HealthRight a reality

The Legislature took a major step toward providing universal health care coverage and reducing health care costs for all Minnesotans with passage of Chap. 549, the HealthRight law. The bipartisan effort, authored by Sen. Linda Berglin and Rep. Paul Ogren, lays a new foundation for the delivery and financing of health care in Minnesota. The new law addresses a number of issues: cost containment, small employer insurance reform, individual market insurance reform, Children's Health Plan expansion, rural health initiatives, health professional education, data collection and research initiatives, and medical malpractice.

The cost containment segment of the law enacts measures designed to control the rate of growth in health care spending. The commissioner of health is required to set annual limits that slow the current rate of growth by at least ten percent a year. This goal is to be accomplished through a detailed plan submitted to the Legislature and the governor. The commissioner is also charged with the duty to establish statewide and regional limits on growth in spending. The state is to be divided into four regions for purposes of fostering the development of regional health planning, coordination of health care delivery among regional health care systems, and working to achieve spending limits.

Additional cost control measures include establishment of a 25-member Minnesota Health Care Commission to make recommendations regarding statewide and regional spending limits, to address spending in excess of the limits, and to assist communities, providers, group purchasers, employers, employees and consumers improve the affordability, quality and accessibility of health care. The commission is to include four members representing health plan companies; six members representing health care providers; four members representing employers; five consumer members; three representatives of labor unions; and the commissioners of commerce, employee relations and human services. The appointments are to be coordinated to ensure gender and geographic balance.

Regional coordinating boards, locally controlled organizations with members representing health care providers, health plan companies, employers, consumers and elected officials, are charged with several duties under the new law. The boards are to make recommendations regarding major capital expenditures and the introduction of new technologies and medical practices in the region; educate the community and promote voluntary efforts to improve access, affordability and accessibility; and to make recommendations regarding improved access and affordability of health care in the region. In addition, a health planning advisory committee is to be convened to make recommendations on the use of health care technology and major capital expenditures.

In an effort to control costs, health care providers are required to file notices with the commissioner of health outlining expenditures of more than $500,000 on equipment, capital projects or new specialized services. While lacking any authority to approve or disapprove projects, the commissioner, in consultation with the Minnesota Health Care Access Commission, is required to retrospectively review capital expenditures and major spending commitments and require a provider to submit to a prospective review of future expenditures if the provider refuses to cooperate in attempts to coordinate technologies and procedures and reduce the growth of inflation, uses methods that are not clinically and cost effective, or does not pursue collaborative arrangements. Providers subject to prospective review and approval are prohibited from making major spending commitments or capital expenditures for five years unless the commissioner determines, based upon application and supporting documentation, that the commitment or expenditure is appropriate. The law exempts replacement equipment, medical education and research and clinical trials by research and teaching institutions, repair, remodeling or replacement of existing buildings and fixtures, and mergers, acquisitions and other changes in ownership that do not involve an expansion of service capacity or a change in the nature of services provided from the retrospective/prospective review process. The commissioner is further required to adopt rules limiting provider referrals that create potential conflicts of interest.

Chap. 549, popularly known as HealthRight, is aimed at controlling the cost of health care, reforming the health insurance system and providing coverage to uninsured Minnesotans. Initial enrollment in HealthRight will be open to families with children currently participating in the Children's Health Plan.

The small employer insurance market is reformed under HealthRight. Under this segment of the law, known as the Minnesota Small Employer Health Benefit Act, employers with two to 29 employees are guaranteed access to any health benefit plan available in the small employer market. Variations in premium rates are restricted to 25 percent on either side of the index rate for any type of coverage and can be based only on health status, claims experience, industry of the employer and the length of time the employer has been covered. Restrictions are also placed on premium variations based on age, gender and geographic location. The measure also requires insurers to offer two types of small employer plans. One type provides coverage with co-payment provisions and the other type provides coverage with deductible provisions. The law also prohibits providing health coverage to a small employer through individual policies.

Significant reforms are also made in individual insurance market practices. The law provides private employers who have two or more employees with access to the purchasing power of a large pool. Coverage must emphasize managed care and be modeled after coverage available to state employees. Premium rates in the individual market are subject to all of the rating restrictions applicable to the small employer market. Farmers and other self-employed individuals may deduct 100 percent of the cost of their health insurance premiums from their state income taxes.

The law's focus on healthy children is exemplified by the expansion of the Children's Health Plan (CHP). Initial enrollment in HealthRight will be open to families with children whose income is below 185 percent of the federal poverty level. Next, families with children whose income is below 275 percent of the federal poverty level will be eligible for enrollment. Finally, single adults and families without children whose incomes are below 275 percent of the federal poverty level will become eligible.

Coverage is initially be focused on primary and preventive care, including outpatient mental health and chemical dependency. Inpatient hospital services will be added as of July 1, 1993, with an annual hospital benefit limit of $10,000 for adults. Co-payments include ten percent for inpatient hospital services for adults, 50 percent for adult non-preventive dental services, $3 per prescription for adults and $25 for eyeglasses for adults.

Enrollees pay a premium based on a sliding scale under the plan. So-called "wellness" discounts are to be incorporated into the scale and enrollees are to be informed of availability of the discount and encouraged to adopt healthy lifestyles. HealthRight and Medical Assistance (MA) application and eligibility procedures are to be combined and both services are to be provided through managed care arrangements. Individuals or families with income above a specified limit will be ineligible for coverage as will those who have had access to employer-subsidized coverage during the 18 months prior to application.

The rural health initiative segment of the law contains a number of provisions designed to improve accessibility to health care in rural areas. A plan is to be developed for coordinating rural health care services through referral networks among rural providers and assisting rural communities in establishing community health centers. Financial assistance grants are to be made available to isolated rural hospitals and hospitals in danger of closing due to any charges imposed by HealthRight.

In addition, under the health professional education article of the law, loan forgiveness programs are instituted or expanded for physicians, nurses and mid-level practitioners who agree to practice in rural areas. Also under this article, the University of Minnesota Medical School is requested to select more applicants choosing careers in primary care, change the curriculum to provide greater exposure to primary care, and develop a program for clinical experiences in primary care settings in rural communities, community health clinics and HMOs.

The Minnesota Health Care Commission is also charged with collection of data on health care spending, creating a database on specific medical conditions, and promoting improvements in health plan cooperation, efficiency and effectiveness. The commission is also to develop and disseminate outcome-based practice parameters and research findings to guide practitioners in appropriate ranges of treatments for specific conditions. Adherence to a practice parameter approved by the commissioner is an absolute defense against allegations that a provider did not comply with accepted standards of practice in the community. The law further provides that the commission may require peer review by the Minnesota Medical Association, the Minnesota Chiropractic Association or the appropriate licensing board when practice in all or part of the state deviates from practice parameters, or when there is large variation within the state in the method or frequency of treatment.

Further changes in medical malpractice law require uniform forms to be used for requesting answers to questions about evidence to be used in malpractice cases, limits parties to ten interrogatories in addition to the uniform forms, and requires the parties to discuss alternative ways to resolve the case without a trial.

HealthRight will be funded through a five cent per pack increase in the cigarette tax and a two percent gross revenues tax on hospitals, health care providers and wholesale drug distributors. Beginning January 1, 1996, a one percent gross premium tax will be assessed on nonprofit health insurers and HMOs. Hospitals are allowed to pass the tax on to third-party insurers until January 1, 1994. A study is to be conducted during the next legislative session to determine if the provider tax is the best revenue source for HealthRight.

Omnibus Finance Bill

Faced with a deficit of $569 million, the Legislature approved an omnibus finance bill cutting a total of $134 million from the $14.7 billion that had been appropriated for biennial funding for the organization, operation, and administration of programs relating to

In addition to cutting appropriations in order to balance the budget the omnibus appropriations measure contains a number of provisions designed to increase revenue or stimulate the economy. For instance, Chap. 513 requires DTED to assist in the reestablishment and promotion of the Northern Baseball League.

Chap. 513 increases a variety of fees for liquor manufacturers and brewers in addition to cutting appropriations to various state agencies.

state government, higher education, infrastructure and regulatory agencies, environment and natural resources, and human resources. Other new laws contain reductions and adjustments making up the rest of the shortfall.

Chap. 513 cuts $11.9 million from the general fund appropriation to environment and natural resources. The general fund budget of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is reduced by $4.078 million. A reduction of $541,000 is made to the mineral economics program. Water resource management is reduced by $750,000. Cuts to forestry road and campground maintenance equal $1.12 million. Field equipment funding is cut by $591,000.

An appropriation of $41,000 is restored to the Voyageurs National Park Citizen's Council. Hill-Annex State Park will remain open at a minimal operating level. The bill changes deposits of 50-50 forestry money from the state forest account to the general fund and restores payments in lieu of taxes.

The law expands youth programs in the DNR and appropriates funds received from use of campsites in the BWCA to the commissioner. Twenty five percent of the environmental trust fund revenue deposited in fiscal years 1994-95 must be spent for capital investments in parks and trails.

A $1.1 million appropriation in the wetlands bill to the Board of Water and Soil Resources is canceled and $100,000 appropriated for grants to the Minnesota Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts. In addition, $100,000 is appropriated for grants to counties for administration and enforcement of the wetlands bill.

While the general fund budget of the Pollution Control Agency (PCA) is reduced by $1.15 million, the agency's total appropriation change amounts to a reduction of $639,000 for Fiscal Year (F.Y.) 1992 and an increase of $689,000 for F.Y. 1993. Most of the revenue will come from the environmental fund, paid for by increased solid waste fees.

PCA cuts include $332,000 from water pollution control; $125,000 from hazardous waste pollution control; and, $210,000 from general departmental support. A total of $1.2 million is appropriated from the environmental fund for an evaluation of landfills. While Select Committee on Recycling and the Environment (SCORE) block grants to counties are not reduced, the general fund budget of the Office of Waste Management is reduced $596,000. A solid waste fee of 20 cents per cubic yard of waste is designated and extended to all processing facilities. Funds go into a newly established landfill cleanup fund in the PCA.

The general fund budget of the Science Museum is reduced by $60,000.

While reductions to the Dept. of Agriculture general fund budget come to $406,000, the aggregate dollar impact will amount to a $357,000 reduction for F.Y. 1992 and an increase of $100,000 for F.Y. 1993. The bill authorizes the Dept. of Agriculture to charge fees for farm crisis assistance services, raises annual application fees for pesticides, and transfers $2.2 million from the family farm security account to the general fund. Minnesota laws are amended by providing that checkoff fees under the Commodities Promotion Act may be fully or partially refunded. The commissioner of agriculture is required to appoint a task force and report on direct transfer of commodity checkoff fee refunds. Ten thousand dollars is appropriated to the Board of Animal Health for testing turkeys and chickens for avian influenza and the cap on the ethanol development account is reduced from $9 million to $8.55 million.

The governor's recommended $50 million cut to higher education spending was trimmed to $29.07 million. The cuts include $5.785 from the appropriation to the State Board for Technical Colleges; $3.503 million from the State Board for Community Colleges; $3.999 million from the State University Board; and, $15.713 million from the Board of Regents of the University of Minnesota.

Changes include in-state tuition eligibility for migrant farm workers and a repeal of the requirement limiting the allowable percentage of foreign students. A workplace literacy resource center is established at Northeast Metro Technical College. The responsibility for the regulation of private business, trade, and correspondence schools is transferred from the commissioner of education to the Higher Education Coordinating Board.

General fund reductions to infrastructure and regulation come to $14.367 million, with new revenues for the biennium projected at $2.64 million. Changes in the Dept. of Transportation (Mn/DOT) include two transfers of trunk highway funds within the Mn/DOT and an appropriation of $2 million for state road operations. In addition, $440,000 is appropriated for Greater Minnesota transit assistance and $1.5 million is appropriated for Metro Mobility.

Reductions in the Dept. of Public Safety, where the Emergency Management Division and the Emergency Response Commission will be consolidated, equal $2.418 million. An increase of $283,000 is appropriated for the Dept. of Public Service and five positions for gasoline and oxygenated fuel testing and enforcement are added.

A general reduction of $95,000 each year is required of the Minnesota Historical Society. A reduction of $1 million is made from the Agricultural Utilization Research Institute (AURI). The World Trade Center is appropriated $580,000 for the costs of privatization. While a general reduction of $75,000 is made from the budget of the state arts board, $20,000 is appropriated for the restoration of the Kee Theatre in Kiester.

Statutory changes include one to the campaign elections fund: three percent of individual's contributions will be retained in the general fund to cover administrative costs. Various Dept. of Commerce license fees are raised, as are specified filing fees for public offices. Another change allows the Iron Range Resources and Rehabilitation Board to accept merchandise as payment of advertising contracts.

For Fiscal Year 1993, the amount the lottery director may transfer to the lottery operations account is reduced from 15 to 14.5 percent. The requirement for class D racing days is changed as is the distribution procedure for money designated for purses. The surcharge on traffic fines is increased from 12 to 15 percent and the revenue is directed to a special revenue account for peace officers training.

The economic and state affairs appropriations provisions reduce state general fund expenditures by about $29 million for the biennium, and raise approximately $15 million in new revenue. General reductions are approximately eight percent for the Legislature, half a percent for the judicial system, and two percent for most other agencies.

Major adjustments include: $2.4 million to improve financial and reporting systems in the Public Defender, Finance and Administration Departments; $1.3 million for public television and radio; $500,000 for the summer wage subsidy program for youths; and, $1.4 million for previously approved park facilities and $2.3 million for park operations and maintenance. The appropriation to the attorney general's office is reduced by $550,000, and a general reduction of $60,000 is made to the Office of Strategic and Long-Range Planning.

Other reductions include a cut of $200,000 for the Dept. of Trade and Economic Development's annual Medical Exposition, and a cut of $2.02 million from Minneapolis Police and Fire Amortization Aid. This reduction is due to excess earnings by the Minneapolis Police and Fire Relief Association.

The Supreme Court is directed to adopt rules governing vacation leave of judges and paid judicial leave for educational and professional purposes. The Court is also directed to adopt rules governing the acceptance of compensation for work performed by judges on time for which they are compensated by the state. Finally, the Court is directed to report on the certification of short-hand court reporters.

Warrants issued by the state are canceled within six months instead of five years, returning revenue to the general fund. The responsibility for the cost of public defender services is shifted from counties to the Board of Public Defense.

In an effort to minimize layoffs of public employees, the bill provides state-paid health insurance for people taking early retirement.

The law provides a total of $3.626 billion for the biennial funding of human development. This is an increase of $2.003 million, reflecting a reduction of $1.799 million in F.Y. 1992 and an increase of $3.802 million in F.Y. 1993. For F.Y. 1993, total state spending is offset by $65 million in provider payments deposited in the general fund under the broad-based health care provider tax program.

Changes in the human services include an increase in the authorization for administration funds from $100,000 to $314,000 annually. Health Dept. changes include increases in license and permit fees and a registration system for home management service providers who are not licensed as home care agencies. A competency evaluation program is established for nursing home assistants and the commissioner of health is directed to report on the feasibility and advisability of consolidating licensure and regulation of home care services into one system.

An annual license surcharge of $400 for physicians is added. The surcharge on nursing home licenses is increased from $500 to $535 and a general surcharge of .6 percent is imposed on all health maintenance organizations (HMO). A general hospital tax equal to 1.4 percent of net patient revenues is imposed on inpatient and outpatient services. Medical assistance (MA) payments to rural hospitals with low MA usage are increased. Hospitals with 100 or fewer admissions get a 20 percent increase, and hospitals with between 100 and 250 admissions get a 15 percent increase. Payment for mental health and chemical dependency admissions will change from a per day basis to a per admission basis.

The commissioner of human services is prohibited from granting automatic inflation adjustments for home care services, alternative care services, or operating costs for nursing homes.

A new category is added for General Assistance (GA) eligibility: non-English speaking students. To the list of AFDC families who are guaranteed child care assistance, AFDC caretakers who participate in the non-STRIDE AFDC child care program are added.

A provision effective January 1, 1993, allows work readiness participation during any six nonconsecutive months in a 12-month period and requires participation in orientation before initial payment.

The monthly maximum payment rate for recipients in group residences is raised to $966.37.

In the area of child support enforcement, the support enforcement authority and its client are exempted from paying filing fees in a motion to modify child support. Filing fees collected in other support modifications are to be paid to the court rather than the state and used to pay for child support enforcement by county attorneys. The obligee's application fee to receive support enforcement services is raised from $5 to $25. The commissioner of human services must give counties grants to cover the costs of the administrative process or child support enforcement and must ensure that the statewide child support system is operating efficiently.

The commissioners of administration, jobs and training, human services and trade and economic development are required to identify purchasing contracts with certified rehabilitation facilities and day training and habilitation services that will enhance employment opportunities for persons with severe disabilities.

The commissioner of human services is prohibited from closing regional treatment centers, state-operated nursing homes, or Ah-Gwah-Ching Center without specific legislative authorization.

Among services for the developmentally disabled, case management for the mentally retarded is a covered service under Medical Assistance. The law also establishes a Dakota county mental health services project.

Anti-violence initiatives

The Legislature gave strong bipartisan support to an omnibus anti-violence initiative that spends two dollars for violence prevention and victims' services for every dollar it spends on criminals. The measure's Senate author, Sen. Allan Spear, said the law attempts to address the root causes of violence with prevention and education. The new law, Chap. 571, was sponsored by Rep. Kathlessn Vellenga in the House of Representatives.

The package, which totals $12.593 million, provides $4 million for the criminal justice system, $1.83 for victim services, and $6.7 million for violence prevention and education including $1 million for the Head Start program. In addition, the bill raises $5.9 million in revenue through increases in mandatory minimum fines and increases in fees for processing petty misdemeanors.

Penalties for sex offenders are stiffened. A person convicted of first degree murder involving forcible criminal sexual conduct must be sentenced to life imprisonment without parole under the new law. A life sentence without the possibility of parole for 30 years is mandated for a third rape conviction and a 30 year sentence is mandated for a rape conviction after a prior aggravated rape conviction. Another new provision calls for review of all sex criminals six months before scheduled prison release, for possible civil commitment as psychopathic personalities.

Participation in sex offender programs is subject to rules of the commissioner of corrections and the commissioner may refuse treatment to inmates who are not amenable to treatment. The commissioner is also authorized to place sex offenders on intensive supervised release and to order offenders to participate in sex offender programs as a condition of release. No sex offenders will be eligible for intensive community supervision programs under the new statute.

The new law gives priority for funding to juvenile sex offender programs over adult programs. The requirement for assessing a juvenile sex offender's need for sex offender treatment is extended to juveniles committing fifth degree criminal sexual conduct, offenses involving obscene or harassing phone calls or an indecent exposure offense.

The law establishes a new felony sentencing system under which an offender receives a two-part sentence consisting of a specified minimum term of imprisonment and a specified maximum period of supervised release. These offenders are no longer eligible to receive "good time" reductions in their prison sentence; instead, the sentences can be lengthened for violating prison rules. The current 40 year cap on consecutive sentences is removed. The law also permits joinder of defendants for trial if they are alleged to have participated in the same act.

An escort is required for any inmate who is released from prison to a half-way house or other residential program, and supervised release programs must inform the appropriate agency within two hours when an inmate fails to report.

Under the new law, a challenge incarceration, or "boot camp," is established for young men convicted for the first time of non-violent crimes.

Changes in the law regarding juvenile offenders include criminal prosecution of offenders between the ages of 16 and 18 if the juvenile has been referred previously for prosecution on a felony charge. Chemical use assessment is required if the probation officer determines alcohol or drug use contributed to the offense. If the offender possessed a firearm at the time of the offense, the court must order the firearm seized and the juvenile must perform at least 100 hours of community work service. Juvenile court records must be retained and forwarded to the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA), which is required to establish a system for recording the data.

Penalties for domestic abuse and harassment are also strengthened. Persons convicted of a first time violation of an Order For Protection (OFP) must be sentenced to at least two days in jail and ordered to participate in treatment. A second OFP violation within two years means a minimum sentence of ten days in jail. In addition, ongoing training about domestic abuse is required for district judges and all law enforcement agencies must adopt written policies regarding arrest procedures for domestic abuse incidents.

The law contains several new provisions for crime victims including a 24-hour telephone line to provide referrals for victim services. Separate waiting rooms are to be provided for victims at courthouses and victims have a right to the presence of a supportive person in juvenile delinquency proceedings.

Institutions of higher education are required, and the University of Minnesota is requested, to adopt sexual harassment and violence policies that, among other things, inform victims of their rights.

Schools are also required to post sexual harassment and sexual violence policy throughout the school building and to develop a process for discussing the policy with students and employees. Each school district is encouraged to integrate into its curriculum a violence prevention program and funding is provided to assist in the development of the programs.

Early childhood family education is expanded to include programs to prevent child abuse and neglect and funding is provided for a pilot children's safety center. The children's safety center is designed to provide a nonthreatening environment for children meeting with parents during visitation.

The law directs the commissioners of human services and education to design a statewide program to link schools with health and social services. The commissioner is also directed to establish pilot projects to reduce juvenile offender recidivism by identifying and treating mental health problems.

A grant program is established to assist local governments units in establishing community based councils to develop and implement violence prevention programs.

Omnibus education finance

Chap. 499, the K-12 education finance package, authored by Sen. Ronald Dicklich and Rep. Ken Nelson, contains numerous provisions that make changes in current law regarding general education, transportation, enrollment options, levies and referendums, education organization and cooperation, facility financing, choice programs, and libraries. The law also contains provisions that establish referendum allowance limits and make changes to the debt service equalization program.

Chap. 571 also provides tougher sentences for sex offenders and strengthens penalties for domestic abuse.

The new education financing law, Chap. 499, contains provisions that encourage parents' involvement in their children's education.

As part of the budget reduction effort, the law makes a five percent cut in the Dept. of Education. In addition, the law makes an accounting change that saves the state over $180 million in the current biennial budget by increasing the property tax recognition shift percentage from 37 percent to 50 percent. The measure also creates a new open and standing state aid to reimburse districts for short term borrowing costs that result from the levy recognition. Earlier in the session, some legislators proposed a tax on soft drinks to fund some education programs. However, legislators removed the so-called "pop tax" from the package.

Parental involvement programs gain prominence, under the chapter. The new legislation requires parental involvement programs to involve parents or guardians of color and to encourage parents to actively participate in their district's curriculum advisory committee. The law requires parental involvement plan activities to include educational programs and opportunities that are multicultural, gender fair, and disability sensitive. It also calls for parental involvement in a district's curriculum advisory committee or school building team. Financially, the measure sets aside up to $1 of the $5 per pupil parental involvement program allowance for promoting parental involvement in the planning, evaluating and reporting (PER) process.

One provision in the chapter transfers the appointing authority for the commissioner of education from the governor to the State Board of Education. However, the provision gives the governor approval authority over the appointment.

Equal opportunity for sports received some attention from the Legislature. The law requires districts operating and maintaining ice arenas to offer equal sports opportunities for male and female students. Instruction in Braille reading and writing for blind students is provided for in the law through the establishment of the Blind Person's Literacy Rights and Education Act.

Teacher preparation and licensure was an issue at the Capitol in 1992. The law requires people applying for an initial teaching license to successfully complete a skills examination before being admitted to an approved post-secondary teacher preparation program and to provide direct instruction to pupils in various K-12 programs. As a prerequisite to an internship program, the law requires applicants to successfully complete an examination of general pedagogical knowledge. And before receiving a continuing license, applicants must complete a one-year supervised and assessed internship in a professional development school and pass an examination of licensure-specific teaching skills.

Changes in graduation standards are delayed for at least two years, under one provision in the law. Another provision requires schools to conspicuously post the school sexual harassment and violence prevention policy throughout the school building and to develop a process for discussing the school policy with students and school employees. And school districts gain an extension of a special levy for crime related costs, including costs for drug abuse prevention programs.

Chap. 499 also provides for funding K-12 education.

Bonding authorization

The 1992 Legislature authorized $275 million in bond sales for a variety of state projects relating to education, human development, environment and natural resources, economic development, infrastructure, and criminal justice. Sen. Gene Merriam and Rep. Wayne Simoneau said that the list of projects is the result of a compromise between the Senate, the House of Representatives and the governor. Supporters of the package, Chap. 558, said the projects will improve the economy and provide jobs.

Higher education bonding totals $102.3 million. The measure calls for a new basic sciences and biomedical building at the University of Minnesota at a cost $52.7 million, the most expensive item on the list. Mankato State University receives over $2.4 million to construct a utility tunnel and to repair fire damage at Nelson Hall. K-12 projects total almost $26 million. Over $12 million goes to maximum effort school loans and $5.9 million is marked for cooperative secondary facilities. Other education projects include a $1.3

million library for the blind and $400,000 for the Hoffman Center in St. Peter.

Human services projects add up to more than $24 million. The Fergus Falls Regional Treatment Center gains $13.4 million. And the St. Peter Regional Treatment Center receives $8.1 million to house additional mentally ill and dangerous inmates, including sex offenders.

Environment and natural resources projects account for $32.7 million of the total. The Dept. of Natural Resources is provided $11.7 million for numerous items, including appropriations for fish hatcheries, trails, dam repairs, scientific and natural areas, and state parks. The DNR also received an appropriation to construct and renovate field offices. Other environmental allotments include over $13 million to the Pollution Control Agency for combined sewer overflow grants, and $2 million to the Office of Waste Management for capital assistance program grants. Transportation funding in the package comes to just under $30 million. The long list of transportation projects include welding shops, chemical storage sheds, truck stations, equipment buildings, and an airport hanger. The largest expenditure on the list is $10 million to match federal funds for the Bloomington Ferry Bridge project.

age. The measure includes $2 million for head start facilities and $1 million for battered women's shelters.

MTC bonding

Financing the Metropolitan Transit Commission's efforts to make the MTC bus system more user-friendly and to counter declining ridership is the purpose of a law passed in the 1992 session. Chap. 579, sponsored by Sen. Gene Merriam and Rep. Wayne Simoneau, states legislative support for the five-year, $116.2 million plan by the MTC and the Regional Transit Board to develop more customer-oriented facilities and policies.

The law authorizes the Metropolitan Council to issue $62 million in bonds for carrying out the first two years of the plan. Of this initial bonding amount, $44 million may be used for fleet replacement, facilities, and capital equipment, and $18 million may be used for transit hubs, park-and-ride lots, community-based transit vehicles, and intelligent vehicle highway systems projects. The bill specifies that the MTC must submit a report to the Legislature in early 1994 analyzing whether ridership has increased as a result of the program.

Aquatic farming

A law licensing and regulating the business of private aquatic farms was passed by the Legislature this session. Chap. 566, sponsored by Sen. Charles Berg and Rep. Wally Sparby, is designed to prevent the spread of aquatic diseases and exotic species, to protect natural aquatic habitats and the wildlife dependent on them, and to protect private aquatic life from unauthorized taking or harvest.

Under the law, the DNR is authorized to make fish eggs, fry and brood stock available to private aquatic farms at fair market value. The law specifies conditions for certifying and maintaining standard, containment and quarantine facilities and requires mandatory inspection for salmon, trout and catfish operations. Also, the DNR is authorized to sell game fish to private fish farms, and aquatic farmers are authorized to take minnows and sucker eggs with proper licensing. Finally, rough fish and yellow perch may be sold by a tribal member of the White Earth Reservation to a licensed aquatic farmer.

Waste management

Chap. 593 sets a 25 percent state wide per capita waste reduction goal for Minnesota. The new waste management provisions are designed to foster an integrated waste management system in a manner appropriate to the waste stream by: reducing the amount and toxicity of waste generated; separating and recovering materials and energy from waste; reducing indiscriminate dependence on disposal of waste; coordinating solid waste management among political subdivisions; and, providing for the orderly development and financial security of waste facilities including disposal facilities.

Provisions of the new law, sponsored by Sen. Gene Merriam and Rep. Jean Wagenius, include the application of the state's waste management hierarchy to state purchasing decisions: whenever feasible, state agencies shall purchase recycled materials and degradable loose foam packing material. The concept of lowering the toxicity of waste is added to the definition of waste reduction or source reduction.

Cities and counties that collect solid waste management fees must use volume or weight based fee systems. Volume based pricing systems must be pay-per-unit systems. Counties and the Pollution Control Agency may not impose hazardous waste fees on material that is reused at the facility where the material is generated as long as the material does not result in an increased toxicity level in products leaving the facility.

The new law prohibits the placement of telephone books in solid waste. Effective Jan. 1, 1993, telephone books must be recyclable, and beginning in 1994, telephone book publishers must provide for collection and transportation of the books to a recycler.

Manufacturers of button cell and rechargeable batteries must note the electrode type on the battery label. In addition, the law requires manufacturers of rechargeable batteries to set up pilot projects for their collection.

Studies are mandated on automobile related wastes, construction debris management, used motor oil management, degradable loose packing material, closed landfills, and regional waste management needs.

The Commissioner of Public Safety is required to adopt rules to implement a statewide hazardous materials incident response plan. The plan must include provisions for up to five regional hazardous response teams.

Fees are imposed on facilities that store hazardous substances.

Pollution control

The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA) is directed to start a program to help small businesses comply with the federal Clean Air Act under a new law passed this year.

Chap. 546, the Small Business Air Quality Compliance Assistance Program is designed to help businesses being regulated for the first time. Information and technical assistance on compliance with state and federal regulations, methods of pollution prevention, and air quality permits will be offered. Businesses with up to 100 employees are eligible.

The new law, presented by Rep. Mary Jo McGuire and Sen. Steven Morse, also provides for the appointment of an ombudsperson to oversee the program. The ombudsperson is to conduct independent evaluations of all aspects of the program and represent the concerns of small businesses. A nine-member advisory panel will be appointed to advise the PCA on the program's effectiveness.

Fees paid by companies that pollute will rise in relation to the amount they pollute, and the $30,000 cap on toxic pollution fees is removed.

The PCA is charged with establishing a statewide monitoring program for probable sources of air-borne toxic substances. The law also requires the PCA commissioner to report to the legislature on the role of the PCA Board.

In addition, a study of occupational health problems associated with the operation of video display terminals (VDT's) must be conducted by the commissioner of labor and industry.

Lead abatement

Minnesota's first program to clean up home lead poisoning hazards and provide education about lead has been approved by the Legislature. However, two chapters contain the identical language concerning lead abatement. Chap. 595, sponsored by Sen. John Hottinger and Rep. Lee Greenfield, and Chap. 522 sponsored by Rep. Andy Dawkins and Sen. Joanne Benson provide for the testing of children under the age of six who live in high risk areas. Within those areas, under the new chapters, lead assessments are to be made in the homes of children and pregnant women already exposed, including follow-up visits and testing. The law provides that safe housing be made available for use during lead abatement procedures. The law specifies that at least 50 percent of federal lead abatement funds are to be allocated for lead cleanup. Under Chap. 595 and Chap. 522, boards of health are required to order property owners to perform abatement on the homes of children or pregnant women with elevated blood lead levels if the home exceeds safe lead levels. The measure requires that an ongoing lead education program be provided to health care and social service providers, contractors, building trades professionals and nonprofessionals, property owners and parents. The new law requires proactive lead education programs for communities at high risk for toxic lead exposure to children and provides for licensing of lead abatement contractors.

The PCA and the OWM are directed to study compliance with laws relating to the collection of used motor oil under Chap. 593.

Parental leave law

Leave laws govern several kinds of employee leaves of absence, including jury duty, court appearances for crime victims, military service, sick or injured child care, and school conference and activities. The 1992 Legislature changed the existing school conference and activities leave law from 16 hours a school year to 16 hours during any 12 month period. Proponents of the policy said the parental leave policies benefit society by nurturing the relationships between children and their parents, and by reducing the incidence and expensive ramifications of abuse.

Chap. 576, authored by Sen. Pat Piper and Rep. Alice Johnson, also broadens the definition of school conference and classroom activity to include child care. If an employee's child receives child care through nursery schools, day care centers, Head Start, or extended school day programs, or if the child attends a prekindergarten regular or special education program, the employee may use leave time allotted for those purposes to attend a conference or activity related to the employee's child, or to observe and monitor the services--provided the conference, activity, or observation cannot be scheduled during nonwork hours.

Under the law, the Division of Labor in the Dept. of Labor and Industry must attempt to resolve employee complaints by informing employees and employers about the parental leave law and directing employers to comply with the law. The law also requires the Division of Labor to develop and make available a poster that states employee rights.

Mercury recycling

A law regulating the sale, use and disposal of mercury was passed by the Legislature. Chap. 560, sponsored by Rep. Jean Wagenius and Sen. Gregory Dahl, restricts the sale of mercury to medical, dental, instructional, research, and manufacturing purposes. Purchasers are required to sign a statement attesting that they understand mercury's toxicity, and will use, store, and dispose of it properly.

All products, including fluorescent lamps, containing mercury must be clearly labeled and carry instructions for the disposal of the mercury. Mercury or instruments containing mercury may not be placed in solid waste or in a wastewater disposal system.

According to the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, 14,000 pounds of mercury are released into the Minnesota's air yearly and mercury levels in Minnesota's lakes have increased three to five percent each year.

The new law bans the sale or resale of toys and games containing mercury. It also requires recycling of major appliances and directs each county to ensure that all its residents have the opportunity to recycle used major appliances.

The major goal of Chap. 560 is to reduce mercury from the waste stream. Under the new law medical facilities are prohibited from distributing mercury thermometers.

Workers compensation reform

Years of efforts towards workers' compensation reform came to fruition in the 1992 Session. Chap. 388, sponsored by Sen. Florian Chmielewski and Rep. Tom Rukavina, represents a bi-partisan agreement for workers' compensation reform, according to supporters of the new law.

The reform measure mandates a 16 percent reduction in insurers approved rate schedules in effect on Oct. 1, 1992 until Apr. 1, 1993, cutting approximately $200 million dollars from the

$1.2 billion in costs paid annually by employers. In addition, the law freezes rating plan increases filed between Apr. 1, 1992, and Apr. 1, 1993.

A key aspect of the measure is a "managed care" system under which an employer can provide medical care and services to injured employees through providers or groups of providers certified by the commissioner of the Dept. of Labor and Industry. The law establishes a fraud unit to investigate fraudulent and illegal practices by health care providers, employers, employees, insurers, or attorneys.

The reforms include an increase in the maximum benefit level to 105 percent of the statewide average weekly wage (SAWW). It also lowers the minimum benefit to the lesser of 20 percent of the SAWW or the employee's actual wage. The law limits the payments and puts a cap of 225 weeks on temporary partial benefits for working employees who are earning less than their pre-injury wage. The new law also changes the escalator (the escalator increases the percentage of growth in the SAWW) provision from six percent a year to four percent a year. Moreover, the law provides that supplementary benefits are available only to permanently and totally disabled workers. Temporary total and temporary partially disabled workers are no longer eligible, under the new law.

The new law exempts from mandatory workers' compensation insurance coverage family farm units paying between $8,000 and the statewide average annual wage (currently $23,036) in cash and wages and, having insurance coverage equal to at least $300,000 in total liability and a minimum of $5,000 in medical coverage. The law does not change for family farm units with less than $8,000 in cash wages.

The law creates an advisory council with six employer and six employee representatives. The council advises the commissioner of labor and industry and makes recommendations to the Legislature, if the recommendations have the support of a majority of the business and labor members. The law also charges the chief administrative law judge with amending the rules and procedures to streamline the hearing process for the Workers Compensation Court of Appeals.

Advocates for both business and labor interests agree that the best antidote to high workers compensation rates is accident prevention. The law creates an assigned risk safety fund designed to achieve methods of hazard reductions for employers with poor safety records or employers in hazardous classifications. The fund, which is funded from fines and penalties assessed and collected under workers compensation law, also makes grants and loans to employers toward the cost of implementing safety recommendations.

Detroit Lakes economic development

A new law sponsored by Sen. Roger Moe and Rep. Loren Thompson, authorizes the commissioner of finance to sell up to $5 million in bonds to help the town of Detroit Lakes find a buyer for the Swift-Eckrich turkey plant.

In December, 1991, Swift-Eckrich announced plans to close the plant, the largest employer in Detroit Lakes. More than 500 workers would have been laid off beginning in May 1992.

The new law, Chap. 543, seeks to save those jobs, create others, to foster long-term economic growth, and to ensure the preservation and growth of the tax base.

The proceeds of the bonds may be used to finance the costs of acquiring, renovating, improving or equipping the facility according to the new chapter.

The likelihood of purchasing healthy pets is increased because of provisions in Chap. 585.

Puppy mill bill passed

A new law sponsored by Sen. Ted Mondale and Rep. Andy Dawkins, is aimed at curtailing the breeding and distribution of unhealthy animals by unscrupulous animal breeders. Chap. 585 requires that pet dealers must provide purchasers of animals with a written disclosure that includes details about the animal's origin and states that it is healthy. The animal must be examined by a veterinarian other than the one used by the breeder. Dealers must also provide purchasers with documents needed for registration and a statement of consumer rights.

Liquor candies

The sale of liquor-filled candies is clarified by a new law, sponsored by Sen. Sam Solon and Rep. Joel Jacobs. Under Chap. 486, authorized liquor stores and business establishments that derive more than 50 percent of their gross sales from confections are the only entities that are allowed to sell liquor candies. Previous law made it unclear whether candy stores could sell the liquor-filled confections.

The law requires the liquor candies to bear a label that reads, "This product may not be sold to anyone under 21 years of age." The candy cannot contain more than five percent alcohol by volume where the alcohol is in a nonliquid form from being mixed with other substances during the manufacture of the candy (mostly cream-filled candies).

The law does not allow candy stores to sell "liqueur-filled" candy, which is defined as "any confectionery containing more than one-half of one percent alcohol by volume in a liquid form that is intended for or capable of beverage use." However, liquor stores can continue to sell the "liqueur-filled" confections.

Another provision in the law allows the Division of Liquor Control in the Dept. of Public Safety to use unmarked vehicles in liquor investigations. The law also provides for reasonable licensing fees; specifies conditions under which a municipality is required to hold a public hearing on the question of continued operation of a municipal liquor store; authorizes an on-sale licensee to dispense liquor at the National Sports Center in Blaine; authorizes Blue Earth County to issue an on-sale liquor license to a billiard hall; allows Lake Township in Roseau County to establish, own, and operate an exclusive liquor store; and authorizes Swift and Aitkin counties to issue off-sale liquor licenses.

Motor carrier law updated

Chap. 600, the Motor Carrier Modernization Act, makes fundamental changes in the classification and regulation of motor carriers. The new law, sponsored by Sen. Jim Vickerman and Rep. Harold Lasley, is the result of a year-long negotiation process among motor carriers, and is intended to resolve disputes in the trucking industry that arose after a 1988 Court of Appeals ruling clarified the differences between regular route and irregular route carriers.

Under Chapter 600, the current system of classification of motor carriers as "regular route" and "irregular route" carriers is eliminated. In its place is a new system, which designates carriers as Class I if they own or control two or more terminals, and Class II if they own or control one terminal. The law provides a process for converting current licenses and permits to the new system. Under the new system, Class I certificates are issued to carriers that own or control two or more terminals and Class II certificates are issued to carriers that own or control one terminal. The law also authorizes the commissioner of transportation to impose fines on carriers that operate without proper authority or who violate rate rules.

Rental housing provisions

Under a new housing law enacted this year, tenants rights are strengthened and clarified.

Chap. 376, sponsored by Rep. Karen Clark and Sen. James Metzen, authorizes tenants to pay for continued utility service after the landlord has been issued notice of service termination. If the building is condemned or the landlord's interest in the building terminated, the time in which the landlord must return a damage deposit is shortened from three weeks to five days. In rent escrow actions, tenants may be represented by persons other than lawyers and tenants who do not owe rent may begin rent escrow actions. Courts may provide additional time for a tenant who has paid all past due rent to pay other landlord costs for bringing an unlawful detainer action.

If the tenant brings past due rent to court in such actions, the court may order a refund of the landlord's filing fee. Landlords are also required to maintain energy efficiency in rental property.

Neighborhood organizations may take action on behalf of a building's tenants with the written permission of the tenants of a majority of the occupied units.

The authority of housing and redevelopment authorities (HRAs) is extended to include vacant lots that contain substandard buildings within three years preceding the exercise of eminent domain. HRAs are permitted to administer a leased existing housing assistance payment program under Section 8 provisions. Several contracts are exempted from performance bond requirements.

The new law authorizes the city of St. Paul to establish an HRA. The HRA may provide business working capital, acquire an equity interest in for-profit businesses, and use funds outside the boundaries of existing redevelopment districts.

Modifications are made to an existing youth employment grant program providing education and training to at-risk youth in conjunction with construction or rehabilitation of housing for the homeless. Priority is given to organizations that have successfully operated such programs and annual grants are limited to $50,000. The job readiness skills component must comprise at least 20 percent of each program. Priority for residential units that become available through the program must be given to participants.

A grant program is established in the Housing Finance Agency to set up a similar program for homeless adults. Each program must contain work experience, job readiness, and life skills components. The work experience must include projects that result in rehabilitation or construction of housing for the homeless, offer training for potential jobs, pay monetary compensation, provide supervision, and examine how participants may achieve certification.

Airport noise mitigation efforts required

Chap. 551, sponsored by Sen. Phil Riveness and Rep. Edwina Garcia, requires the Metropolitan Airports Commission to dedicate an increasing portion of a passenger facility charge for noise mitigation measures such as land acquisition, corrective land use management, and installation of soundproofing and air conditioning in homes, schools, and other public buildings where there is a demonstrated need because of aircraft noise. The new law specifies that in 1993 and 1994, 20 percent of the amount budgeted from the fee will be spent on noise mitigation, increasing to 35 percent in 1995 and 40 percent in 1996. The MAC's request for authorization to collect the passenger facility charge is pending with the Federal Aviation Administration.

Living will form change

A minor addition to the Living Will form used in Minnesota is provided by Chap. 535, sponsored by Sen. Sam Solon and Rep. Mike Jaros.

The Living Will provides a health care declaration which gives health care providers or a designated proxy the power and guidance to make health care decisions in accord with the wishes of the signer when the signer is in a terminal condition and unable to make the decisions. Chap. 535 adds language to the form indicating whether the signer has agreed in another document or on another form to donate organs upon death.

The continuing problem of airport noise is addressed in Chap. 551, which requires the MAC to dedicate part of the airports facility charge for noise mitigation.

Chap. 559 authorizes the various health licensing boards to monitor health care workers who report being infected with the human immunodeficiency virus or hepatitis B virus.

Tobacco-free schools

Chap. 576 calls for tobacco-free public elementary and secondary schools beginning Aug. 15, 1993. Under the law, "no person shall at any time smoke or use any tobacco product in a public school." The prohibition extends to all facilities whether owned, rented, or leased, and all vehicles that a school districts owns, leases, rents, contracts for, or controls.

Advocates of the policy, sponsored by Sen. Gregory Dahl and Rep. Kris Hasskamp, pointed out the contrast between the anti-smoking students and the student activists of twenty years ago who fought for the right to have smoking lounges in schools. Many supporters of the bill admitted they used to be the ones fighting for student smoking rights. They said the times have changed, however, and that because schools advocate good health, the schools should provide a smoke-free environment.

Sen. Harold "Skip" Finn expressed concern that the law's language would prohibit some Native American cultural activities that require the display of tobacco. Dahl said the law is not intended to prohibit this kind of activity and that the Legislature will clarify the law next year.

The anti-smoking law also repeals a provision in law that allowed patients in health care facilities to smoke if the patient's attending physician authorized it in writing.

HIV, HBV and health workers

Under Chap. 559, sponsored by Sen. Pat Piper and Rep. David Bishop, licensed health care workers who are infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) or the hepatitis B virus (HBV) are required to report their status to the appropriate licensing board. The boards are authorized to monitor the health care workers who report that they are infected with HIV or HBV and to impose sanctions on infected workers who fail to report their status to the licensing board.

Also included in Chapter 559 are provisions for the licensing of chemical dependency counselors.

Omnibus Data Practices Act

Chap. 569, containing changes to the Data Practices Act, sponsored by Sen. Jane Ranum and Rep. Phil Carruthers, enacts a variety of changes and additions to existing law regarding the collection and dissemination of data.

The law provides for background checks to be performed by the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension on individuals seeking to be employed as children's service workers. In the case of someone convicted of a sex offense, the sentencing court may order the offender to be tested for HIV if the victim requests the test, the prosecutor moves for the test and there is evidence that the victim was at risk of being exposed to the virus as a result of the offense.

The law imposes restrictions on the issuance of pardons extraordinary. In the case of a crime of violence, the offender must wait ten years after the sentence was discharged before applying for the pardon, and in the case of any other crime, the offender must wait five years. In any case, the offender must not have been convicted of a subsequent crime. The pardon extraordinary must be made a part of the pardoned offender's court record and a copy of the pardon must be sent to the BCA.

Omnibus DWI

Important changes in existing law governing penalties for offenders convicted of driving while intoxicated are made by Chap. 570, sponsored by Sen. John Marty and Rep. Phil Carruthers. The law has been applauded by Mothers Against Drunk Driving and, according to Marty, "It's the most significant group of changes in our DWI laws in a number of years."

The new law allows confiscation of a driver's vehicle when an individual is convicted of a fourth DWI offense in five years, or is convicted of five DWI offenses in 15 years, or is convicted of a DWI offense after permanent license revocation.

First-time DWI offenders will have to wait 15 days before applying for a temporary drivers' license rather than getting the license immediately as allowed under current law. The waiting period for a temporary license on a second offense is raised from 45 days to 90 days, and, if convicted on the second offense, the person's license will be revoked for 180 days rather than 90.

The law makes refusal to take a breathalyzer test a misdemeanor on the first offense rather than on the second or subsequent offenses as current law provides. In addition, an individual convicted of a second DWI offense who is using a license revoked for the first offense will have his or her license plates impounded. Currently, such action is taken on the third offense.

More stringent penalties are imposed by the law. A third DWI conviction will result in a 30-day jail sentence unless the court orders probation and treatment and the penalty for causing death while driving intoxicated is increased to four years in prison.

Finally, the law establishes a commission to study confinement and treatment of DWI offenders and mandates the commission to recommend specific measures to be taken to stop repeat offenders.

Auto, rail regulation changes

Chap. 581, sponsored by Sen. Gary DeCramer and Rep. Andy Steensma, makes numerous changes to automobile and railway-related regulations. Under the new law, the fee for Minnesota identification cards purchased by people with physical disabilities is lowered to 50 cents. Under current law, the 50 cent fee already applies to identification card purchasers who are mentally retarded.

The new law also exempts county colors are exhibited in major museums and libraries in the U.S., Great Britain, Paris and Moscow.

Ms. Gag is also the author of ten books for children, including Millions of Cats, a 1928 runner-up for the Newbery Medal, and a collection of diary entries and drawings entitled Growing Pains.

Heritage Preservation Act

The Legislature enacted several changes in laws governing placement of children in foster and adoptive homes. Prior to enactment of Chap. 557, sponsored by Sen. Linda Berglin and Rep. Richard Jefferson, a child-placing agency was required to give due consideration of the race or ethnic heritage of a minority child when making out-of-home placement decisions. The new law eliminates references to minority status and requires consideration of race or ethnic heritage in foster or adoptive placement of all children. Preference in placement is given to a relative, a family with the same racial or ethnic heritage as the child, or a family of different racial or ethnic heritage from the child that is knowledgeable and appreciative of the child's racial or ethnic heritage. The order of preference in the new law is superseded in the case of an American Indian child by the requirements of the federal Indian Child Welfare Act.

The new law further provides that a disability of a proposed custodian or the child shall not be determinative of the custody of the child unless the proposed custodial arrangement is not in the best interest of the child. Finally, the law mandates a study commission to examine issues surrounding the placement of children in foster or adoptive homes and the level of compliance with placement preferences for protection of a child's heritage or background.

Access to employee records

Sen. Gene Merriam and Rep. Tom Rukavina sponsored legislation that social service agency vehicles used for child and vulnerable adult protective services from the requirement to display identification; authorizes issuance of restricted commercial drivers' licenses; specifies that license plate fees are to be credited to the highway user tax distribution fund; updates the list of vehicles recognized as collector vehicles; and exempts certain farm trucks from a requirement for separate service brake and parking brake systems.

Under the rail service provisions in Chap. 581, the commissioner of transportation is authorized to acquire abandoned rail lines and rights-of-way by eminent domain and to spend funds from the rail service improvement account for maintenance of rail lines and rights-of-way. The law also eliminates the requirement that state rail bank property must be offered to adjacent land owners. In addition, it authorizes the ratification of fuel tax agreements, including the international fuel tax agreement and specifies that fuel license fees collected under the agreement are to be deposited in the highway user tax distribution fund.

Wanda Gag, American author and illustrator

Resolution 9, passed by the Legislature during the 1992 session, petitions the postmaster general of the United States to issue a postal stamp commemorating Wanda Gag, American author and illustrator. The resolution was sponsored by Sen. Dennis Frederickson and Rep. Terry Dempsey.

Wanda Gag was born in New Ulm on March 11, 1893, and studied art in Minneapolis, St. Paul and New York. During her career, she worked in fashion and commercial art before moving to the country where she concentrated on painting what she found in her surroundings. Her prints, drawings and water amends existing law related to access to employee personnel records. Under Chap. 445, employers are required to provide an employee with a copy of the employee's personnel record whether or not there is a dispute about the accuracy of the record. The employee must submit a written request, and the employer may charge a fee for supplying the copy.

Before the enactment of Chap. 445, if an employee disputed specific information in the personnel record, the employer was required to supply the employee with a copy of the disputed information.

Limited liability companies

Chap. 517, the Minnesota Limited Liability Company Act, allows establishment of a hybrid form of corporate entity combining the limited liability characteristics of corporations with the tax status accorded to partnerships. The law, sponsored by Sen. Ember Reichgott and Rep. Ann Rest, qualifies LLCs for favorable tax status while also making LLCs accessible to entrepreneurs who lack the resources necessary to pay for specially tailored organizing agreements.

The law takes its finance and entity dissolution structures from the law of general and limited partnerships and combines them with the governance and management provisions of the Minnesota Business Corporation Act.

Proponents said the LLC is expected to be an attractive alternative corporate structure for small and closely-held business, such as real estate companies, investment holding companies, and "start up" ventures where limited liability of all owner-members is important and the flow-through of taxable income and loss is critical.

Energy assistance and conservation

Energy assistance programs received a boost from the 1992 Legislature. Chap. 597, sponsored by Sen. Steven Novak and Rep. Joel Jacobs, provides funding for energy assistance programs through a petroleum tank release cleanup fee and a propane gas fee. The revenues generated by the fees qualify the state for matching federal funds for the programs. The law represents an agreement between industry representatives, policy makers, and energy assistance advocates.

The chapter also allows the energy industry to solicit contributions from its customers to provide emergency energy assistance to low-income households that qualify under the federal eligibility criteria of the federal Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program. The money collected by the energy industry goes into a statewide fuel account. The law creates the Emergency Energy Assistance Council to advise the commissioner of the Dept. of Jobs and Training on how to implement the program.

In an effort towards energy conservation, the law calls for energy efficiency rules and standards. Under the conservation provisions, the state will adopt rules that set minimum efficiency standards for some incandescent lamps, exit lights, industrial motors, commercial heating and air conditioner equipment, and showerheads and faucets. The regulations prohibit the sale of some products that do not meet the conservation standards.

Tax law changes

Under Chap. 511, the omnibus tax bill, cities, counties, townships and other local governments must pay the state's 6.5 percent sales tax on purchases. The law, sponsored by Sen. Douglas Johnson and Rep. Paul Ogren, also reduces state aid to cities by $17 million. The governor's budget would have made a $72 million cut in the aid.

Local government aid (LGA) is increased by three percent for cities and by $1 per capita for towns. Beginning in Fiscal Year 1993, the state will assume 100 percent of the costs of all county human services programs. Community social service aid (CSSA) is increased by three percent beginning in fiscal year 1994. A formula is provided for the secretary of state to reimburse counties and municipalities for expenses incurred in administering the presidential primary election.

The property tax portion of the law changes the filing requirement for the homestead application from every year to every four years. Homestead treatment is extended to homes occupied by relatives of the owner. Spouses and grandchildren now qualify for homestead treatment under this provision.

The law also provides a definition of neighborhood land trusts and includes them in the homestead classification. The penalty rate on some homestead and non-homestead payments is decreased and several tax law changes are made relating to manufactured homes. A new formula is established for the targeting refund for homeowners and the maximum refund is now $1,500.

Under the income, sales and occasional tax portion of the law, the cities of Ely, Thief River Falls and Rochester are authorized to levy local sales taxes and the sales tax already being collected by the city of Minneapolis is dedicated to fund a board to operate neighborhood early learning centers. Roseville is authorized to impose a lodging tax and Brooklyn Center is given authorization to levy a local tax on liquor and restaurant purchases. The Roseville, Brooklyn Center, Ely and Thief River Falls tax levies are subject to local approval. A 50 cent per call tax on 900 service calls is authorized. Transit companies are exempted from sales tax on petroleum products and motor vehicle purchases. A proposed increase in income tax on the wealthiest 4 percent of Minnesotans is not included in the final law.

The law authorizes the cities of St. Louis Park and St. Paul to create hazardous substance tax increment financing (TIF) subdistricts and appropriates $1 million to the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) to be deposited in the Housing Trust Fund.

Milfoil control

The continued problem of Eurasian water milfoil and other exotic species in state waters is addressed in Chap. 594, the exotic aquatics law.

The law, sponsored by Rep. Wes Skoglund and Sen. William Luther, provides for control, public awareness, law enforcement, monitoring, and research of the nuisance species in public waters.

Transporting any of the species on state roads is prohibited, as is the placement, either intentional or accidental, of the various species in state waters. The commissioner of natural resources is directed to set up a random inspection program of watercraft removed from state waters identified as contaminated with any of the harmful species.

The commissioner is directed to develop a long-term management plan and report yearly to the Legislature.

The boat license surcharge is increased from $2 to $3 and a total of $219,000 is appropriated to the commissioner of natural resources for the complete exotic species control program.

Central lien notification for farm products

Chap. 525, sponsored by Sen. Tracy Beckman and Rep. Richard Krueger, provides for a central computerized filing system for recording farm product liens. The system is designed to streamline and expedite the process of tracking liens against farm products. Currently, potential buyers of farm products and bankers evaluating loan applications from farmers must search for lien notices on a county by county basis. Under Chap. 525, a notice filed through the office of the secretary of state will be entered into the statewide computer system.

It is believed that the new system will provide an efficient, sophisticated means for processing farm product sales and loan applications from farmers, resulting in better cash flow and more credit at lower cost to farmers.

Agriculture provisions

Chap. 602, sponsored by Sen. Dallas Sams and Rep. Jerry Bauerly, includes a variety of provisions dealing with agriculture. The law establishes an agricultural improvement loan program for grade B dairy producers who wish to upgrade to grade A production. The measure appropriates $5 million to the Rural Finance Authority and authorizes the issuance of state bonds to fund the program.

The new chapter also broadens the scope of provisions relating to adulterated dairy products and sets forth requirements for testing, reporting and for penalties.

Also established by the law is a mechanism by which the commissioner of agriculture may settle interest adjustment payment accounts of participants in the family farm security loan program before the contractual due date. These settlements may include partial payments for outstanding obligations if the participant and lender agree to voluntarily withdraw from the program.

The measure also appropriates $50,000 to fund additional agricultural information centers in Wadena and Detroit Lakes.
