the secretary of state, and the adjutant general.

Two volumes of Dr. William W. Folwell's authoritative History of Minnesota have been published by the society. These volumes, which narrate the story of Minnesota from the earliest French explorations to the end of the Civil War, are to be followed by two volumes on the later period. A quarterly magazine, the Minnesota History Bulletin, was begun in 1915. Seventeen volumes in a series of Collections have been issued, the last of which is Dr. Warren Upham's Minnesota Geographic Names, Their Origin and Historic Significance (vol. XVII, 1920). The publications are distributed to members as issued.

The society has a membership of about fourteen hundred. Dues amount to two dollars for annual, five dollars for sustaining, and twenty-five dollars for life members. Membership may be had through application and a first payment of dues. The governing body is an executive council composed of thirty elected members and six state officers ex-officio.

The society occupies the Historical Building adjacent to the capitol. This building was erected by the state at a cost of $500,000 and was dedicated on May 11, 1918. The reading room, museum, and galleries are open to the public daily from 9:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M. (summers, 8:30 A. M. to 4:30 P. M.).

RE-ORGANIZED DEPARTMENTS

Minnesota Highway Department. Improvement and maintenance of a 7,000-mile system of trunk highways is one of the most important and extensive state activities. Awakening to the importance of adequate highways, Minnesota in 1909 adopted a constitutional amendment providing for a one-twentieth mill general tax levy by the state to be apportioned as highway aid to the various counties, which with the townships and cities and villages then handled all road work. The rate later was increased to 1 mill and the state highway aid levy is still made.

With the creation of the state highway aid fund, was established the Minnesota Highway department for its administration. It was placed under a commission which some years later was changed to the single-commissioner plan of administration.

Charles M. Babcock, Elk River, a former member of the highway board, was retained in the new office of highway commissioner. He devised the so-called Babcock good roads plan, contemplating the designation of a system of trunk or arterial highways serving every district for improvement and maintenance by the state with the proceeds of a more onerous tax on motor vehicles and with federal highway aid. The plan was adopted in 1919 with the passage of Good Roads Amendment No. 1 to the state constitution. State trunk highway income to date under the new plan has been limited to motor vehicle tax funds and federal aid. Falling into line with other good roads states, Minnesota at the general election of 1924 adopted another highway amendment to the constitution expressly authorizing the legislature to impose an excise tax on gasoline or other fluids used or useful in propelling motor vehicles on the highways and further providing that the proceeds of such tax, when levied, shall be diverted to the trunk highway fund.

The new highway plan is generally credited with speeding up needed improvements and providing better maintenance on all roads in the state. Upon turning the 7,000 miles of trunk routes over to the state, the counties listed 1,499 miles as graded, 1,371 as graded and 66 as paved, and in less than four years the state department has added 4,979 miles of new grading, 5,236 miles of graveling and 490 miles of pavement. All county and township road and bridge tax funds released for other than trunk highway purposes, local road development has been even greater than that on trunk routes.

The Industrial Commission of three members at $4,500 a year was created by Chapter 81 of the Laws of 1921 as of March 15, 1921. The Departments of labor, arbitration, etc., were abolished and the work consolidated within the Industrial commission, which has charge of administration of workmen's compensation; former work of labor and industries department; conducting free employment agencies; promotion of arbitration, mediation and conciliation by hearings or otherwise; investigation of strikes, etc.; establishment of branch offices; minimum wage law administration, etc.

The State Securities Commission was created by Chapter 372 of the Laws of 1921. There had previously been a State Securities commission made up of a board of other state officials who employed an executive secretary. The new commission consists of three commissioners at $4,500 a year each, who have charge of administering the law with the object of preventing the floating of unsound securities or "selling the Blue Sky" in Minnesota. They license firms to sell stocks and bonds and issue warnings against frauds.

War Records Commission. Before the close of the World War, the work of gathering the records of Minnesota's part in that struggle was begun by the Minnesota Historical Society and continued by a special commission created by the Minnesota Commission of Public Safety in October, 1918. This special agency, the Minnesota War Records Commission, was established by law in April, 1919, and directed "to provide for the collection and preservation in state and local war records collections of all available material relating to Minnesota's participation in the World War" and "to provide for the preparation and publication, as a permanent memorial record, of a comprehensive documentary and narrative history of the part played by the state in the World War, including conditions and events within the state relating to or affected by the war."

In discharge of the first of these duties, the commission has assembled at its headquarters in the Historical Building, St. Paul, extensive files of records relating to the war services of citizens and organizations of the state—particularly of service men—including in many cases photographs, war letters, and mementoes, as well as written records. Through its county branches, also, the commission has been instrumental in building up a number of local war records collections—notably in Hennepin, Ramsey, Rice, Stevens, and St. Louis counties—intended for local preservation and use.

In 1921, before the second object of the commission—publication of a state World War history—was realized, the commission law was amended so as to call for the publication, first, of a history of Minnesota in the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection. The latter, comprising in one volume an historical narrative and a roster of Minnesotans in all branches of the service during the period indicated, was published in April, 1923.

In the meantime the commission has commenced the preparation of an eight volume history of Minnesota in the World War, the first volume of which, a history of the 151st Field Artillery, by former Lieutenant Governor

Louis L. Collins, was published in December, 1924. Other volumes of the World War history, according to a plan tacitly approved by the Legislature, will comprise a roster of all Minnesota soldiers, sailors, and marines, and a narrative history of local war activities, events, and conditions.

The commission makes a standing appeal to all citizens of the state for contributions to the State War Records Collection of personal narratives, war letters and relics, and photographs, and to officers of local war agencies, for the custody of the wartime files of their organizations. Such material, wherever available, should be forwarded without delay to Franklin F. Holbrook, secretary, Minnesota War Records Commission, Historical Building, St. Paul.

SCHOOLS OF AGRICULTURE.

The Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, a part of the University of Minnesota, is a state institution to serve the people of the northwestern part of the state. It does not belong to a particular town or county, but to this section of the state as a whole.

It has four distinct lines of work:

1. As an institution of learning
2. As an experiment station and demonstration center.
3. As an extension service center
4. As an organization center.

1. As a school, it is organized with a liberal variety of courses designed to meet the needs of the various classes of young men and women seeking a training for management of the home and the farm and for citizenship in rural communities. As an institution with experienced and sympathetic men and women in charge, its courses are especially planned to meet the needs of rural young men and women. Being located two miles from the city, it retains the healthful influence of the country, and still gives the advantages of the city, with a minimum chance of its temptations. Students are surrounded with a moral influence at all times. Nearly 2,000 students have attended the school since 1906, while the number of graduates has reached over 600.

2. The station farm of 476 acres, fully equipped with stock and machinery in charge of competent experts, is devoted to an extensive study of the various agricultural problems of this part of the state. Reports are issued annually. Special bulletins are also issued from time to time.

3. Community work with farmers is an important part of the institution's service. The members of the staff devote much time to this work, giving special attention to cooperative work in pure seed production among farmers and home project work among students, work in farm crops, live stock and farm management and in institute work. A monthly paper, the Northwest Monthly, is published regularly as a medium for spreading useful information.

The West Central School of Agriculture and Experiment Station was established in 1910 as a branch of the Department of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota. P. E. Miller has been Superintendent since 1917. The School and Station now comprise 300 acres of land and a group of 20 buildings. The Experiment Station is conducting experimental projects in the most important agricultural problems of the region. Annual reports of the Experiment Station work are published each year and distributed to farmers throughout the district. In the school courses of study are offered in all branches of agriculture and home economics. The student body has increased from a small number in the early years to an annual enrollment of 300 students. The student body comes almost entirely from farm homes throughout west central Minnesota. Approximately 85% of the graduates and former students are engaged in the business of farming and home making.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

LEGISLATURE

The legislature for the year 1925 is composed of 67 senators and 131 representatives.

The legislature meets biennially, commencing on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January of odd numbered years. The session is limited to 90 legislative days by the constitution.

The legislative term of representatives is for two years and for senators four years.

ELECTIONS

State elections are held in every even numbered year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, and the terms of office terminate on the first Monday in January following.

The primary election to nominate candidates to be elected at the general election is held on the third Monday in June. The so-called Australian system of voting is used in both elections.

Two kinds of ballots are used in the primary election—a party ballot and a non-partisan ballot. All candidates for executive officers, including railroad and warehouse commissioners and federal representatives are nominated by means of a party ballot. The justices of the supreme court, members of the state legislature and all county officers, except county surveyor, are nominated on a non-partisan ballot.

Primary election day constitutes the first day of registration for the ensuing election, except in cities of the first class.

PROPERTY RIGHTS

Various property rights are given to women. Property owned prior to marriage remains in her own right, as well as property acquired during marriage. She is practically given the same property rights in her married state as the husband. A widow is entitled to one-third of the property of her demised husband, and the homestead goes direct to her in case of no children; with children she has a life estate in the same.

TAXATION

General taxes become a lien upon real property from the first day of May of the year in which levied, but between grantor and grantee the lien does not attach until the next January. One-half of the real estate tax must be paid before June 1; the second half before November 1, otherwise a penalty of ten per cent is added. If not paid before the first Monday in January following, the same become delinquent and a further penalty of five per cent is added. The redemption period extends for three years and until notice of the time of expiration of such redemption has been made by the county auditor.

TRUST FUNDS AND FINANCES

Minnesota now has the largest permanent trust fund of any state in the union. State receipts from various sources for the fiscal year 1924 totaled $99,732,477.99. Total disbursements, $82,829,461.30. Cash balance June 30, 1924, $23,414,729.61. The greatest source was from the state taxes, while gross earnings on railroads were second with $8,483,834.57; motor vehicle tax receipts, $5,616,113.60; prison twine plant, $2,523,434.44; state institution earnings, $1,690,442.14; state mines, ore and timber income, $1,905,502.71; trust fund interest, $1,312,503.93; repayment of loans by municipalities, $2,067,627.90; trust fund bond sales, $1,229,676; inheritance tax, $902,552.34; State Fair receipts, $293,732.81; teachers' insurance fees, $270,707.37; Federal road aid, $1,492,030.63; armory bonds, $321,535.75; vocational education aid, $59,116.05. Miscellaneous accounts make up the balance. Of this revenue, approximately $60 of $100 was returned directly or indirectly to the counties.

PRIMARY ELECTION RETURNS

OF ELECTION HELD

JUNE 16TH, 1924

The returns on the following pages show the votes cast by counties for the various candidates for state offices and Representatives in Congress on the Republican, Farmer-Labor and Democratic Tickets, and including Justices of the Supreme Court, and judges of the District Court, without party designation, at the state primaries on June 16, 1924. The amended primary law of 1913 provides that where a candidate for the nomination for a partisan office has no opposition his name is not to appear on the primary ballot, but he is to be deemed the unanimous nominee of his party. Hence, the names of some candidates do not appear in the tables.

This commission was appointed May 14, 1921, by Governor Preus in accordance with Chapter 497 of the Laws of 1921.

GREAT LAKES—ST. LAWRENCE TIDEWATER COMMISSION OF MINNESOTA

Pursuant to the legislative resolution of 1919, creating the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Commission, the Board was constituted by the appointment of G. G. Hartley of Duluth, J. L. Record of Minneapolis, and M. J. Dowling of Olivia. Charles P. Craig, to whom one of the original appointments was tendered, had in the meantime taken the post of Executive Director in the service of the states associated.

Upon the resignation of G. G. Hartley of Duluth, A. H. Comstock of Duluth was appointed, and has been Chairman of the Commission from December, 1920.

Upon the death of Mr. Dowling, A. O. Moreaux of Luverne was appointed, and has been a member and the secretary of the Commission from May, 1921.

The work of this Commission is the work of the States associated. Its efforts have been put forth mainly through the association of States, and Minnesota has from the beginning taken a prominent and leading part in this Association.

The case for the west was proved before the International Joint Commission. The economic feasibility was determined; the Federal Administration has been committed to the project; satisfactory approaches to final conclusions have been made by the governments of Canada and the United States. And it is now anticipated that at an early date concrete proposals will be laid before the legislative bodies of the two countries, and that they will be approved by both.

Public judgment in Minnesota, and in the neighboring states, is firm in the opinion that this improvement will prove a continental benefit and a great gain to all the region served by the Lakes. No state will profit more by this than Minnesota, which will thus gain a seaport at the furthest extremity of this lakes-to-ocean route.
