Consumer protection

People who repair automobiles or appliances may have to post signs in their shops that list any storage or care fees they charge.

HF1940, which the Commerce Committee recommended to pass Feb. 18, would require shop owners to conspicuously post the signs and inform customers of the extra fee when they give them a written estimate for repair costs.

Rep. Rich O'Connor (DFL-St. Paul), bill author, says some repair shops are charging storage fees which come as a surprise to customers.

HF1940 would also require shop owners to include any storage or care charges in written repair estimates and invoices they give to customers.

In other action, the committee recommended passage of HF1816 (Jefferson, DFL-Mpls) which would require car renters or lessors to provide customers with child restraint seats if they request them. The bill would allow people who rent or lease vehicles to charge a reasonable user fee.

Transportation study board

The Transportation Committee, Feb. 17, recommended a bill that would set up a 25-member transportation study board.

HF1750 would direct the board of legislators and a cross-section of the public to conduct a thorough study of transportation needs and funding for the next 20 years.

Rep. Henry Kalis (DFL-Walters), bill author, says transportation in the 1990s will be one of the biggest issues facing state legislators and many local units of government. Kalis says the study board can help the state define its transportation needs and develop a plan to meet them.

In addition to reviewing transportation needs, HF1750 would direct the board to study such areas as: toll financ-

It's a fact!

A precinct is an election district with a polling place and Minnesota has more than 4,000 of them. A precinct may include several city blocks, or may be as large as a rural township.

Precinct caucuses are meetings of neighbors who have common interests in the operation and policies of local, state, and federal government. State law requires each major political party to hold a caucus for every election precinct each general election year to elect officers and conduct business.

Neighbors who attend precinct caucuses will help elect caucus and precinct officers, select delegates for county or legislative district conventions, recruit election judges, and discuss issues which may become a plank in the party platform.

ing, transportation bonding, local wheelage taxes, indexed fuel tax and fuel sales tax, the role of transit, highway jurisdiction, and the dedication of the Motor Vehicle Excise Tax through a constitutional amendment.

The bill, a part of the Transportation Finance Commission's recommendations to the Legislature, would give the board three years to complete the study.

Graduation aid

About 650,000 Minnesotans have not finished high school, according to studies.

A bill that supporters say would upgrade the education level in Minnesota's workplace and give adults a second chance for a high school diploma was before the Education Committee Feb. 17.

HF1768 (Bauerly, DFL-Sauk Rapids), would allow adults who dropped out of high school to return for their diplomas, free.

In its present form, the bill would make those applicants eligible who: have completed 10th grade; are not handicapped and don't need special instruction and services; qualify for or have exhausted unemployment compensation benefits or other income maintenance and support services; and have not received social security benefits.

"It's difficult to gauge how much this program will cost," says Bauerly. "We don't have a handle on how many people will participate."

The governor recommends reimbursing districts $1,765 each school year for every participant. HF1768 sets reimbursement at $2,735.

The Education Committee's Finance Division will examine both proposals.

Highway funding package

On Feb. 17, the Taxes Committee recommended passage of HF1749, a highway funding bill to improve state roads, highways, and transit systems. Rep. Henry Kalis (DFL-Walters) sponsors the bill.

If it becomes law, the bill will divert an additional 30 percent of the Motor Vehicle Excise Tax (MVET) from the general fund.

HF1749 provides that 75 percent of the transferred funds go to the Highway User Tax Distribution Fund; the other 25 percent to the Transit Assistance Fund.

Also, the bill would raise the state tax on gasoline and special fuels three cents, bringing the total Minnesota gas tax to 20 cents.

Although many citizens testified on behalf of the bill, Rep. Linda Scheid (DFL-Brooklyn Park) says she isn't convinced that people favoring the tax increase will receive the road or transit projects they hope the tax will buy.

Rep. Don Valento (IR-Little Canada) opposes the bill. He considers it a temporary solution. Valento urges support for Rep. Sidney Pauly's (IR-Eden Prairie) amended version of the bill which eliminates the three-cent tax increase, but retains the MVET fund transfer.

Valento says he wants a constitutional amendment which, he says, would protect the longevity of a highway funding package that depends on the transfer of MVET funds.

The three-cent increase in the gas tax is a recommendation of the Transportation Finance Study Commission.

DWI penalties

Drivers guilty of driving-while-intoxicated (DWI) more than once may face stiffer penalties if SF537 becomes law. The Judiciary Committee recommended the bill to pass Feb. 16. SF537 would require judges to sentence multiple DWI offenders to 30 days' jail time or 240 community service hours, or any combination of jail time and community service that totals 30 days.

House sponsor, Rep. Darby Nelson (DFL-Champlin), says sentencing of multiple DWI offenders is inconsistent, which encourages offenders to go judge shopping and reduces the overall fairness of the system. A mandatory minimum sentence should lead to some degree of consistency, Nelson says.

Rep. Terry Dempsey (IR-New Ulm) says he's concerned about community service opportunities in some parts of the state. He says some people have to go great distances to their community service projects, and they don't have driver's licenses. In other cases, Dempsey says, the few projects that exist have waiting lists.

Business automation

High-tech automation for small manufacturing plants was up for discussion Feb. 16 at a joint hearing of the Future and Technology and Economic Development and Housing Committees.

Spearheading the discussion was Theodore Lettes, Office of Technology and Innovation, U.S. Department of Commerce, Washington D.C.

"Automation does not decrease jobs," says Lettes. "Businesses must be competitive. If they are not, they shut down. And then there are no jobs."

Lettes stressed a need for high quality U.S. manufacturing—particularly in small firms that make specialized parts for large companies.

His presentation came at the urging of the Economic Development Strategies Working Group, a task force of citizens and lawmakers that examines Minnesota's business resources and needs. Rep. Todd Otis (DFL-Mpls), chair of the Economic Development and Housing Committee, says the task force will propose several legislative actions in 1989.

Permanency planning

Children in foster care may be able to look forward to safer, more stable homes and a speedier process to get them there under a proposal the Judiciary Committee's Crime and Family Law Division recommended to pass Feb. 16.

HF577 makes the best interest of a child a top priority in permanency planning, says author Rep. Ann Rest (DFL-New Hope). The bill would shorten, to six months, the time a social service agency has to return a child to his/her parents or ask the courts to terminate parental rights and prepare the child for adoption.

"This is essentially a piece of work that is designed to keep families together and get families together as soon as possible," says Bob Denardo of Catholic Charities. "Under existing law, children can stay in voluntary foster care for up to 18 months with no accountability, with no one...looking to see if the service plan the agency and parent developed is really being followed."

Hennepin County Attorney Tom Johnson says the bill would help clarify expectations that permanency plans put on parents and government. Also, it would specify a time frame for the plans to assure that parents and agencies will follow them.

Extended day programs

On Feb. 15, the Education Finance Division of the Education Committee took its first look at extended day programs for children in kindergarten through sixth grades.

Extended day programs, also known as "latch-key," would ideally provide adult supervision to school-age children both before and after normal school hours and during summers. Currently, 33 school districts in greater Minnesota and 34 districts in the metro area offer after-hours child supervision, usually to 6 p.m., says Mary Jo Richardson of the Department of Education. On the average, parents now pay $19 a week for up to 15 hours of supervision. Most of these programs shut down for summer.

"Right now, extended day is a middle-class program," says Richardson. "Parent fees pay 90 percent of the cost. The rest is picked up by churches, businesses, or community organizations like United Way."

The Department of Education asks for about $1.35 million to help districts start extended day programs, operate through summers, and set up sliding-fee scales based on parents' incomes.

The department also requests $3.2 million for early childhood education initiatives, including all-day kindergarten, "early start" education for children who are at risk of school failure, and other "local needs" pre-school education programs.

She's a parent, a registered nurse, a recovering alcoholic, a former drug addict—and she's dying from AIDS. Her testimony at the AIDS Symposium on Feb. 15 brought representatives to their feet. Carole LeFavor talked about her life and the disease that is killing her.

AIDS Symposium

Through three hours of testimony Feb. 15, House members learned about the AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) epidemic and how it affects Minnesotans. The AIDS Symposium brought together health and education experts, community leaders, families, and patients to explain the impact of the disease.

They listened as three people told how AIDS has affected their lives: a father talked about his son who died from AIDS due to a blood transfusion; a counselor read a letter from a boy, a prostitute, who died from the disease—and he wonders what he could have done to help the boy; and a woman spoke who is dying from AIDS that she contracted before overcoming her IV drug habit.

They learned about the facts and trends from Kristine McDonald, MD, assistant state epidemiologist with the Department of Health. Then, they heard Minnesota's response to AIDS from Sister Mary Madonna Ashton, health commissioner (See Notes, page 5); Nan Skelton, assistant commissioner, Department of Education; Eric Engstrom, director, Minnesota AIDS Project; and Charles Arndt and Ben Aune from the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

According to Rep. Lee Greenfield (DFL-Mpls), symposium chair, the special program was designed to prepare representatives as they make decisions affecting Minnesota businesses, patients, health professionals, and families. "It was our hope...that we would provide house members and staff with factual background on the AIDS virus, so that we can effectively deal with legislation to contain the disease and educate the public. We believe the symposium went a long way in achieving that goal as well as bringing the human element of AIDS to the forefront."

AIDS legislation, testimony, and proposals are currently before several House committees including the Education Finance Division of the Education Committee, the Health and Human Services Committee and the Health and Human Services Division of the Appropriations Committee.

Interest buydowns

Minnesota farmers may again get help with spring operating expenses. HF1757, a bill Rep. Norman DeBlieck (DFL-Milroy) is sponsoring, seeks to extend the interest buydown program for another year. On Feb. 15, the Agriculture Committee recommended the bill to pass.

HF1757 would make available $6.5 million to banks to buy down the interest rate on farm operating loans.

Commissioner of Commerce, Mike Hatch, praised the program's value and simplicity, but warned against excessive qualification requirements which might discourage eligible farmers from applying for the loans. Says Hatch, "This program is symbolic of a positive attempt by this Legislature with regard to the farm crisis."

The committee struck a provision from the bill that required eligible farmers to have a positive cash flow of not more than $40,000.

Qualification for a loan under the proposal would require farmers to have a debt-to-asset ratio exceeding 50 percent, a net worth of under $200,000, and a participating lender's statement that a farm operation stands a reasonable chance of long-term financial survival.

International investments

The State Board of Investment should invest in international markets, according to the board's director, Howard Bicker.

"International investment provides us a strong diversification tool," he says.

Bicker testified Feb. 15 at the Governmental Operations Committee hearing in favor of HF1806 (Simoneau, DFL-Fridley), a bill that would give the board authority to invest in international securities.

Bicker says the board's not asking for something unique. Other states and corporations are already investing in the international arena, he says. In 1979, when people started to invest internationally, U.S. corporations and public pension plans put about $4 billion into international markets. As of 1986, according to Bicker, the investment has reached $45 billion and continues to grow.

Bicker told the committee the board expects international investments would be only about 5 to 10 percent of the alternative investments portfolio, which includes such holdings as real estate, venture capital, and resource funds. Together with the proposed international securities investments, alternative investments could not involve more than 35 percent of the board's total funds under current state law.

Abducted children

Parents of abducted children often go into serious debt to get them back. So Rep. Randy Kelly (DFL-St. Paul) is sponsoring HF1754, a bill that would give them some help. The Judiciary Committee recommended the proposal to pass on Feb. 12. The bill would allow the Crime Victims Reparations Board to reimburse a parent who pays for food, lodging, and transportation to bring a child back home.

Fern Sepler-King, executive director of the reparations board, supports the bill. She says innocent victims shouldn't pay for a situation in which they're a victim.

Sepler-King told the committee of an unemployed parent who took out a high-interest loan to help pay the cost of retrieving a child. The parent "has been unable to repay [the loan] and is suffering the consequences... people have often gone into fairly deep debt, and it's hurting their ability to take care of their other obligations."

Before the board compensates any crime victim, it requires substantial proof that a crime occurred, and that the victim wasn't part of the crime, says Sepler-King. The board would require similar proof before compensating a parent of an abducted child, she says, and would later try to get the money back from the abducting parent.

Capitol Complex child care

On Feb. 18, the State Departments Division of the Appropriations Committee heard a report on a feasibility study on providing child care in the Capitol Complex for state employees.

According to the report, results of a survey show that state employees find child care unaffordable, unreliable, and of inconsistent quality.

The study identified a need for alternative sick child care, daycare hours that match work hours, well-trained care givers, summer care for older children, and care that is affordable.

The study recommends that the state:

- include space for child care in all planned or renovated office buildings;
- underwrite costs of a pilot-project daycare center in the Capitol Complex;
- consider opening two centers in leased, portable centers;
- establish an innovative program for the care of infants;
- contract with a private provider for sick-child care; and
- identify a child-care resource person for each agency.

On Feb. 18, veterans concerned about the jurisdiction of the veterans' homes lined the Capitol steps, lawn, and streets.

notes

The job of assigning chapter numbers to session laws would transfer from the secretary of state to the revisor of statutes starting in 1989 under a bill the Judiciary Committee recommended to pass Feb. 12. Now, the Secretary of State assigns chapter numbers as soon as the governor signs a bill into law. HF1773 (Kelly, DFL-St. Paul) would require the revisor to assign chapter numbers in the order in which the last legislative vote occurred, before the bill goes to the governor.

Northwestern Bell's prepared to barter for changes in last year's deregulation law, says the company's lobbyist, Tom Bystrzycki. Bystrzycki told members of the House Regulated Industries Committee on Feb. 15 that NWB would agree to freeze consumer and small business phone rates for four years if the Legislature would let NWB discontinue separate accounting systems for regulated and deregulated services the law now requires.

The financial condition of Minnesota's schools is on the upswing, say state education officials. Addressing the Education Committee Feb. 15, Ken Zastrow of the Department of Education reported a 16.7 percent revenue increase in the 1986-87 school year. During that same period, expenditures went up 15.4 percent. And the number of school districts operating in statutory debt also took a significant drop.

Despite the brighter financial picture the full committee heard Feb. 15 from the Department of Education, school district superintendents came down hard on proposed funding formulas for 1988-89 at the Education Committee's Finance Division meeting Feb. 17. The division is considering a variety of bills that would raise the funding formulas and/or change disparity reduction mandates.

"If the University of Minnesota was a city if would be the fourth largest city in Minnesota and if it were a manufacturing company it would stand somewhere in the middle of the Fortune 500—it's vast, it's complex and it deserves to have the very best Board of Directors that it can," says attorney John French. French, member of an independent study group that supports Rep. Todd Otis's bill, HF 1586, testified before the Higher Education Committee Feb. 17. HF1586 proposes to improve the Board of Regents' selection process.

Minnesotans have a chance to voice their opinions on key issues and presidential candidates at local caucuses Tuesday, Feb. 23. Although attendance at caucuses has been on the downtrend, Secretary of State Joan Grove has a reporting system ready to assess presidential candidate strength among those attending precinct caucuses—and possibly increase interest and attendance. Volunteers organized the system to gather caucus results electronically for display in two television studios at KTCA-TV.

Hundreds of veterans rallied at the Capitol, Feb. 18 to protest the governor's decision to move the jurisdiction of the veterans homes to the Department of Health. Although the veterans homes violated state and federal regulations, the vets feel that, with the right guidelines and administration, the homes belong with the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Canterbury Downs discussions are lively as the General Legislation, Veterans Affairs & Gaming Committee hears testimony on a delete everything amendment to SF724, a bill to reduce the parimutuel tax and modify purses at the track. The committee's first meeting of the 1988 legislative session was Feb. 18—in the afternoon at the Capitol and in the evening in Shakopee.

Congratulations went to the legislators from Sister Mary Madonna Ashton, Department of Health commissioner at an AIDS Symposium in the House chamber Feb. 15. "You are to be congratulated for the help you have given to us public health officials who are fighting the deadly disease, AIDS," said Ashton. Yet she urged lawmakers to support legislation to fight AIDS, to help those afflicted, and to continue public education efforts.

Do You Know

All precinct caucuses will begin at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 23, 1988.

You can participate in a precinct caucus if you're a qualified voter or will qualify to vote on Nov. 8, 1988, and live in the precinct where the caucus meets. You don't have to belong to a political party before attending a caucus. But you should be ready to state that you intend to support that party in the next general election or have supported that party in the last general election. Caucuses are open political party meetings. Anyone, including persons who won't be qualified voters by Nov. 8, 1988, may attend a caucus as an observer.

To find out where your precinct caucus will meet, call:

Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party (DFL):
(612) 293-1200;

Independent-Republican Party (IR):
(612) 854-1446;

or your local county auditor (phone numbers inside).
