ANNUAL REPORT 1983

Minnesota Board on Aging

History

The Minnesota Board on Aging, the third oldest state agency on aging in the United States, was created in 1956 after a legislative study commission recommended that a permanent body advise the governor and other state officials about how best to meet older Minnesotans' needs.

The Board on Aging, originally known as the Governor's Citizens Council on Aging, works to:

- maintain and enhance older persons' dignity
- advocate for older persons' needs and rights
- improve public policy and legislation affecting older people
- involve older people in the planning and implementation of programs

● provide older people with information about available services

● keep older people in their own homes rather than in institutions, and

● change society's view of older people and the aging process.

With an annual budget of over $15 million in federal, state and foundation funds, the Board develops and coordinates a wide variety of programs for 16 percent of Minnesota's population — the 650,000 people age 60 and older.

The 25 members of the Minnesota Board on Aging are appointed by the governor and serve a maximum of eight years. The majority are over age 60.

Board meetings are usually held on the third Friday of each month and are open to the public.

Legislation

More than one-third of the state's lawmakers attended a legislative reception sponsored by the MBA, Minnesota Senior Federation, and Minnesota Legislative Committee of the AARP in January, 1983. The first-time-ever event allowed the state's most active senior advocacy groups to present a comprehensive picture of senior citizen needs to state lawmakers.

The MBA followed the reception with an in-depth legislative program. The Board's legislative committee and staff monitored all bills introduced in the 1983 state legislature pertaining to senior citizens and presented testimony on such issues as nursing home resident rights, tax credits for home care for the elderly and quality assurance for long-term care services.

The legislative committee also reviewed and commented on several federal legislative and regulatory issues including funding and eligibility for legal services for low-income people, proposed regulations restricting advocacy by non-profit organizations and tighter eligibility guidelines for low-rent housing.

During the year the Board published seven "Older Minnesotans Legislative Reports" containing public policy updates and resources senior citizen advocates could use to inform themselves about a variety of public policy issues. More than 400 persons received the reports. Board staff also provided technical assistance and information to the governor's office, senior citizen groups, organizations of professionals in the field of aging, and the Minnesota Gerontological Society's focus group on Family Roles and Responsibilities.

A special demographic report comparing Minnesota's older population in 1980 with 1970 data was also issued in 1983.

Public Information

In its second year, the Board's state-wide essay contest for sixth grade students attracted 183 entries, 100 more than in 1982. Each entry had already won a local contest sponsored by senior citizen centers and clubs during May to celebrate Older Americans Month. The Board estimated that close to 5,000 essays were generated under contest auspices.

In conjunction with the State Fair and County Fair Association the Board also continued sponsorship of the annual search for Minnesota's outstanding senior citizens. In 1983, 71 counties selected 136 outstanding seniors from whom Addie Larson, 74, Hoffman, and Vern Lundin, 74, Mankato, were picked as state winners. The awards honor older people for their activities, accomplishments and contributions after age 65.

Other public information activities included:

- Publication of a bi-monthly newsletter, Senior Spotlight, which reports news of interest to older persons and professionals in the field of aging. Circulation: 8,000. A special "Quick Look Book" issue contained information about almost every senior citizen program available in the state.

- Answering inquiries to the

MBA AGING INFO-LINE, a toll-free number that people can call every weekday with problems and questions.

- Speaking engagements and radio and TV interviews by MBA members and staff.

Legal Services

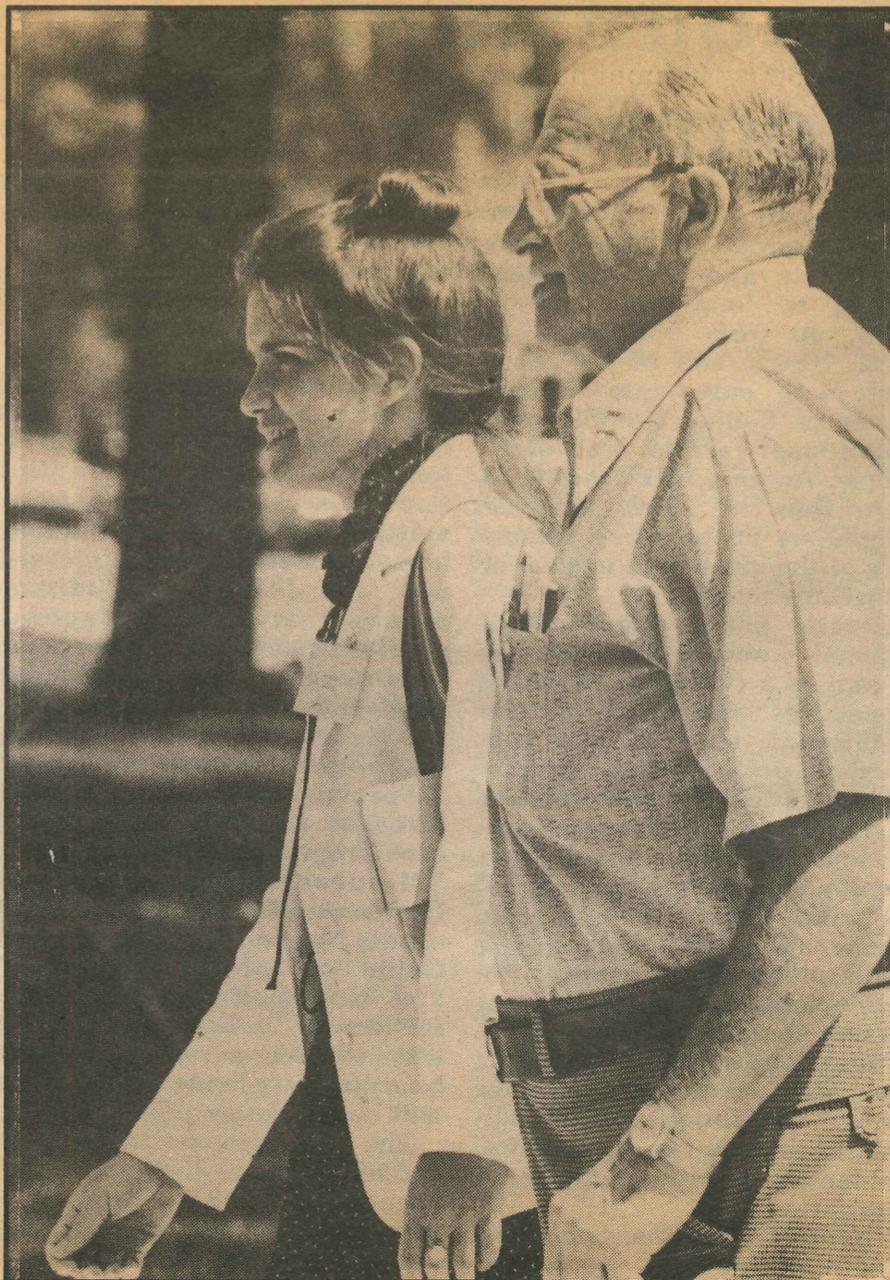

In 1983 special legal projects served senior citizens in every Minnesota county. The projects offered older people legal advice and representation as well as legal education and information. Cases handled (approximately 15,000) reflected major areas of concern for older people, including health care coverage (Medicare, Medical Assistance, Medicare supplement insurance); income (Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, etc.); consumer problems; housing; and utilities.

Many legal services projects used volunteers — both lay advocates and private attorneys — to make services more available to older people. Over the year the MBA worked with the Minnesota Bar Association's Legal Assistance to the Disadvantaged Committee to expand and support volunteer attorney efforts throughout the state.

The Board on Aging's legal services developer met regularly with the Minnesota Legal Services Coalition to help coordinate the efforts of local legal projects and she worked with the statewide Senior Law Task Force to identify and analyze legal issues affecting older persons.

The legal services developer also analyzed several legislative issues for the Minnesota Board on Aging including proposed changes in Medicare; promulgation of state insurance regulations to curb deceptive trade practices; the need for insurance regulations specifically relating to "Medicare supplement" insurance; and adequate funding of the Legal Services Corpora-

Education and Training

In 1983, the Minnesota Board on Aging sponsored numerous statewide training activities in which more than 1100 persons in Minnesota's aging network participated. These included the 25th Annual Institute on Aging, (1983's intergenerational topic: "Aging Together"); the 2nd Annual Professional Development Seminar on families and aging; a conference for senior center staff and volunteers on management of centers and clubs; and training for state and Area Agency on Aging staff on performance-based contracting.

In addition, Minnesota's Area Agencies on Aging conducted regional conferences on aging as well as workshops on such subjects as long-term care, nursing home pre-admission screening, chemical health, sexuality and aging, peer counseling, nutrition and wellness, and understanding the aging process. Over 2200 people, including advisory committee members, service providers, seniors and Area Agency staff participated in these regional training activities.

1983 also saw completion of curriculum materials on aging for use in Minnesota's elementary and secondary schools. Preliminary curriculum guides were selectively distributed to over 50 teachers in the fall of 1983. Before final curriculum guides are printed in 1984, the Board on Aging, together with the Minnesota Department of Education, will evaluate the preliminary materials and revise them as necessary.

Program Operations

The Board on Aging's program operations unit links the Board with a state-wide network of aging programs including 13 Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs). AAAs are primarily responsible for the development and provision of services to older persons within given areas of the state (in most cases these correspond to Regional Development Commission boundaries).

MBA staff monitor service project operations, develop statewide policies, and provide technical assistance and consultation to Area Agencies on Aging. During 1983, staff developed a revised format for AAA three-year plans and undertook preliminary planning for the possible use of contracts instead of grants to administer funds available under the federal Older Americans Act. Contracts, the keystone of a "performance based payment system" would allow AAAs to pay service providers only for results (quantifiable "outputs") rather than for developing the capacity to deliver services.

In 1983 Area Agencies on Aging spent the largest share of their funds and served the greatest number of older persons through a congregate dining program available at 333 nutrition sites throughout the state. The number of congregate (group) meals served rose to over 3 million yearly and more than 88,000 older people participated in the program, an increase of 5.9 percent over 1982. An additional 9,000 persons (an increase of 21.8 percent) received home-delivered meals thanks to a network of community volunteers.

For the second consecutive year, costs per meal decreased significantly — more than 14 cents a meal in the congregate program and 65 cents a meal in the home-delivered program. Reasons for the welcome decrease included greater awareness of costs; increased efficiency in program management; and more "on-site" food preparation rather than catered meals.

In addition to 50 nutrition projects, AAAs funded 220 community services projects with major emphasis on programs that serve isolated or frail older persons. Statewide, 30 transportation projects were funded; 26 home-health aide programs; 20 homemaker services; 18 chore services; and 10 adult day care programs.

Other major services provided through Older Americans Act grants included legal help, health programs, advocacy, counseling, information and referral, and adult education. Over 180,000 older people received one or more of the services provided by Minnesota's aging services network.

In 59 communities the MBA's building specialist also helped Area Agencies on Aging develop new or renovate older senior centers using either Older Americans Act funds or grants from the McKnight Foundation.

Long Term Care Ombudsman Program

Minnesota's six regional ombudsman projects handled 1392 complaints and problems pertaining to long-term care in 1983, up from 954 cases in 1982. Nearly half of the cases dealt with entry into nursing homes or finding suitable non-institutional care for frail older people. Another 401 cases (163 more than in 1982) involved complaints about nursing home care or the abuse and neglect of vulnerable adults.

Greater public awareness of regional ombudsman's services as well as a change in reporting procedures accounted for the significant rise in the ombudsman projects' caseloads.

In addition to investigating complaints, regional ombudsmen helped support and develop nursing home residents' councils, family and friends groups, and coalitions of nursing home advocates to monitor the development of state and federal nursing home regulations.

Most ombudsman projects have also developed consumer guides containing information about long-term facilities, residents' rights and in-the-home alternatives.

The Minnesota Board on Aging provided funding, technical assistance, training and coordination for the network of regional ombudsmen.

1983 saw the creation by state statute of an Interagency Board for Quality Assurance (IABQA) responsible for examining and assuring quality of care and quality of life for residents of long-term care facilities. The Board on Aging, serving as a statewide advocate for nursing home residents, worked closely with the IABQA and recommended measures beyond regular licensure and inspection requirements that should be employed to assure a better quality of life for the state's 44,553 nursing home residents.

Special publications issued through the MBA's long-term care program in 1983 included: "Minnesota Nursing Home Residents Bill of Rights," "Minnesota Nursing Home Residents' Guide to Medical Assistance," and "On Behalf of Nursing Home Residents," a booklet detailing ways to make nursing home and boarding care living as satisfying and home-like as possible.

The MBA also contracted with Nursing Home Residents Advocates in 1983 to produce a 20-minute slide show explaining nursing home residents' rights.

Volunteer Programs

Retired Senior Volunteers

The Minnesota Board on Aging launched the state's first federally-funded Retired Senior Volunteer Program over 10 years ago. But not until 1981 did the Board receive state funds to expand the number of Minnesota's older volunteers.

In July, 1983, the Minnesota Board on Aging made grants to 19 RSVP projects to allow them to increase the number of volunteers they recruit and serve. The projects estimate that the $200,000 they received will result in at least 130,000 hours of new volunteer efforts.

Minnesota's Senior Companions provide friendship, warmth and individual attention to other older people who need close, meaningful relationships. Through the program many older persons have been able to remain in their own homes; others have been helped to adjust to life in state residential and/or nursing home facilities.

To supplement the federal Senior Companion program in Minnesota, the Board on Aging awarded $312,000 in state funds to the Minnesota Association for Retarded Citizens in 1983. The funds enabled 100 older persons to serve as Senior Companions to more than 500 older clients.

Minnesota's Foster Grandparent program provides meaningful, part-time volunteer opportunities for older persons who give supportive, one-to-one services to young children with special or exceptional needs.

As a supplement to federal Foster Grandparent funds, the MBA awarded $470,400 in state monies to the Minnesota Association of Retarded Citizens in 1983; an additional award of $26,100 was made to St. Cloud Catholic Charities. These funds enabled 163 foster grandparents to provide services to over 400 young people.

Under both programs, older caregivers receive a weekly stipend of $40. Meals, vacation and insurance benefits, a transportation allowance and an annual physical examination are also provided. But most importantly, Foster Grandparents and Senior Companions rediscover the immense satisfaction that comes from being needed.

Planning

In 1983 the Board on Aging developed and submitted a three-year plan to the Administration on Aging to meet federal requirements for state aging programs and bring approximately $11 million yearly in federal funds to Minnesota's senior service network.

The Board also decided upon eight long-range (five-year) goals. Completing an 18-month planning process begun in 1982, the Board set the following goals for itself for 1988:

- Independent Living (Long-Term Care)

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging will have a clear cut strategy for supporting and implementing wellness and independent living for older Minnesotans.

- Intergenerational Relationships

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging will have operational a comprehensive and coordinated statewide program to improve intergenerational relationships.

- Older Minnesotans Act

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging will have developed, caused to be approved and have implemented an "Older Minnesotans Act."

- Constituency Involvement

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging will, with timely deliberation, involve its constituents (individuals, organizations and groups) in a mutual understanding of the issues affecting the elderly, thereby resulting in actions which insure the benefit of older Minnesotans as an integral part of society.

- Public Information and Image

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging, through a comprehensive program of public education and information, will be communicating an image as a strong, independent force for the support of older Minnesotans.

- Health

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging will have in place a program which assures adequate mental and physical health care and facilities to meet the health needs of older Minnesotans.

- Research

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging will have operational a research capacity to investigate issues and provide access to data and information for the aging network.

- Advocacy

By 1988, the Minnesota Board on Aging will enhance its leadership role as an advocate of the dignity, rights and status of older Minnesotans in the community.
