Supporting Our Children

Dear Friends of Child Support:

Children need the financial and emotional support of both parents. This report shows how Minnesota's child support program contributed to this goal in 1997 by setting and enforcing parents' financial responsibilities.

1997 was a banner year for child support enforcement in Minnesota. Counties collected a record $363 million in child support, an increase of 12 percent over 1996. Total collections have increased 125 percent since 1991. We rank first among states in collections per open case and collect more than twice the national average amount of child support for each case.

During 1997, the program converted to a new computer system, PRISM, which brings many long-awaited improvements, including statewide distribution of support payments. We also completed a full year using two new tools: driver's license suspension and new hire reporting. By the end of June 1997, we had collected $12.8 million from license suspension and $2.2 million from new hire reporting.

As we look forward, however, many challenges remain. We will continue implementing substantial child support changes included in the federal welfare reform law. These changes, which will help families get their money faster and more easily, are critical to self-sufficiency. Many families will need to combine work with regular child support payments to stay off assistance or move from welfare to work.

We are also improving services to families by forming partnerships with Head Start, the child care community, employers, hospitals, and other organizations that serve families. We are working with fathers' organizations to recognize and support the contributions fathers make to the lives of their children.

While making sweeping changes to the program, we continue to make effective use of taxpayer dollars and to treat all who use the child support services with dignity and respect. We are here to serve the children of Minnesota and their families.

We hope you will take time to read the 1997 Minnesota Child Support Performance Report.

Sincerely,

Laura Kadwell
