Beginning farm program

The bill for beginning farmers moved a step closer to becoming law April 9, when members of the Agriculture Committee recommended HF776 to pass.

Under the proposal, qualifying beginning or re-entry farmers could apply for low-interest loans at their local banks to purchase land that the state or commercial lenders presently own.

If a lender lends a farmer money, the state would guarantee 85 percent of any losses on the loan as long as the loan guarantee doesn't exceed $100 million. To reduce risk to the state, HF776 sets a $12,750,000 cap on the maximum loss the state can accrue.

To qualify for the beginning farmer program, applicants must demonstrate the ability to run a stable farm operation, have a net worth of less than $150,000, and agree to participate in a farm management program for five years.

Office for Children

Minnesotans place a high priority on children. Six different state agencies have programs relating to the concerns of children, and a variety of policies and rules in various councils, boards, and commissions. But the state has no central coordinating office.

Through HF1395, Rep. Wayne Simoneau (DFL-Fridley) hopes to create such an office for children in the State Planning Agency. On April 8, the Governmental Operations Committee supported the bill with a recommendation to pass.

Polly Keppel, League of Women Voters, favors the bill, in part, "...because children can't vote there's been no strong consistent priority assigned to their concerns. We believe that a central planning unit for children in Minnesota would do much to direct public attention to the needs of children and to plan efficiently to utilize scarce public dollars," she says.

The governor included $200,000 for the proposed Office for Children in his budget recommendations for the coming
Fond du Lac school

Higher Education Committee members recommended approval of a bill April 8 that would set up a community college center on the Fond du Lac Indian Reservation in northern Minnesota.

Supporters of HF899 (Ogren, DFL-Aitkin) say the pilot project would help meet educational needs of a large region that local institutions currently miss, including a large Indian population.

Rep. Paul Ogren says a cooperative agreement with the Bureau of Indian Affairs would allow the state to break new ground and split center operating costs if the center is on the reservation. The center would build a bridge with the Indian community and ease the cultural segregation present education systems create, he says.

A one-year legislative task force that studied the idea recommended the learning center as a cost-effective way to reach the underserved region and the Indian community.

The learning center would operate and grant associate of arts degrees as a branch of the Arrowhead Community College from the fall of 1987 until June 30, 1989. The two-year pilot project would allow area students to take day or evening classes on the reservation in addition to extension and workshop offerings.

Health, social club registration

Health spas and other social clubs that want to do business in Minnesota would have to register with the state attorney general under a bill Rep. Phil Carruthers (DFL-Brooklyn Center) brought to the Commerce Committee April 7.

Carruthers says his bill, HF949, stems from several incidents where some major health clubs went bankrupt and cheated members out of thousands of dollars. In one case, he says, the attorney general, whose job it is to enforce the Club Contract Act, didn't know the health club existed because the club never posted a bond with the office.

HF949 would require all clubs (except for private clubs and nonprofit organizations) to register annually with the attorney general. The initial registration would cost clubs $250 with a $150 per year renewal fee.

Other provisions in the bill would:
- streamline claims procedures to insure quicker refunds to consumers;
- allow smaller clubs that can't get a surety bond to post a letter of credit or deposit cash in lieu of a bond;
- require clubs under construction that pre-sell memberships to register and post a surety bond with the attorney general; and
- set a $200,000 cap on the amount of security clubs must post.

In other action, the Commerce Committee recommended HF822 (O'Connor, DFL-St. Paul) to pass. The bill would require all credit card issuers that distribute applications in Minnesota to disclose the financial terms (i.e. interest rates, membership fees, or any interest-free periods) of the plan.

Seat belt penalty

On a 16-8 vote, the Judiciary Committee April 7 recommended to pass a proposed $25 penalty for motorists who don't wear seat belts.

State Patrol Lt. Col. Glenn Gramse says state troopers have been enforcing the seat belt law for the last eight months with warnings only, issuing between 5,000 to 6,000 tags every month. But 1986 Department of Public Safety survey results show that only 32 percent of motorists statewide comply with the seat belt statute that carries only a warning.

Gramse says the state patrol's primary function is traffic safety, and he favors adding a penalty to the law. He says most people look at an accident as something that always happens to someone else. "Strangely enough," he says, "we do look at the chance of a police officer seeing us, giving us a ticket, and subsequently...paying a fine as a much more realistic possibility."

The committee amended the bill to provide that one-half the fines the state collects from violators would go into a special account to pay for emergency medical services.

The Senate passed the seat belt bill on March 30. In the House, the bill goes next to the Appropriations Committee.

Firearms legislation

A glitch in a 1986 federal law brought U.S. Attorney Tom Heffelfinger to the Legislature to testify and help draft proposed legislation.

Before 1986, under federal law, felons whom courts convict of violent crime could not possess, ship, or transport firearms for 10 years after regaining their civil rights. But Minnesota, and a handful of other states, automatically restore those rights to felons when they complete their prison time.

Heffelfinger told the Crime and Family Law Division of the Judiciary Committee April 6, "...one thing that's changed has to do with the interface of Minnesota law and federal law. The McClure-Volkmer bill says that federal firearms legislation may only apply to a prisoner or to an ex-felon who has not had his civil rights restored."

Heffelfinger helped draft HF990 (Segal, DFL-St. Louis Park) to bring released Minnesota felons back under the 10-year prohibition. The bill would make state law the same as federal law which would allow authorities to enforce federal law when people commit violent crimes in the state.

The division recommended the bill to pass April 7.
Work quality, productivity

Power for workers in decision-making and managing, not more layoffs and supervisors with stopwatches, would bring quality and productivity to the workplace, says labor organizer Bob Kileen.

Kileen, who has served on the Governor's commission on the Economic Future of Minnesota, supports Rep. Todd Otis' (DFL-Mpls.) proposal to set up a council to educate labor and management on how to improve quality and productivity.

Kileen says, "productivity and high quality work is going to give us job security. And if we don't start getting that message out to all of our people, we're not even going to be in the ball game when it comes to competition worldwide.

So I'm in this thing because I'm sick and tired of plant shut-downs. Productivity and quality are good for all of us. That's the message we have to get across, and that's what this council will be working on."

The bill, HF1109, would set up a nine-member council to "provide businesses, labor organizations, and the general public technical assistance and information about quality and productivity," says Otis.

He says the council would research the effectiveness of education programs, new production technologies, and new management-labor relations. The state would support the council for two years, "and if by that time the council hasn't proven itself to be so useful that private businesses won't support it themselves, then we won't keep putting state money into it," he says.

The bill got a recommendation to pass from the Economic Development and Housing Committee April 7; it goes next to the House Floor.

Wage subsidies

The governor recommends eliminating the wage subsidy program, but Rep. Peter McLaughlin (DFL-Mpls) sponsors HF857, a bill that would double funding to $40 million in 1987-88. He says the program has served 8,400 thousand workers, 85 percent of whom have kept their jobs after the six-month subsidy ends.

Under the Minnesota Employment and Economic Development wage subsidy program, the state pays an average of 80 percent of the wages for workers who would otherwise be unemployed. That's $4.00 an hour in wages and $1.00 an hour in fringe benefits the state pays to every $1.20 an hour the employer pays. But the subsidy lasts only six months. Then the employer has to keep hiring the worker, or pay back 70 percent of the state's investment. Priority goes to small Minnesota companies.

McLaughlin's bill would target most of the money to people getting welfare, families with no income, and financially troubled farm families. It would also direct the subsidies to manufacturing companies, and those that export.

McLaughlin says the program is good for economic development and welfare reform: "This bill will solidly establish the wage subsidy program as an anchor in the middle of this state's 1987 welfare reform efforts."

He says businesspeople who've participated are overwhelmingly enthusiastic about the program. The Economic Development and Housing Committee, on a voice vote, recommended HF857 to pass April 7. It goes next to the Taxes Committee.

Insurance tax

The Tax Laws Division of the Taxes Committee heard John James from the Department of Revenue April 7 explain a proposed extension of a two percent premium tax to nonprofit insurance companies. Those companies would include HMO's and similar nonprofit health organizations.

James says the extension is a good, solid program that follows national industry standards. He says it will create a level playing field that will ensure consistent competition in the insurance business.

According to James, the department feels the proposal is a rational measure—one that will allow the state to tax some products the way it has taxed others for years.

"We feel we are taxing like products in the same way, subjecting them generally to the two percent gross premiums tax," he says. "It is the industry standard, not only in Minnesota, but around the country."

James says the extension would not affect senior citizens health care by burdening Medicare with the two percent premium tax.

Alternative minimum tax

The Property Tax Division of the Taxes Committee heard HF616 (Voss, DFL-Blaine) April 6.

The State Department of Revenue presented the bill which would impose an alternative minimum tax on all corporations in the state. The tax would equal one-tenth of one percent of the company's Minnesota property, payroll, and sales factors beyond the company's regular tax liability. Opponents say the measure is poor policy because it taxes those least able to pay—smaller businesses and family farm corporations.

Mark Anderson of the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce and Industry says it hurts struggling smaller businesses. He says it would decrease business expansion beyond current disinvestments and declines in agriculture, manufacturing, and mining.

Julie Bleyhl of the Minnesota Farmers Union says the alternative minimum tax would aggravate family farm corporations already bearing the burden of the agricultural crises.

Bleyhl says the proposed tax is regressive because it would hit farm corporations twice by taxing dividends farmers get from cooperatives and then again as business income.
Wine in grocery stores

The wine-and-food bill is back in the Legislature—the fifth time in the past 10 years.

This year, Representative Linda Scheid (DFL-Brooklyn Park) sponsors HF1342, a bill that would allow metropolitan grocery stores to sell wine alongside other food items. On April 6, the Regulated Industries Committee recommended the bill to pass.

Supporters say one-stop shopping for food and wine is convenient and would satisfy a great consumer demand. An added benefit, they say, could be an increase in cheese sales, incidental with wine purchases. Scheid adds that state revenue may go up $5 million as a result.

"This may be the only proposal to come before the House this session that enables us to raise revenue for the state without raising a tax or extending any tax base," says Scheid.

Opponents say the bill would be a death blow to liquor retailers and question whether grocery stores would be able to keep minors from buying liquor.

Under an amendment, a grocery store would need a 3.2 beer sales license to get a wine license. Another amendment would allow liquor stores to sell cheese, cheese products, and snack foods.

Composite engineering program

Now's the time to explore composite engineering as a new industry, according to the Education Division of the Appropriations Committee.

Members tentatively approved a portion of the education budget April 3 that would fully fund planning for a new composite engineering program at Winona State University in 1988. The version of the bill that came out of committee would require state university officials to come back to the Legislature next year to get program money for 1989.

Although members say possibilities for regional economic growth are encouraging, they say the idea is moving too quickly. They asked program planners to slow down and study program specifics including projected enrollment, job possibilities, and industry growth during the next year.

Rep. Lyndon Carlson (DFL-Crystal) says he hopes a one-year study can answer some questions before the state gives more money to the program.

"If we move forward with continued funding we need to have a high degree of comfort that we are going to have on all of our (state university) campuses, good, sound, first class engineering programs," he says.

Rep. Bob Haukoos (IR-Albert Lea) opposes expanding engineering offerings. He says the state should concentrate on current programs.

If the full House approves the recommendation, Winona State could get $873,000 over the next two years.

Credit card interest rates

A bill that would lower credit card interest rates came out of the Commerce Committee April 3 with a recommendation to pass.

Under HF242 (O'Connor, DFL-St. Paul), large retailers such as Dayton's and Donaldson's, whose rates presently hover around 18 percent, could charge no more than 10.5 or 4 points over the Federal Reserve discount rate on open-end credit sales. Rates for smaller retailers, those with annual sales under $25 million, would drop to 14.5 or 6 points above the reserve rate.

Rep. Rich O'Connor, the bill's author, says retailers have not responded to the interest rate drop in the financial market. Credit is now available at reasonable rates, but the revolving rate is still at 18 percent, says O'Connor.

Steve Watson, from Dayton-Hudson Stores, says the legislation is anti-business, discriminatory, and will have a negative impact on the consuming public.

HF242, which will go to the House Floor, has the support of the Minnesota AFL-CIO, the Teamsters, and Minnesota Public Interest Research Group (MPIRG).

Mental health

After more than 10 hours of hearings, lawmakers recommended passage of a plan to change the way Minnesota funds mental health. The vote came at a Health and Human Services Committee meeting Apr. 3.

Bill author Gloria Segal (DFL-St. Louis Park) says the state was once a leader in mental health services—even a model for federal legislation. Now, she says, the state ranks 37th nationally in delivering mental health services. But she says the blame isn't easy to fix on anyone.

"Perhaps the real blame is on each and every one of us and on society as a whole," Segal says, "because we've allowed people with needs to sit on the street corners... to sleep on the grates in Washington D.C. ...to fall between the cracks of the system."

Supporters say the legislation will give sorely needed leadership and coordination for each county to help the mentally ill in their communities. The bill now goes to the Appropriations Committee.
House and Senate members will hold a joint convention April 15 to approve House and Senate committee recommendations for the University of Minnesota Board of Regents. Nominees include Elton Kuderer, Fairmont; M. Elizabeth Craig, Minnetonka; Dr. J. P. Grahek, Ely; and David K. Roe, Medicine Lake. House Higher Education and Senate Education Committee members tentatively approved the candidates at a joint meeting April 8.

The House will recess after session on Wednesday, April 15 until Monday, April 20 before moving into the final weeks of session.

Over 100,000 children in Minnesota don't have health insurance, says Luanne Nyberg of the Children's Defense Fund. She supports Eileen Tompkin's (IR-Apple Valley) bill that would require employers, in business more than 10 years and who hire at least 20 people, to provide health insurance to all full-time workers. Most of the uninsured work, live in rural areas, have children, and can't afford insurance, says Tompkins. Opponents say taxpayers, not employers, should pick up the costs of health insurance for the uninsured.

DNR's proposing an extensive wildlife reserve project around Swan Lake. Supporters say the area was the most important waterfowl breeding area between the Gulf of Mexico and Canada before agriculture and development started draining the lake's sloughs. Project would put 5,000 to 8,000 acres of farmland out of production--land opponents say is some of the most productive in the state.

Companies that close plants in Minnesota would have to notify workers 10 days in advance, and the state would have to retrain workers for new jobs, if Rep. Karen Clark's (DFL-Mpls) bill, HF363, becomes law. She says the federal government has cut funding for retraining, while the number of displaced workers has increased. Rep. Don Frerichs (IR-Rochester) disagrees, says the state has enough job training programs in vocational-technical schools, and state agencies.

Employees have a right to know why they've lost their jobs, says Rep. Gil Gutknecht (IR-Rochester). He's proposing HF823, a bill that would require employers to tell workers in writing, and within five days of their request, the reason for firing or laying them off.

Unemployment compensation recipients wouldn't have to travel to the Twin Cities for hearings and medical exams if HF109 (Tunheim, DFL-Kennedy) becomes law. Hearings would be in the county where the employee lives, and medical exams available within 150 miles.

People shouldn't have to pay to apply for a job, says Rep. Wes Skoglund (DFL-Mpls). He's author of HF31, a bill that would prohibit companies from charging job application fees. Skoglund says the fees are a money-making scam, and if the practice becomes common, the unemployed won't be able to afford to apply for work.

Out-of-state employees of out-of-state companies wouldn't collect workers' compensation in Minnesota just because they incur injuries in this state under a change the Department of Labor and Industry's recommending in the use of the special compensation fund. The fund goes to reimburse people for second injuries, supplements reimbursements for long-term disabilities, and covers employees of uninsured employers. The proposed change is part of HF1450 (Simoneau, DFL-Fridley).

"We behave like everybody says they want state government to behave--like a corporation. We don't spend any more than we have to," says Housing Finance Agency Director Jim Solem about his agency.

Shelters are supposed to be temporary emergency housing, but they've become part of the state's housing stock, says Rep. Sandy Pappas (DFL-St. Paul). She says development projects continue to destroy low-income housing. She's proposing HF789, a bill that would provide state matching grants to build and renovate single room occupancy (SRO) housing--one room units, with shared bathrooms and kitchens. They'd rent for $150 a month and go to people earning up to 150 percent of poverty level ($7,400 a year).

Budget recommendations for 44 state departments, agencies, boards, and councils went into the omnibus State Departments Appropriations Bill this week. The State Departments Division of Appropriations is readying the bill for review by the full Appropriations Committee before the proposed budgets go to the House floor for a final vote.

Hotel fires in Puerto Rico, Kentucky, and Las Vegas prompted Rep. Tony Kinkel (DFL-Park Rapids) to sponsor HF1366. Kinkel says most people who lost their lives in those fires died from inhaling poisonous fumes that came from burning furniture and carpets. HF1366 would set up a task force to study whether the state should license... interior designers and be sure the indoor accessories they use meet OSHA standards.

U of M officials could get 70 percent of additional state money they asked for to fund Commitment to Focus plans. The Education Appropriations Division recommended a $16,765,000 one-time allocation for improved instruction. Members say they intend to add language that will stress that the funds go to Minneapolis, Morris, Duluth, and Waseca campuses for improvements to graduate and undergraduate classes. Emphasis is to be on lower division undergraduate instruction and counseling. The U had asked for $24 million for the program.

Congratulations to Rep. Loren Solberg (DFL-Bovey), recipient of a Bush Foundation Scholarship. The award recognizes special leadership qualities in an individual serving the public. Solberg plans to enroll in a Master's Program at the Harvard John F. Kennedy School of Government, working toward a Master's Degree in Public Administration with concentration in community and economic development.

"Minnesota has taken a giant step forward, but I'm afraid something may backfire," says Representative Tony Onnen (IR-Cokato) of a proposed mental health care system for the entire state. Onnen says he's concerned that the proposed changes could totally control the way counties help clients and ultimately harm the service clients receive.

A new science and technology division in the Department of Energy and Economic Development (DEED) could come out of a bill the Future and Technology Committee recommended to pass April 6. Supporters say DEED is an appropriate home for the new division which would replace the Governor's Office of Science and Technology.

Q&A
QUESTIONS YOU’VE ASKED

If you have a question, send it to us so readers can share Questions and Answers.

•What is General Orders?
A list of bills awaiting preliminary action in the House and Senate each day during a session. The bills have had committee hearings and committees have presented their recommendations on the bills to the House in committee reports.

After the House adopts the committee report on a bill, it goes onto General Orders of the Day. When the House takes up General Orders as part of the order of business, the speaker of the House will say, “The House will now dissolve itself into the Committee of the Whole.” The full House then becomes one Committee of the Whole and acts on bills on General Orders.

The Committee of the Whole may debate the issues, adopt amendments, and vote to recommend bills to pass, recommend to postpone action, or recommend no further action. If the Committee of the Whole recommends a bill to pass, it goes onto the Calendar.

•What is the Calendar?
A list of bills the Committee of the Whole recommends to pass. At this point, amendments to bills must have the unanimous consent of the full House. Legislators vote on them for the final time.

By committee recommendation, noncontroversial bills can bypass General Orders and go directly onto a Consent Calendar, where they usually pass without debate.

•What is the Consent Calendar?
A list of noncontroversial bills awaiting action in the House or Senate that usually pass without debate.

•What is Rule 1.10?
A rule of the House that directs the House to act on any bill that relates to taxes or raises revenue, whenever the chair of the Taxes Committee requests action. It also directs the House to act upon any appropriations bill whenever the chair of the Appropriations Committee requests action.

•What is a Conference Committee?
A committee of three or five representatives and an equal number of senators who meet to reach agreement on a bill when the House and Senate do not agree on a version of a proposed law.

•Who is the Chief Clerk of the House?
Edward A. Burdick is Chief Clerk of the House. He is an elected officer of the Minnesota House and unofficial parliamentarian. He acts as parliamentary advisor to the Speaker of the House who is the presiding officer. The Chief Clerk supervises the flow of all paper work at the front desk in the chamber of the House. And he is responsible for publication of the daily Journal, the legal record of House action.

•Who is the Revisor of Statutes?
The Revisor of Statutes is Steven Cross. He puts ideas for bills into proper legal form as a bill for introduction into the House or Senate, usually both. He is responsible for publication of Minnesota Statutes and updates the statutes to include all new laws.

•Who is the Speaker of the House?
Rep. Fred C. Norton is Speaker of the Minnesota House. The House elects him to be the presiding officer. The Speaker appoints committee members and chairs. He also assigns bills to committees after their introduction in the House.

Do You Know

Minnesota's Constitution requires a bill to have three readings before the House can vote on it. With each reading, the bill enters a new stage of the legislative process.

The first reading happens upon its introduction in the House. (Speaker of the House must have a copy at least 24 hours before convening of the daily session.)

Second reading comes when the bill's up for discussion in the House, (either on General Orders, or by committee recommendation, on the Consent Calendar). Third reading happens when the House votes on the bill's final passage.

Before typewriters or copying machines, legislators didn't have copies, so the clerk of the House read the entire bill aloud. Today, the chief clerk reads the bill's number, not its contents. Copies must be in members' files at the chief clerk's desk 24 hours before the House considers the bill.

Requirement's the same on the federal level. But for Congress, the House and Senate official manuals lay out the rules, not the Constitution. The practice comes from British Parliament, where the House of Lords and the House of Commons required three readings for bills.
