Minnesota State partners with employers to educate and train their workforce

- » Across Minnesota State, there are examples of partnerships with local and statewide employers to address workforce shortages.
- » On many campuses, this work is done with a local Advisory Council, which seeks input from employers, alumni, and economic development professionals to ensure programming is tied to exactly what local employers need.
- » The consistent focus among campus leaders is to ensure graduates have jobs that encourage them to stay in the region.
- » More than 36,500 students graduate from our colleges and universities each year and use their know-how to help businesses, industries, public-sector organizations, nonprofits, and communities across the state to grow and thrive.

Minnesota State is addressing racial and economic disparities

- » The most effective strategy Minnesota has for narrowing its prosperity gap is to ensure all Minnesotans get the education they need to secure a better future for themselves, their families, and their communities.
- » The diversity of our students is one of our greatest strengths. Minnesota State is proud to serve more students of color and Indigenous students and more low-income students than all other higher education providers in Minnesota combined.
