Wastewater treatment facilities

As many as 189 Minnesota municipalities are in need of new or improved wastewater treatment facilities, and some don't have much time, said Tim Scherkenbach of the Pollution Control Agency (PCA). They must meet federal water quality standards by July 1, 1988.

Scherkenbach, at the Local and Urban Affairs Committee meeting Jan. 29, updated lawmakers on PCA's 10-year plan to get the state in compliance with federal regulation.

He says 468 municipalities are in compliance, but many small communities on the national policy list are waiting for funding to complete first-time sewage-control projects. Also, Scherkenbach says, 20 percent of the sewers in St. Paul, Minneapolis, and South St. Paul are separate.

Scherkenbach estimates the state and its municipalities will have to pay out $400 million over the upcoming years to complete the 10-year plan. Eighty-four million dollars would come from the federal government, he says.

After the federal compliance deadline, Scherkenbach says a revolving loan fund will replace state and federal grant programs. Municipalities would use the fund to upgrade wastewater treatment facilities.

Education budget

Commissioner of Education Ruth Randall says she's delighted that the governor has kept his promise and made education number one in his proposed budget.

Randall and members of the Education Finance Division of the Education Committee took their first look at the governor's new budget proposal on Jan 28.

Education programs are the biggest budget winners. Under the governor's plan, education funding would go up $570 million, an increase of 14 percent.

Twenty-six percent of state money would go directly to school districts as foundation aid. The state would also give school districts another 20 percent to help reduce school

It's a fact!

In 1953, the Legislature adopted the Norway or Red Pine as Minnesota's official state tree.

The tree takes its name, Red Pine, from the pale red color of the heartwood and the reddish color of the bark. More often, Minnesotans call it the Norway Pine. Minnesota's record Norway, 120-feet tall and 116-inches around, grows in Itasca State Park. Tall and straight, the Norway Pine is the state's outstanding timber producer.
property taxes.
Randall said the governor, through his plan, hopes to challenge school districts with incentive programs, and not mandate action. Money would be available to schools that start improvement programs such as staff development and open enrollment, she said.

Crime victim emergency aid

"We receive several calls each week from victims who are in need of immediate, small types of cash assistance to provide them with immediate safety needs, shelter needs, or needs that cannot be met through other sources of assistance," says Fem Sepler-King.
Sepler-King, who is the executive director of the Crime Victim and Witness Advisory Council, spoke in favor of HF 144 (Kelly, DFL-St. Paul) before the Judiciary Committee Jan. 27.
The bill would create a special fund that would allow law enforcement officials to offer on-the-spot assistance to people who've suffered personal or property damage.
According to Sepler-King, the money could be paid directly to victims, or wherever possible, directly to those providing goods or services to a crime victim.
The Judiciary Committee recommended the bill to pass. It goes next to the Appropriations Committee.

Day care

Student representatives from state colleges, universities and AVTIs called for affordable, quality on-campus child care during their meeting with the Education Division of the Appropriations Committee members Jan 27.
Students say the increasing number of non-traditional students places a greater burden on campus day care.

University of Minnesota students compete for space in three on campus facilities, according to University representative Bob Trewartha. He said the system serves only 300 children of the estimated 2,600 students who need to find day care. The limited space leaves 400 to 500 students on waiting lists each semester, he said.
AVTI student Jon Olson told committee members that less than one-third of Minnesota's 34 AVTI campuses currently have child care facilities. He said affordable, dependable child care is an especially important issue to students who attend AVTI classes in rural areas of Minnesota.
Students stress the fact that available child care is an access issue for older students who must find affordable day care services before they can return to school. They urge legislators to strengthen state-funded child care facilities on campuses throughout the state.

Environmental issues

Environmental groups made their legislative priorities known at an Environment and Natural Resources Committee meeting Jan. 27. People representing the Audubon Society, Clean Water Action Project, Izaak Walton League, Minnesota Public Interest Research Group, League of Women Voters of Minnesota, The Nature Conservancy, RIM Coalition, and Sierra Club presented background information on their organizations and voiced concerns such as:
- additional funding for the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) project;
- pollution issues, including storage and disposal of hazardous wastes (both low-level radioactive wastes and household hazardous wastes); and
- a mandatory deposit on beverage containers.

Mail order sales tax

Direct marketing sellers could begin collecting sales and use tax for states in which they sell.
A proposed resolution, HF 135 (McLaughlin, DFL-Mpls), would allow Minnesota to collect substantial revenue from mail order purchases in the state that it can't collect under a 20-year-old Supreme Court ruling. The Taxes Committee recommended passage of the resolution Jan. 27.
Chief author McLaughlin says, "Minnesota businesses are at a significant disadvantage because the mail order companies don't charge sales tax. There's a significant loss of state revenue--revenues that are rightly due the state."
According to Dorothy McClung, director of legal and legislative affairs, Department of Revenue, Minnesota is losing about $30 million a year from sales tax revenue due to mail order business. She says the resolution would require companies to collect taxes for all states in which they sell.
If the Minnesota Legislature passes the resolution, it will go on to Congress.

Funding for State Departments Agencies

Legislative analyst Lisa Larson presented the 1987 House Research guide "Funding for State Departments Agencies" to the State Departments Division of the Appropriations Committee Jan. 27.
The guide gives sources of funding for the nearly 50 state agencies that receive funding through House and Senate State Departments Divisions.
"The guide shows the relationship between the type of funding structure the Legislature selects for an agency and the extent of control the Legislature has over that agency," Larson says.
It's the first such guide the research department has produced, and Chair
Rep. Phyllis Kahn (DFL-Mpls) says, "It is one of the most useful documents I've ever seen."

Less money for states

Attorneys Jim Holmes of Holmes and Graven, Tim Marx of Briggs and Morgan, and Jim Solem, director of the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency, explained the effects of new federal tax laws on bonding to the Economic Development and Housing Committee Jan. 27.

The U.S. Congress cut the amount of money states can use per year for private activity bonds in half, from $150 per capita in 1986, to $75 per capita in 1987. In 1988, bonding amounts will further decrease to $50 per capita.

With less money for private activity bonds, and new restrictions on the use of government activity bonds, competition for bonds will increase.

Minnesota's Legislature, says Solem, will need to decide how much bond money to use for manufacturing, housing, and student loans, and how much authority state, county, and city governments will have in granting bonds.

Open enrollment

Most high school students want to represent their hometown or neighborhood in school activities and probably wouldn't use the open enrollment option if they had the chance, according to a representative of the Minnesota Association of Secondary School Principals.

Education experts and members of the Education Finance Division of the Appropriations Committee discussed questions surrounding open enrollment at their Jan. 26 meeting.

Brooklyn Center principal Dennis Morrow said that given the chance to decide, students usually pick the school closest to home that offers the greatest chance for involvement.

Morrow said an agreement between Brooklyn Center and Anoka school districts allows 10th graders to change schools. He said 86 percent of the students who made the one-time move during the past two years made the decision on their own, without the influence of parents.

Legislators say they're concerned that students might switch schools strictly for athletic programs without considering the educational effects. But, Morrow said 55 percent of students in his district chose to participate in extracurricular activities after deciding to transfer.

Morrow said offering enrollment choice to Brooklyn Center and Anoka students has worked very well. "I think students who want to be at a certain school are going to be less of a disciplinary problem and they're going to like school more," he said.

Winona State University

Winona State University officials say they need to take advantage of Winona's high-tech business climate to establish a new engineering program. Several companies in the area make composite materials for aerospace, medical, and recreation industries. Composite materials are durable, light-weight compounds made from resins and fibers.

At the first meeting of the new Future and Technology Committee Jan. 26, Dr. Thomas Stark, Winona State University president, told lawmakers that the school needs a composites science engineering program. According to Stark, the proposed program is an effort to make the state an industry leader in composite materials.

Stark says, "We think that students who would be in this engineering program would have an unusual educational experience being in a laboratory setting in these industries. We want to carve out a niche in the state and support the surrounding industries."

Committee Chair Rep. Leo Reding (DFL-Austin), says one of the goals of the new committee is to move high technology into greater Minnesota, and keep promoting it in the metro area.

Smaller classes in elementary schools

Minnesota educators are calling for smaller classes in elementary schools to help improve the remedial education of students.

Bob Arnold, executive director of Minnesota Elementary School Principals, told the Education Committee that students' reading skills will keep getting worse if elementary classrooms stay the way they are now.

Arnold says a combination of factors are responsible for declining reading and writing skills such as: changing family structure, increased classroom size, and greater diversity of skill levels within a single classroom.

Arnold urges legislators to consider programs that would limit class sizes to 18 to 20 students. He says smaller classes with more one-on-one teaching could help raise school achievement levels.

Arnold spoke at the Education Committee's Jan. 26 meeting.

Restructuring the DNR

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) needs to be more responsive to local concerns, says Aaron Reynolds of Touche Ross and Co. accounting firm. The Legislature hired the firm to do an organization and management study of the DNR.

Reynolds told the State Departments Division of the Appropriations Committee Jan. 26 that the DNR often responds to local concerns from behind the scenes, without consulting or informing the community. The DNR's isolation from the public causes resentment, hostility, and suspicion, he says.

To solve this problem, Touche Ross and Co. recommends that regional administrators develop plans addressing local concerns, and act as spokespersons for the DNR commissioner.

But the firm also says the DNR needs to balance local problems with statewide policies and goals. The department needs to more clearly define responsibilities of DNR divisions and bureaus.

While Touche Ross and Co. didn't present a budget, structural changes in the DNR would cost money. House members on the State Departments Division, faced with no increases in the governor's budget proposal and an overall budget shortfall, said they're concerned about the cost, practicality, and effectiveness of the firm's recommendations.

Farm loan interest buydown

The farm interest buydown bill jumped another hurdle Jan. 26 when the Agriculture Committee unanimously voted to extend the program for one year.

As it stands now, HF1 provides $20 million for program extension and $14 million to pay off the program's present deficit. It also sets a cap of $12,500 on the total interest subsidy a farmer can get. The cap, according to the bill's author, Rep. Katy Olson (DFL-Sherburn), will limit participation and stretch program dollars.

Some committee members questioned the cap. Among them was Rep. Allen Quist (IR-St. Peter) who said the cap may hurt farmers most in need of the program.

An attempt to do away with the cap failed by legislators who favor raising the debt-to-asset ration to limit participation.

The bill goes next to the Appropriations Committee.

Youth in government

More than 750 youth from about 125 high schools and YMCAs across the state got a firsthand experience running state government. They took part in a four-day YMCA Youth in Government event at the State Capitol Jan. 22-25.

During the four-day mock session, students assumed roles in the three main branches of state government. At a special convention last November, the youth elected judicial, constitutional, and legislative officers, and appointed about 50 cabinet-level positions.

Rep. Peter Rodosovich (DFL-Faribault), director of the program, says the program helps youth work with and respect people. He says it also helps them to better understand and appreciate the legislative process and to be responsible voters and citizens.

Some students took roles of media personnel; television and newspaper reporters, anchors, and technical personnel. Some were pages, some lobbyists for mock sessions of the House and Senate.

They met with actual lobbyists, drafted bills, and determined lobbying strategy. Most participants had opportunities to meet their real-life counterparts.

Proposed budget plan

The Ways and Means Committee recommended adoption of a plan Jan. 22 that would give the House until March 31 to set state tax and spending limits for the next two years.

Committee Chair and Speaker of the House Fred Norton (DFL-St. Paul) says the new budget plan would allow time for deliberation and public testimony, and a more accurate budget proposal.

Norton says, "The proposal is a coming together of the tax ability and the needs of the taxpayers."

The plan comes later in the session than a similar budget plan did two years ago. It goes next to the Rules and Legislative Administration Committee, and then to the House floor for consideration.
YMCA Youth in Government program began in Minnesota in 1946—nationally in 1936. Forty-two states have youth in government programs, with 33 states reporting 14,209 participants. (See Highlight: "Youth in government")

House members from Minneapolis invite legislators to tour "blighted" Minneapolis and St. Paul neighborhoods Friday, Jan. 30 at 8:45 a.m. to 12 noon to get first-hand information on inner city economic development proposals.

Unemployment compensation, workers’ compensation, and minimum wage were the topics of Jan. 26 Labor-Management Relations Committee meeting. Business and labor leaders from Minnesota Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Independent Business Association of Minnesota, National Federation of Independent Businesses, Minnesota AFL-CIO, and Minnesota Teamsters Union testified.

"DAV is financially sound. Therefore, we are withdrawing our request of $25,000," John Merthan told the Agriculture, Transportation and Semi-State Division Jan. 26. Merthan's state adjutant for Minnesota's Disabled American Veterans Department (DAV). Merthan says successful thrift store and members' support has made DAV self-sufficient.

Minnesota and other Great Lakes states lose tourists to southern states, especially in the winter, said Hank Todd at Jan. 27 Commerce Committee meeting. To even the score, Todd says in July and August, when blistering heat hits southern states, Great Lakes states may team up and push their "natural air-conditioning." Todd's director of the Office of Tourism, recent winner of 1986 National Travel Marketing Award for its Explore Minnesota promotional packet.

The State Departments Division of Appropriations toured the Department of Employee Relations Jan. 27.

Annual Minnesota highway deaths are down from 610 to 570 Paul Tschida, commissioner of public safety reported Jan. 28 at a Transportation Committee meeting. Tschida says the state's made progress with DWI offenders who are social drinkers, but a lot of hard-core drunk drivers are still on the roads.

The House unanimously approved a resolution Jan. 26 urging Congress to free up federal highway money. Congress adjourned last year without reauthorizing the federal-aid highway program. The program gives federal aid to states for road work. For Minnesota, this means over $250 million.

House appointees to the Commission on the Economic Status of Women are: Karen Clark (DFL-Mpls); Katy Olson (DFL-Sherburn); Sidney Pauly (IR-Eden Prairie); Ann Rest (DFL-New Hope); and Gloria Segal (DFL-St. Louis Park).

Minnesota and five other Great Lakes states put retailers on notice to voluntarily register by March 31 to collect sales and use tax from out-of-state customers or they'll be subject to audits. States will exchange the names of customers. Action's part of the Great Lakes States Interstate Sales Compact. Purpose: to enforce sales and use tax laws. Other states in the compact: Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

The Health and Human Services Committee will tour St. Paul Children's Hospital Thursday, Feb. 5. A bus will leave from the front of the State Office Building at 10:05 a.m.

Legislators will have to keep Minnesota's competitive situation in mind when determining tax reforms, said House Minority Leader Bill Schreiber (IR-Brooklyn Park) at Jan. 29 Taxes Committee meeting. He says lawmakers must look at what other states are doing because Minnesota's in a competitive environment.

Three bills that would reject the recommended salary adjustments for legislators, constitutional officers, and the judiciary were on the agenda for Governmental Operations Committee Jan. 29. Discussion will continue at the committee's meeting early next week on HF39 (Shaver, IR-Wayzata), HF40 (MCPerson, IR-Stillwater), and HF68 (Vanasek, DFL-New Prague).

Environment and Natural Resources Committee heard testimony favoring HF91, the Minnesota Pipeline Safety Act (Knuth, DFL-New Brighton) Jan. 29. The committee plans to hear opponents of the bill Feb. 3.

About 475,000 Minnesotans live in poverty, an increase of 100,000 since1979, according to a new report by the Governor's Commission on Poverty. Sixty-five percent of the state's poor live in Minneapolis, with 175,000.

JOINT FINANCE SUBCOMMITTEE & GOVERNMENT STRUCTURE SUBCOMMITTEE/ METROPOLITAN AFFAIRS
A bill is an idea for a new law, or an idea to abolish or change an existing law. Several thousand bills enter the legislative process in Minnesota each time the Legislature meets.

Minnesota has a bicameral Legislature, or two groups of elected citizens (senators in the Senate, representatives in the House of Representatives) who study, discuss, and vote on bills, acting for the people of Minnesota. Bills begin their legislative journey in either the House or the Senate, or both. To become a law, all bills must pass in both the House and Senate, and be approved and signed by the governor.

The idea
Anyone can propose an idea for a bill - an individual, consumer group, corporation, professional association, governmental unit, or the governor. Most ideas come from members of the Legislature. The reviser of statutes puts the ideas for bills into proper legal form as a bill for introduction. Only legislators can introduce bills into the lawmaking process.

Chief author
The legislator who sponsors and introduces the bill in the Legislature is the chief author. The chief author's name appears on the bill with the bill's file number for identification as it moves through the legislative process. The chief author may select up to four other authors, whose names also appear on the bill.

Introduction in the Legislature
When the author introduces a bill in the House, it gets a House File (HF) number (HF264, for example), indicating the chronological order of the bill's introduction. In the Senate, the bill gets a Senate File (SF) number (SF224, for example). Each HF in the House usually has a companion SF in the Senate. All revenue-raising bills must begin in the House.

Committee consideration
At introduction, the bill has its first reading. (The Minnesota Constitution requires three readings on three separate days for all bills.) The presiding officer of the House or Senate refers the bill to an appropriate committee for action. All committee meetings are open to the public. A committee may: recommend passage of a bill in its original form; recommend passage of a bill after it has been amended by the committee; or make no recommendation, in which case a bill may die when the session ends. After acting on a bill, the committee sends a report stating its actions and recommendations to the House or Senate.

General orders
After approval of the committee report in the House and Senate, the bill has its second reading and goes onto General Orders--a list of bills waiting House action. House members, acting as the Committee of the Whole, discuss bills, debate the issues, adopt amendments, and present arguments. They may recommend that a bill "do pass," be postponed, or have further committee action.

Calendar
The calendar is a list of bills the Committee of the Whole recommends to pass. At this point, a bill has its third reading. Amendments to a bill on the Calendar must have the unanimous consent of all House members in this final vote. By committee recommendation, non-controversial bills may bypass General Orders and go directly onto a Consent Calendar, usually passing without debate. Every bill requires a majority vote of the full membership of the House and Senate to pass.

Conference Committee
If the House and Senate do not agree on a bill, a conference committee of three or five senators, and an equal number of representatives, meets to reach an agreement. If both bodies then pass the bill in compromise form, it goes to the governor.

Governor
When a bill arrives at the governor's office, the governor may: sign it, and the bill becomes law; veto it (return it with a "veto message" stating the objections); pocket veto the bill (take no action and let adjournment of the Legislature, in effect, veto the bill); or line veto portions of appropriation bills. If the governor does not sign or veto a bill within three days after receiving it, and the Legislature is in session, the bill automatically becomes law.
Do You Know

To "progress" a bill on the House floor means to delay its consideration—temporarily.

Even though a member requests progress, a bill on General Orders (a list of bills that have been reported out of committee and had a second reading) keeps its place. But on the third request, the bill loses its place and goes to the end of General Orders, unless the member requests that it retain its place.

"Progress" originated in English Parliament and meant to "pass over or around." This definition, though no longer found in most contemporary dictionaries, has been in use in the Minnesota legislative process for over 100 years. To progress a House bill on the floor, means to pass over.
