Federal Acts

Servicemembers Civil Relief Act

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act was amended in December of 2003 to give protections to service members. The amendment also changed the name of the Act to the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA). Despite the name change, the Act still provides certain protections for service men and women on active duty in the United States Armed Services. The Act also applies to a service member called to active State duty because of a federal emergency, such as the National Guard's assistance in airport security. Under the Act you may qualify for certain protections, including, but not limited to the following:

- Reduced interest rate on mortgage payments;
- Reduced interest rate on credit card debt, car loans, and other debt;
- Protection from eviction if your rent is less than $3,451.20 per month (as of 2016); and
- Delay of all civil court actions, such as bankruptcy, foreclosure, or other proceedings.

Interest Rate on Debt

The Act limits the amount of interest that may be collected on debts of persons in military service to six percent per year during the period of military service. The provision applies to all debts incurred prior to the commencement of active duty and includes interest on credit card debt, mortgages, car loans, and other debts. The Act requires you or your family to request the rate reduction by giving written notice to the creditor with a copy of military orders calling you to military service and any orders extending that service. Once you request an interest rate reduction, a creditor must lower the rates or apply for court relief in which the burden is on the creditor to prove that the service member has not been "materially affected." The Act applies to federally guaranteed and private student loans. The creditor must forgive any interest in excess of six percent with a resulting decrease in the amount of periodic payment that you are required to make. You may also qualify for the six percent interest rate after you leave the service.

Real Estate Leases

The Act also protects dependents from being evicted by a landlord while you are on active duty. If rent does not exceed $3,451.20 per month (as of 2016), no eviction shall be made during the period of military service without an application to the court. If an application is made, the court may enter a stay of three months or another period of time the court believes is appropriate. A lease may be terminated by a tenant upon written notice of your military orders. The lease will terminate 30 days after the next monthly rent payment is due.

Civil Actions and Foreclosures

The court must grant a stay for at least 90 days for civil actions and foreclosures upon request by the service member. If an additional stay is requested by the service member and denied, the court must appoint counsel to represent the service member.

Motor Vehicle Leases

The Act allows service members who have been called to active duty to terminate certain automobile lease agreements. For instance, if you are called to serve at least 180 days, you may terminate a motor vehicle lease, without paying an early termination fee or other penalty as long as the termination notice is delivered in writing along with a photocopy of your military orders to the lessor, grantee, and agent, and the vehicle is returned to the lessor's agent within 15 days of the delivery of the notice. If a lease is entered into after being called to active duty, that lease can be terminated if you receive orders for a permanent change of station outside the U.S. or to deploy with a military unit for 180 days or more.

For more information about the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, please contact the Minnesota Attorney General's Office at (651) 296-3353 (Twin Cities Calling Area) or (800) 657-3787 (Outside the Twin Cities).

Federal Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA)

USERRA provides protection for service members by ensuring that you can leave your civilian job for military service and perform your duties with the knowledge that you will be able to return to your job with the same pay, benefits, and status you would have obtained had you not been away on duty.

In order to qualify for certain rights under USERRA, you must give advance notice to your employer regarding your military service. Furthermore, if you receive benefits through a multi-employer pension or welfare benefit plan you must notify the plan administrator of your military service within 30 days of reemployment. Under USERRA, you may qualify for certain protections, including, but not limited to the following:

- Employers may not discriminate against service members or veterans based upon their military service;
- Service members may be absent from work due to military duty for five cumulative years, while still retaining their reemployment rights (exceptions may apply);
- Employers must reemploy returning service members in the job that they would have obtained had they not been absent for military service, with the same seniority status and pay, as well as other rights determined by seniority;
- Employers must make a reasonable effort to provide training to enable returning service members to upgrade or refresh their skills to qualify for reemployment;
- Service members injured in the line of duty may have up to two years from the date of their completion of service to return to work or apply for reemployment;
- Employers must make a reasonable effort to accommodate a veteran's disabilities;
- In cases where a service member will perform active duty less than 30 days, employers must ensure that any employer sponsored health care coverage is continued during that time, as if the service member had remained employed;
- Service members performing military service for more than 30 days may elect to continue employer-sponsored health care coverage for up to 24 months, but may be required to pay up to 102 percent of the premium charges for the coverage;
- Employers must provide reemployed service members with all benefits that they would have obtained as if they had been continuously employed (except short-term compensation such as accrued paid vacation); and

- Employers must treat reemployed service members as if they have not had a break in service for the purposes of pension plans and Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) benefits.

If you believe that an employer may be violating your rights under USERRA, you may file a complaint with the Veterans' Employment and Training Service Division (VETS) of the United States Department of Labor.

To file a formal USERRA complaint with VETS, complete "Form 1010" which is available on the United States Department of Labor's website www.dol.gov/vets, or contact the Department.

Minnesota State Laws

Employment Rights

Minnesota State law also protects armed service personnel from employment discrimination. A Minnesota employer may not ask persons seeking employment if they are a member of the National Guard or a reserve component of the United States Armed Forces, nor can an employer require a person seeking employment to make any oral or written statement concerning their National Guard or reserve status as a condition precedent to employment. Under Minnesota law, employers are prohibited from discharging any person from employment because of membership in the military or naval forces. Employers are also prohibited from hindering or preventing any employee from enlisting in or performing military service.

Public Employment

If you are an employee of the State of Minnesota, political subdivision, municipal corporation, or another type of public employee, and you are called to service, you are entitled to leaves of absence of at least four years, and in some cases more. You are also protected from certain losses of pay, seniority status, efficiency status, vacation benefits, sick leave, and other benefits when you serve in training or active service. In order to qualify for such protection, however, you must apply for reemployment within 90 days after termination of service. Qualification for such protection also requires that the position has not been eliminated, that you are not disabled from performing the position, and that you were honorably discharged. If you receive a leave of absence for military service, you may also receive certain protections regarding your pension rights. For instance, service credits can be continued through the leave period as long as you make the required pension contributions that would have been otherwise required had you worked during that time period. Finally, if you are a veteran, you may not be removed from public employment except for incompetence or misconduct, which must be proved through a special hearing process allotted to veterans.

Public employees who serve in training or active service for the Reserves or National Guard for less than 15 days in a calendar year are entitled to serve without loss of pay, seniority status, and other benefits during such limited leaves of absence.

With regard to certain public positions, Minnesota law also provides preferences that can be used by veterans, spouses of deceased veterans, and spouses of disabled veterans. If you receive a veterans preference, and a public employer rejects you, the public employer must notify you in writing of the reasons for the rejection and file the notice with the appropriate local personnel officer.

Under Minnesota law, if you are a veteran, and you have been denied veterans preference rights by the State of Minnesota or any political subdivision or other public employer, the Commissioner of Veterans Affairs may assist you.

Education Rights

Minnesota law provides that if you are a service member called to duty, you may withdraw from post-secondary courses and receive a credit for certain tuition and fees already paid. You may also receive a refund for certain amounts paid for room, board, and fees attributable to the time in active military service. You may elect to receive an “incomplete” for a given course, which you may complete upon completion of your active service or any medical treatment that may be necessary. In the event that you choose to continue and complete a course for full credit, class sessions that you miss in order to perform active military service must be counted as excused absences. Such absence may not be used in any way to adversely impact your grade or standing in the class. Under this option, however, you are not automatically excused from completing assignments, and a grade may only be awarded if, in the opinion of the faculty member teaching the course, you have completed sufficient work and have demonstrated sufficient progress towards meeting the course requirements to justify a grade.

In the event you choose to withdraw from a post-secondary school due to military service, you have the right to be readmitted and reenrolled as a student at the institution without penalty or re-determination of admission eligibility within two years following your release from military service, or completion of medical treatment, or sufficient recovery from the medical condition. Advance notice that you will be serving in active military service is required unless that notice is precluded by military or medical necessity. A post-secondary institution can require verification of an order to active service.

Minnesota law provides additional education benefits for veterans and their dependents. Some of these benefits include:

- Veterans may receive up to $750 for tuition charges from the Minnesota Department of Veterans Affairs;
- Spouses and children of veterans who died in active service may attend certain Minnesota post-secondary institutions free of tuition charges and may receive an educational assistance stipend of up to $750 per year from the Minnesota Department of Veterans Affairs;
- Dependents of a POW/MIA may attend Minnesota public post-secondary institutions free of tuition charges. If they choose a private undergraduate institution, they may receive up to $250 per year in assistance;
- Veterans may receive educational credit from post-secondary institutions for training that they received in the military;
- Veterans are granted resident status for undergraduate study at University of Minnesota institutions or Minnesota State Colleges and Universities;
- A veteran is granted resident status for graduate study at University of Minnesota institutions or Minnesota State Colleges and Universities if they were a resident of Minnesota at the time military service began, and initiates enrollment in the school within two years of completing the military service; and
- National Guardsmen and surviving dependents under the age of 24 who are attending post-secondary educational institutes may obtain certain reimbursement for tuition and textbook costs.

Contracts

If you are a service member who has been called to active duty, cell phone or wireless contracts may be terminated without penalty. In addition, rental contracts, club contracts, service contracts, and membership travel contracts may be canceled without penalty and with a full refund of any deposit if a deployment or change in duty prevents a service member from using the service or abiding by the terms of the contract. This includes services such as television, computer, or Internet services.

Discrimination

Minnesota law prohibits discrimination in public accommodations or public services. If you are a member of the military forces, no person may discriminate against you because of your membership in the military or because you are wearing a military uniform. Such discrimination is classified as a misdemeanor. In addition, the law also authorizes a person injured as a result of such discrimination to bring a private legal action.

Motor Vehicles

In the event that your driver's license expires while you are called to active duty outside Minnesota, your driver's license continues in full force and effect without requirement for renewal until one year after your separation or discharge from such duty.

Minnesota law provides that if you are a person in active military service, your motor vehicle is exempt from the motor vehicle registration tax during the period of such active service and for 90 days thereafter. You must file with the registrar of motor vehicle a written application for exemption with proof of military service. The motor vehicle cannot be operated on a public highway within the State during the time of exemption except by its owner while on furlough or leave of absence from the military. Additionally, any motor vehicle that has been furnished for free by the U.S. government to a disabled war veteran is exempt from the motor vehicle registration tax.

Professional Licenses

If you are a service member on active duty, you are exempt from any fees or renewal requirements necessary to maintain a license or certificate to practice a certain trade, employment, occupation, or profession during the time that you are serving in the military and for a period of six months after discharge.

Public Records

The officer charged with maintaining your records must provide certified copies of your birth, death, marriage, divorce, or discharge records, free of charge, for use in presenting claims to the United States Veteran's Administration, State Department of Veterans Affairs, or any other veteran organization.

Credit Laws

Active Duty Alert

A provision of a federal law known as the Fair Credit Reporting Act allows service members on active duty to place an Active Duty Alert on their credit report. Once you place an Active Duty Alert on your credit report, lenders must take additional steps to ensure your identity before allowing credit to be granted in your name. Active Duty Alerts remain in effect on your credit report for one year. To place an Active Duty Alert on your credit report, you may contact the three major credit reporting bureaus directly:

Equifax	Experian	TransUnion
P.O. Box 749241	P.O. Box 2002	P.O. Box 1000
Atlanta, GA 30348	Allen, TX 75013	Chester, PA 19022

www.equifax.com	www.experian.com	www.transunion.com

Security Freeze

Under Minnesota law, you may take action to protect yourself from identity theft even if you are not on active duty by contacting the credit bureaus to place a “freeze” on your credit report. Once a security freeze is placed upon your credit report, you will be given a PIN number, which will then be required in connection with any credit request in your name. There is no charge for placing a security freeze. To initiate a security freeze on your credit report, you must contact each credit bureau as follows:

Equifax Security Freeze	Experian Security Freeze	TransUnion Security Freeze

Annual Credit Report

To stay on guard against identity theft, we recommend that you monitor the status of your credit report. Under federal law, you may obtain one free copy of your credit report per year from each of the major credit bureaus. You may obtain these reports in one of three ways:

1. Logging on to www.AnnualCreditReport.com
2. Calling (877) 322-8228
3. Writing:
Annual Credit Report Request Service Central Source, LLC

Be aware that if you attempt to obtain a copy of your credit report through any channel not listed above, you may be charged for the report.
