HIGHLIGHTS

Campaign financing

"Those who seek public office know that it takes money, lots of money, to campaign for public office, and often even more money to win a political race," says Rep. Joseph Quinn (DFL-Coon Rapids).

At the General Legislation, Veterans Affairs & Gaming Committee meetings on March 17 and 24, debate centered on such issues as the often-expressed argument by media and the public that candidates who have access to higher donations and funds win political races more often, and yet may not be the most qualified for the position. Members also discussed the public concern about the effect large donations have on the voting voice of the elected official, and whether the state has jurisdiction to draft such legislation.

Quinn's bill, HF1607, would limit campaign expenditures by congressional candidates who choose to receive a public subsidy for their campaigns.

The subsidy would come from public funds Minnesotans generate when they check the campaign fund box on their annual tax form indicating they want $5 of their refund or payment to go to help candidates for state offices. HF1607 would change the language on the form to include U.S. House and Senate candidates. Federal income tax forms now allow for a $1 check-off for presidential candidates.

Quinn reminded committee members that the program is completely voluntary. Minnesotans have a choice to check or not to check the state election campaign fund box. And political candidates have the choice to take or not to take the subsidy. Candidates would have to limit their campaign spending only if they opt to receive the state subsidy.

Health, human services funds

On behalf of the Health & Human Services Division/Appropriations Committee and representing many hours of testimony, discussion, and amend-

It's a fact!

The daily journals of the House and Senate can be weighty, legal tools because Minnesota courts consider them proof of legislative intent. Minnesota is a journal entry state, as are a number of states in the Union. But most states use the final bill the Legislature delivers to the governor for signature as enforcing, properly passed legislation, not the journal record, when someone challenges a law.

However, many years ago, Minnesota courts established the journals' legal clout when they used the journals as proof of the Legislature's intent, overrode, and revoked a new law.

For a story about the overturn of a bill the governor signed, see "Do You Know?" on page 18.

ments, Rep. Lee Greenfield (DFL-Mpls) presented HF2126, the 225-page Health & Human Services omnibus bill, to the Appropriations Committee at their March 24 meeting.

The omnibus bill includes 43 health and human services bills providing legislation that would, for example: establish an addiction/stress institute; provide additional or improved services under the medical assistance and general assistance/medical care programs; update or change legislation for the intermediate care facilities for the mentally retarded; transfer funds for the Minnesota veterans homes to the Department of Veterans Affairs; and require various certifications, studies, and demonstration projects.

The bill provides for $22,371,100 in spending for fiscal year 1989. Using monies from the 1988 fiscal year medical assistance budget reduces total proposed spending for the biennium to $11,437,700.

The bill, with Appropriations Committee approval, goes next to the House floor.

State High School League

On a vote of 49 to 69 March 23, the House voted down an amendment to the K-12 Education Omnibus Bill that would have stripped the State High School League's 90-member grassroots assembly of its rulemaking authority.

The assembly, also referred to as the league's legislature, meets twice a year, in fall and spring, primarily to hear and vote on activity rule proposals.

The amendment, would have removed that authority and put all control in the hands of the league's 16-member board of directors.

However, House members did approve an amendment that would stop the league from controlling athletes' activities during the off-season and allow parents to determine their children's activities.

Other provisions in the K-12 Education Omnibus Bill would:

- increase the league's board of directors from 16 to 20 members and allow the governor to appoint four of the members;

- require the legislative auditor to conduct annual finance and compliance audits of the league;
- require the league to develop a comparable worth plan and an affirmative action policy;
- subject the league to the Data Practices Act; and
- prohibit league credit cards and propose other changes in High School League operations.

Flag etiquette

Minnesota children could get a yearly lesson on the American flag under an amendment to the K-12 Education Omnibus Bill the House adopted on March 23.

Rep. K.J. McDonald (IR-Watertown) offered the amendment saying that recent anti-war protests in Minneapolis brought the issue to his attention. In these protests, demonstrators set fire to the flag.

"Our children need to learn what the flag means," he said.

The original amendment would have required public schools to offer a yearly program or course in flag etiquette, including "the proper handling, care, display of, and respect for the American flag."

But during floor debate, legislators made the program optional.

"We're looking for a way to try to send a signal out, to tell people that this is important to us," said Rep. John Rose (IR-Roseville). "But if we required schools to do everything that we wanted—even if it has to do with Mom, apple pie, and our flag—our curriculum would get very cluttered."

Besides flag etiquette, the House also amended HF2245 to:

- require the Department of Education, in developing AIDS prevention education, to advise schools to adopt programs that neither encourage nor condone sexual promiscuity; and
- require the Department of Education to conduct a cost of living study that includes all regions of the state.

The K-12 Education Omnibus Bill passed as amended, 128-0.

University of Minnesota

University of Minnesota officials formally withdrew their $23 million legislative funding request on March 23, just hours after the Appropriations Committee's Education Division pulled its higher education funding bill back from the full committee to reconsider its U of M allocation.

Last week, the division approved $3.4 million to the U of M on the condition that the university make a two-to-one match of that money from its $50 million central reserves. But in a special hearing March 22, the division learned that discretionary central reserves totaled about $60 million and other fund reserves came to about $160 million.

"I don't think the University has been open or public about its activities" said Rep. Ben Boo (IR-Duluth) at the March 22 meeting.

"One of the rules that politicians live by—and that I think the University should follow—is that surprises don't make good politics." "We share your surprise and outrage," David Lebedoff, chair of the Board of Regents, told the division March 23. "To say that the regents didn't know the facts, which we didn't, is not good enough. You deserve more than that. You deserve action."

Lebedoff proposes that the U of M finance its high priorities by a $40 million central reserve spend-down.

And when Rep. Gloria Segal (DFL-St. Louis Park) asked him to target some effort to university day care programs, Lebedoff said he would do so.

"I think it's safe to say you couldn't have chosen a better time in history to make your request," he concluded.

Metro landfill site search

Rep. Darby Nelson (DFL-Champlin) came to the Environment and Natural Resources Committee March 22 for some advice.

A bill Nelson sponsors went to the Senate for consideration after passing in the House. And the Senate Environment and Natural Resources Committee amended the bill so it would repeal a 1980 law directing the Metropolitan Council to select and acquire waste disposal facility sites in the metro area.

Nelson gave several reasons why the repeal may not be a bad idea. He says the Metro Council estimates that adequate metro area disposal space may already exist.

But Rep. Sidney Pauly (IR-Eden Prairie), who has a landfill in her district, opposes the move to stop looking for new landfills. Pauly says the idea of stopping the siting process relies on a "best case" scenario that the metro area won't need any more landfill space. But, she says, "...we need to have the backup of a "worst case" scenario...we might be needing more landfills."

The committee agreed with Pauly, and advised Nelson to oppose a repeal of the landfill siting process if the provision is in his bill during conference committee consideration.

Truth in taxation

A provision of the House property tax reform package would require city governments to let the public know about their intent to raise property taxes.

HF2590 (Voss, DFL-Blaine) would require that a city publish in a qualified newspaper by Sept. 15, the time, place, and date of a public hearing to discuss a proposed levy increase, and an address to which property owners could send written comments.

In addition, the provision would require the county auditor to notify, by mail, each of the taxpayers in the affected area. The auditor's letter would contain a simulated property tax statement showing the proposed changes in each taxpayer's bill. Each letter would state: DO NOT PAY - THIS IS NOT A BILL.

At a March 22 Taxes Committee meeting, Karen Baker, House researcher, said the letter would include the current city mill rate and property taxes before the deduction of aids and credits. It would also show the effect of the increase. Baker says the letter would make clear that it pertained only to city levies, and that increases from other tax entities, such as school districts, counties, and special taxing jurisdictions could further alter taxes.

Rep. Dee Long (DFL-Mpls) said that Florida and other states have had similar truth in taxation programs for years. "It will bring some accountability into the system that has been lacking for years," she said.

Trailers and taxes

The Taxes Committee March 22 discussed an article of the 1988 property tax reform package that would tax motor homes and vacation trailers (park trailers) as personal or real property.

HF2590 (Voss, DFL-Blaine) would impose a property tax on vehicles that serve as temporary housing on the owner's property. And it would impose a personal property tax if the vehicles are parked on leased land.

According to researcher Karen Baker, provisions of the bill would establish a new group of trailers the state would tax as it does manufactured homes. Baker says the proposed taxes are an answer for counties that have large numbers of vehicles that people live in temporarily. Currently, their owners pay only motor vehicle registration.

Article 9 of the property tax reform package defines a park trailer as a vehicle which exceeds eight feet in width, but is no larger than 400 square feet when the collapsible components are fully extended, is built on a single chasis, and is self-propelled or permanently towable.

Telecommunications equipment

On March 21, the House temporarily waylaid HF1812 (Clark, DFL-Mpls), a bill that would make some administrative changes to a program that lends, without charge, special telecommunications equipment to communication-impaired people. At issue is a surcharge of 10-cents per phone line per month that showed up March 1 this year on all Minnesotans' phone bills. The surcharge provides money for local phone companies to buy and maintain the telecommunications equipment.

The 1987 Legislature authorized the program. But author Rep. Karen Clark says phone companies have had problems getting the program up and running. They don't have personnel trained to deal with communication-impaired people nor to demonstrate and maintain the special equipment, she says.

Clark's bill would transfer the responsibility to purchase, provide, and maintain the communications equipment from local phone companies to the Department of Human Services. The bill wouldn't increase or decrease the surcharge, Clark says, but would simply transfer it directly to Human Services.

Though the bill has had several hours of hearings in three House policy committees, a majority of the full House agreed that it needed further consideration and sent it to the Appropriations Committee.

Board of Medical Examiners

The public's right to know, or not to know, about a physicians's chemical dependency or other health problem brought testimony to the Health & Human Services Committee meeting March 18.

Several nurses, concerned citizens, and representatives of the newspaper association spoke against a specific provision in HF1890, a bill that would require reporting physician conduct, or misconduct, to the Board of Medical Examiners. The controversial provision would permit the board to keep its review and findings confidential. Currently, the board releases such information to the media and public.

Those speaking against the bill, contend that it would limit public access to crucial information about a physician's ability to practice and treat patients. Bill author Rep. Lee Greenfield (DFL-Mpls), the Board of Medical Examiners, and proponents feel the provision would encourage more physicians to seek treatment.

The proposal has a sunset provision which allows the board to exclude information from the public for a two-year test period. After two years, the Legislature would look again at the legislation and the process. Because of this provision, the committee voted to send the bill to the floor.

Workers' compensation

Rep. Joe Begich (DFL-Eveleth) unveiled a workers' compensation proposal at the March 18 meeting of the Labor-Management Relations Committee that would freeze insurance rates and medical costs for the next three years.

The bill, HF2761, would freeze current insurance rates and set up a rate regulation system similar to the one that existed before 1980. The new system would have stricter disclosure requirements than the old one, and insurance companies would have to go through a hearing to get rate increases approved.

HF2761, which is now in the Rules and Legislative Administration Committee, would freeze most medical costs which account for 30 percent of workers' compensation costs. It would also cap rehabilitation and attorneys' fees and would abolish the entire workers' compensation system on June 30, 1991. At that time, the department would implement a new system for compensating workers with job-related injuries.

In the area of benefits, the bill would amend present law so that temporary benefits are based on 80 percent of the injured worker's weekly take-home pay. It would raise the maximum compensation benefit to 130 percent of the statewide average weekly wage, delay the cost-of-living escalator for two years after an injury instead of one, and reduce minimum benefits so that workers can't receive more than their take-home pay.

Organized labor and the bill's author frown on the benefits cuts, but support the remaining portions of the bill. The Minnesota Chamber of Commerce and Industry opposes HF2761.

State contracts

The Mille Lacs Band of Chippewa Indians hasn't agreed to contract with the state of Minnesota for any services for over two years.

Tad Johnson, a Mille Lacs Band

representative, says the reason is a provision the state puts in contracts that requires an Indian band or tribe to deny their sovereignty. If the band or tribe doesn't keep their end of the deal, the provision allows the state to take them to court.

Because the band won't sign a contract denying their sovereignty, they haven't received any state or federal monies for chemical dependency, energy assistance, Headstart, or other government programs, Johnson told the Governmental Operations Committee March 18.

Johnson says HF2429 (Peterson, DFL-Princeton) is the solution. The bill would prohibit the state from using the sovereignty-denial provision in any contract with an Indian band or tribe. Instead, the state would negotiate with the band or tribe on a government-to-government basis and provide for enforcement mechanisms to which both parties agree.

Committee members amended the bill so it would expire in a year-and-a-half. They say that should give the tribes and the state time to decide if the bill provides the solution.

High School Page Program

One hundred sixty high school juniors from all over Minnesota have participated in the High School Page Program this year. LeClair Lambert, program director, says he received 540 applications for 1988, the program's 14th year, and had to draw names to choose the final participants.

During the week they spend at the State Capitol, students meet with state officials, including the governor and lieutenant governor, members of the State Supreme Court, legislators and staff, and experience first-hand the workings of the Legislature in House committees and floor sessions.

The bill that would put a constitutional amendment on the November ballot asking voters if they want a state environment and natural resources trust fund is on hold. Two House policy committees approved the bill before the Appropriations Committee heard it March 22. That committee amended the bill to designate one-third of state lottery profits to the trust fund and sent it the House floor. Author Willard Munger (DFL-Duluth), asked that it go to the Rules and Legislative Administration Committee.

A bill limiting ag land ownership by limited partnerships and certain corporations passed the House March 21. HF 2041 (Brown, DFL-Appleton) would prevent such acquisitions of large tracts of foreclosed farm land. Supporters say large scale farming abuses the land, falsely raises land prices, destroys competition, and drives small farmers out.

The six-year license plate bill, HF80 (Simoneau, DFL-Fridley) is moving toward the House floor for the second time. A year ago, the House ran out of time and didn't vote on the bill. HF80 would have Minnesota motorists pay $2 to replace license plates that are six years or older when they renew vehicle registrations. The bill would allow special license plates for Vietnam and Pearl Harbor veterans and ex-POWs.

Suicide is the second leading cause of death for Minnesota teens and third nationally. Rep. Gloria Segal (DFL-St. Louis Park) has introduced a bill for a demonstration project for child and adolescent crisis intervention and suicide prevention. March 22, the Health & Human Services Division/Appropriations approved the bill; and recommended $20,000 to help fund a position in the Department of Human Services.

About 500 Minnesota businesses (only 16 percent small- or medium-sized) export products and services overseas. "But we've identified about 2,500 businesses—mostly small- and medium-sized—that could export, if they had the encouragement, information, and help to do that," said Michael Olson, executive director, Minnesota Trade Office, at the Economic Development & Housing Committee meeting March 22. Minnesota ranks 16th in the nation for export income, up from 19th just a few years ago.

The plant closing bill came out of the Labor-Management Relations Committee with a recommendation to pass March 24. HF649 (Ogren, DFL-Aitkin), which must first go to the Rules and Legislative Administration Committee before going to the House floor, would require most businesses in the state to announce plant closing or major layoffs 120 days in advance. Employers would provide severance pay and continue health insurance for a time after a layoff or plant closing.

The Appropriations Committee March 24 approved a funding bill that includes $17.5 million for transit (dependent on passage of HF1749 (Kalis, DFL-Walters) which would increase the state gas tax 3 cents and transfer 35 percent of Motor Vehicle Excise taxes to highway and transit funds). Non-metro transit would get $3.5 million. Remaining funds would go to metro mobility; regular-route bus service; light rail transit. Local transit authorities would have to match light rail funds 50-50.

Rural nursing home administrators say state and federal laws are more concerned with beds than people. They told the Health & Human Services Committee March 24, about having to shuffle elderly patients from room to room to meet federal and state bed certification guidelines. They asked lawmakers to lift the five-year-old, state-imposed bed moratorium so residents can stay in their rooms after their own money runs out and Medicaid takes over.

Blueberry muffins

House members got a chance to taste a proposed addition to the state's symbols March 24. Thanks to Mrs. Schroeder's "Blueberry Muffin Gang," third-graders at South Terrace Elementary School in Carlton, representatives found on their desks a blueberry muffin and materials promoting it as the "official state muffin."

The students told legislators that the blueberry muffin "reminds people that Minnesota has a lot of blueberries and wheat; blueberry picking is fun to do with family and friends; and in Minnesota, we pride ourselves on having healthy, strong, bodies—blueberry muffins are good tasting and help you stay healthy."

Rep. Mary Murphy (DFL-Hermantown), author of HF1724 which proposes adopting the blueberry muffin as the Minnesota state muffin, has currently withdrawn her bill from legislative consideration.

Thanks, readers!

We appreciate your calls,
letters, questions

Your response to our call for help on the mailing list purge is great. Thanks for getting your zip+4 numbers to us. If you haven't sent your subscription renewal to us, you get another chance (see last page of this issue). Here's a repeat of the number to call to get your zip+4 number: (612) 293-3147. We really appreciate your cooperation.

A Northfield reader tells us we failed to credit women in last week's "It's a Fact!" The first sentence should read, "Just as women and men, machines and inventions changed the face of the nation, railroads changed Minnesota's progress and history."

From Chaska came a question and clever comment with the reader's subscription renewal: "Is it necessary to fill this out every year? You do a great job. Keep it coming 'til death do us part." Sorry, but to control costs, it works best to purge the lists. Again, we appreciate your cooperation. With your efforts and our efforts, we'll get the job done.

Do you know

In the mid-1950's, Orville Freeman successfully ran for governor on a platform that promised to streamline—and reduce—state government. After much debate, Minnesota lawmakers passed a bill to do that. And Gov. Freeman signed it into law.

But a state employee, Charles Foster, challenged the new law claiming the bill the governor signed cut his department, while the legislators' bill did not.

Minnesota's Supreme Court poured through session journals, sided with Foster, and revoked the new law stating, "Where there is a material variance between a bill passed by the legislature and that approved by the governor, the entire bill is void."

Charles Foster's job—and everyone else's—remained intact.
