After serving 18 years in the House, Rep. Mary Forsythe (IR-Edina) will retire after the 1990 Session. See story on page 8.

Bonding bill

A $330.4 million bonding bill was approved March 21 by the House Appropriations Committee, with more than a third of the funds slated for higher education projects.

Building, renovations and an addition to the veterinary diagnostic lab ($8.5 million), an addition to Ferguson Hall ($5.2 million, if $2 million is matched from nonstate sources), and $7.5 million for construction of an integrated waste management facility.

In human services area, $7.3 million was allotted for detailed drawings and plans for three regional treatment centers at Anoka, Fergus Falls, and Moose Lake. An additional $4.1 million was allotted for the construction of 16 additional state-operated community services homes for people with developmental disabilities. And $6.8 million was authorized to complete skilled nursing facility remodeling at Brainerd, Cambridge, and Fergus Falls.

The Department of Corrections would... receive $15.1 million in bonding money, with a bulk of those funds going for the conversion of an auditorium at the Stillwater prison and the continued conversion of a section of the Fairbault Regional Center into a medium-security prison. Two additional medium security cottages are proposed for the prison at Lino Lakes.

The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency would use a hefty portion of its $43.9 million allocation for construction grants for wastewater treatment facilities, and to correct sewage overflow problems. A $22.4 authorization for the Department of Natural Resources would be used to buy recreational land, and to improve existing recreational facilities. Funds were also allotted for construction of the Kettle River Environmental Learning Center and improvements on three trail systems.

Other allocations approved in the bill were $11.5 million to the Department of Trade and Economic Development for the Metropolitan Council and local units of government to acquire land for recreational use.

Members sent the bill to the House floor for further action.

Student work ban

Students under age 18 would be banned from working after 11 p.m. on school nights under a provision of the omnibus K-12 school bill approved March 22 by the Education Committee.

The measure would also continue the Jan. 15 deadline by which school districts and teachers must approve teacher contracts and allow school districts to enter into regional bargaining agreements.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Ken Nelson (DFL-Mpls), would make it a misdemeanor for employers to repeatedly violate the ban on students working past 11 p.m.

It would continue the $25 per pupil loss in state aid after the Jan. 15 deadline for negotiations, but stipulates that school aid wouldn’t be lost if a contract is in arbitration before the deadline and the arbitration panel issues its decision within 60 days of the date arbitration was requested. The Legislature approved a similar bill last year on a one-year trial basis.

The measure would also allow an education district to bargain on behalf of all member school districts. Before an education district may enter negotiations, school boards and teacher organizations must agree to this provision.

An amendment failed that would have required schools to include in their sex education program that abstinence is the only truly effective method of birth control.

Members sent HF2200 to the Taxes Committee.

Security guard limits

The activities of security guards hired by a company during a labor dispute would be restricted once they step off company property under a bill passed by the House on a 68-54 vote March 21.

“When the guard leaves the plant he would become a civilian like the rest of us,” says bill sponsor Joe Begich (DFL-Eveleth).

The measure, Begich says, is designed to protect residents from being harassed or intimidated by security guards off a plant site. Begich introduced the bill in response to actions by security guards during the recent labor dispute at Boise Cascade Corp. in International Falls.

A heated debate emerged over an amendment offered by Rep. Bob Neuen-schwander (DFL-Int’l Falls) that would allow videotaping during a labor dispute as long as either the person being photographed or the photographer are on the plant site.

He says the videotaping done during the Boise Cascade strike was necessary to identify and prosecute looters. The amendment was passed on a 66-56 vote.

“If we continue to pass state laws that are going to interfere with law enforcement people, or anybody trying to capture and prosecute those [who] break laws, then we’re going to have a situation where we just tell these people ‘go ahead and destroy all you want—you won’t get caught,’” says Neuen-schwander.

HF1928 awaits action on the Senate floor.
Luring doctors, nurses

New doctors could have at least part of their medical school loans paid by the state if they agree to practice from three to five years in a rural area. Such provisions are in the omnibus rural health care bill, which the Appropriations Committee’s Education Division heard March 21.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Roger Cooper (DFL-Bird Island), is designed to lure both doctors and nurses to small towns where their ranks are dwindling.

“What we are trying to do is hold us even,” says Cooper. “This isn’t the total answer, but I hope it holds us even.”

Cooper’s measure would direct the Higher Education Coordinating Board (HECB) to set up a program through which the state would pay off up to $10,000 in school loans for each year a doctor spent in medical school.

To be eligible for the forgiveness program, the student must sign a contract to work in a designated area from three to five years. If a student reneges, the penalty would be 100 percent of the qualified loan, plus a 50 percent penalty.

Another section of the bill would offer a similar program to registered nurses. HF1965 is pending before the Education Division of the Appropriations Committee.

AIDS insurance

People infected with the AIDS virus could receive state-paid insurance coverage if a bill the Health and Human Services Committee approved March 16 becomes law.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Lee Greenfield (DFL-Mpls), would direct the Department of Human Services to set up a program to pay insurance coverage for AIDS patients who are too ill to work. It would require the state to pay for a group insurance plan for 18 months after a person leaves his or her job and an individual insurance plan for two years after initial application.

Applicants would have to meet certain eligibility requirements before receiving the extended insurance. Their total assets could not exceed $25,000, and their gross family income could not exceed 300 percent of the federal poverty guidelines.

Members sent HF2034 to the Appropriations Committee for further review.

Campaign spending

Candidates for the U.S. Senate and House could receive public financing if they observe spending limits under a bill approved March 21 by the Taxes Committee.

The measure would limit spending for U.S. Senate candidates to $3 million per campaign, and U.S. House candidates to $300,000. Candidates would be required to raise half of the spending limit, with no more than 40 percent of the amount coming from political action committees (PACs). The state would then provide the other half of the spending limit in the form of a public subsidy.

If both major party candidates would agree to the spending limits, neither would receive the public subsidy, but both would still be bound by the spending limits. Committee members in both the Taxes and the General Legislation & Veterans Affairs committees questioned whether this section of the law is constitutional.

If one candidate agrees to the spending limit and the other doesn’t, the one agreeing would receive the public subsidy and wouldn’t have to abide by the spending limit.

Candidates agreeing to spending limits who later exceed them would be subject to a civil fine of up to four times the amount over the limit. Candidates would also have to return any unspent portion of the public subsidy.

HF2666, sponsored by Rep. Linda Scheid (DFL-Brooklyn Park), was earlier approved March 15 by the General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming Committee, and will be considered next by the Appropriations Committee.

Campaign tax credits

Minnesota taxpayers would be able to deduct $50 for certain political contributions from their income taxes under an election and ethics bill the Taxes Committee approved March 20.

Individual filers could receive a credit of up to $50 and joint filers up to $100 for political donations they make to political parties, judicial office candidates, and to state office candidates who have agreed to campaign spending limits.

The measure would replace a similar tax credit that was in place prior to 1987. Supporters of the measure say it will encourage people to contribute to political campaigns and become more politically active.

Although individual contributions to federal or local candidates wouldn’t qualify for the tax credit, political parties could give qualifying contributions to those candidates.

The Department of Revenue estimates that the tax credit would cost the state almost $5 million in 1991, and over $9 million in the next biennium.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Linda Scheid (DFL-Brooklyn Park), will be considered next by the Appropriations Committee.
“Drug czar” speaks

The nation’s drug czar praised Minnesota’s anti-drug programs March 21 in a speech before a joint meeting of the House and Senate.

“I urge the Minnesota Legislature to keep up the good work; many of the things you’ve done really are exemplary,” said William J. Bennett, director of National Drug Control Policy. “You should be very proud ... I applaud your efforts for the well-being of the citizens, especially the children, of the state of Minnesota.”

He said Minnesota has taken a good approach toward fighting drugs with the state’s asset seizure and forfeiture laws, and that those laws “may be the single best tactic we have against the drug traffickers.”

He also said the state’s drug treatment and prevention programs, and its alternative incarceration program, are models for the rest of the county.

But he did add that legislators may consider tightening its marijuana laws, and warned that marijuana dealers could settle in the state to take advantage of those lenient laws.

He said it’s both morally responsible and cost-effective to fight drug use as soon as possible.

“Anybody who has taken a look at what it will cost a state to educate a child who has been born addicted to cocaine will understand that an ounce of prevention here, keeping one child off of cocaine, one pregnant mother off of cocaine, is not only the moral and humane and responsible thing to do, it is also fiscally sound,” he said.

He said he also supports requiring state contractors to impose drug-free workplace policies, which could include drug testing in certain instances. Surveys of casual users have shown that if they thought there was a chance they’d be caught and punished, they’d stop using drugs.

Maximum effort loans

Four state loan requests from tax-poor school districts that are renovating old school buildings or constructing new ones were approved March 16 by the Education Finance Division of the Education Committee.

Maximum Effort School Loans were approved for school districts in Osakis ($4,755,000); Roseau ($9,348,000); Sartell ($3,194,000); and St. Michael-Albertville ($10,756,000).

The loans are designed to assist tax-poor school districts that need new or renovated facilities because of student growth or building safety problems.

A total of nine school districts were qualified to receive the loans. Loan requests for the school districts in Cass Lake, Farmington, Lake of the Woods, Pierz, and Dover-Eyota weren’t approved.

But the division stipulated that the State Board of Education, which considers the loan requests before sending them to the Legislature for funding, must approve four of those applications next year if the districts meet the criteria in effect at that time.

The division encouraged officials from the fifth applicant — Dover-Eyota — to plan a joint facility with neighboring school districts.

The recommended approvals will go to the Education Committee for further review.

Living wills

Minnesotans who have “living wills” would be able to designate that fact on their driver’s licenses under a bill given final approval by the House March 19 on a 128-1 vote.

The amendment, sponsored by Rep. David Bishop (IR-Rochester), was added to a non-controversial bill that would allow electronically produced images to be used for driver’s license photographs.

Bishop’s amendment would require emergency medical personnel to tell the hospital to examine the person’s medical records for a living will anytime such a designation is on a driver’s license.

A living will maps out the types of life-sustaining care people want — as long as it’s within acceptable medical practice — should they become unable to make those decisions for themselves.

Rep. Art Seaberg (IR-Eagan) questioned whether the proposal could create problems for emergency room doctors who have to treat patients immediately and may not have time to track down a living will. He reminded lawmakers that a measure last year to have a “living will” designation on driver’s licenses was defeated by the House.

Bishop, however, says the measure wouldn’t interfere with normal emergency procedures done by medical personnel. He added that a “living will” isn’t “triggered” until the person possessing one has been diagnosed as terminal by an attending doctor.
Liquor sale hours

Bar and nightclub patrons wouldn’t hear the last call for alcohol until 2 a.m. if a bill approved March 19 by the Regulated Industries Committee becomes law.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Phyllis Kahn (DFL-Mpls) would extend the time alcoholic beverages could be sold from 1 a.m. to 2 a.m. by allowing local units of government to issue additional liquor licenses to bars and nightclubs so they could sell alcoholic beverages during that extra hour.

Current law prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages after 1 a.m.

Supporters of the bill say the extended liquor sale hours are needed to lure more conventions and tourists to the Twin Cities area.

But the Mothers Against Drunk Driving organization opposes the bill, saying the choice of convention sites is based on a number of factors — not just bar closing times. They say the bill could end Minnesota’s ranking as one of the safest states in which to drive.

A separate provision in the bill would require bars and nightclubs to have at least one bartender or supervisor to have completed a server-training program where they would be taught to recognize signs of intoxication and methods to avoid making illegal sales. A city or county would issue certificates to those who completed such programs.

Kahn says the three major goals of the bill are to provide economic development, job opportunities, and safety. Citing statistics from various sources, Kahn told the committee that the peak in alcohol-related accidents and DWI arrests appears to be 1 a.m.

She says the effect of this bill would be to flatten that peak rather than establish a new one. Lawmakers sent HF2340 to the Rules and Legislative Administration Committee for further review.

Gambling enforcement

Lawful gambling officials appealed to a division of the Appropriations Committee March 21 and 22 for more funds to police the state’s troubled lawful gambling industry.

Gaming Commissioner Tony Bouza appeared before the Agriculture, Transportation & Semi-State Division and said the gambling department has been starved for resources to regulate and enforce the billion-dollar-a-year industry.

“The issue is a very simple one: either we get 59 additional personnel or you can forget about reforming the lawful gambling industry,” says Bouza.

The gambling division alone has asked for funding for 30 staff positions — at a cost of $1.6 million — to help crack down on the industry.

Tom Anzelc, director of the Gambling Control Board, estimates that 80 percent of the licensed lawful, or charitable, gambling organizations don’t comply with state rules. He says the control board’s work in the past has “left much to be desired,” and that additional staff is needed to scrutinize more carefully the licensing and re-licensing of charitable gambling operations, provide more consistent information to the state’s 1,900 charitable gambling operations, and give training and assistance to those already operating.

The Department of Public Safety, which conducts charitable gambling investigations, has asked the state for funding for 15 new staff positions. The Department of Revenue, which audits gambling operations, has requested 13 additional staff members.

Public Safety Director Tom Brownell says additional staff funding is necessary to “protect honest people from themselves.” He pointed out that operators are much more likely to steal gambling money if no one is paying attention to them.

The division will take up the lawful gambling enforcement bill next week.

Shiitake mushrooms

The Forest Resource Center near Lanesboro in southeastern Minnesota could expand its shiitake mushroom demonstration project, construct a maple syrup demonstration facility, and build a classroom building if a bill approved by the Environment and Natural Resources Committee becomes law.

Bill sponsor Rep. Elton Redalen (IR-Fountain) says it’s important for the state to support the development of alternative crops.

The bill would appropriate $175,000 in state money provided every state dollar is matched with a $2 contribution from private sources.

Shiitake mushrooms are flavorful mushrooms introduced to the U.S. from Japan and have been cultivated at the Forest Resource Center for six years.
Supermarkets in the Twin Cities are already selling these mushrooms, and representatives from the Forest Resource Center say market research suggests local and export markets will expand. The Forest Resource Center near Lanesboro is a private, non-profit organization located in southeastern Minnesota on 100 acres of Department of Natural Resources land. HF2536 is before the Appropriations Committee.

Scholarship benefits

Spouses and children of public safety officers killed in the line of duty could receive a scholarship to attend a college in Minnesota under provisions of a bill the Appropriations Committee’s Education Division heard March 20 and 22.

Sponsored by Rep. Len Price (DFL-Woodbury), the measure would provide scholarships for tuition and fees to eligible dependent children under the age of 23 and surviving spouses. The scholarships would apply only toward an undergraduate degree or certificate.

If enacted, the proposal would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1973, to include all eligible dependent children or spouses of public safety officials killed in the line of duty from that point.

Department of Public Safety officials (DPS) say survivors of the Hutchinson police officer who was shot and killed several months ago would be included. They say about 35 children and spouses could be eligible for the scholarships.

The Higher Education Coordinating Board would award the scholarships and the DPS would administer the program.

‘Way to Grow’

A “Way to Grow/School Readiness” project may begin next year in rural Minnesota if a bill appropriating $150,000 to the project is approved by the Legislature.

The project, approved March 19 by the Education Finance Division of the Education Committee, would aim to help parents improve their children’s health through information, outreach programs, and support groups.

The program is currently in operation in Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Columbia Heights.

“We certainly have the same critical need in rural cities,” says Rep. Jerry Bauery (DFL-Sauk Rapids), author of the bill. “This would be an outreach program for parents and families.”

The project would include home visitor programs which provide social support, information, and referrals for pregnant women and new parents; neighborhood-based parent, child, and family resource centers; and culturally-specific outreach programs. It focuses on children up to age 5.

The project appropriation was amended into the education omnibus bill (HF2200). Education Committee members will consider the bill next.

State aid to cities

Lawmakers should reduce and restructure state aid to cities, said the Legislative Auditor’s Office in a report March 20 that was released before the Legislative Audit Commission.

The office’s report on local government spending found that state aid to cities has actually encouraged spending by cities. The size of a city and whether it’s a regional center are the most important determining factors in the level of city spending, according to the report.

Other factors determining city spending include the amount of commercial property, older housing, personal income, property wealth, and average household size in a city.

The report found that Minneapolis and St. Paul spend the most money, about $877 per capita. Metropolitan suburbs spend much less — $387 per capita — which is on par with spending in outstate cities with populations between 1,000 and 5,000. The lowest city spending — $302 per capita — was found in outstate cities with fewer than 1,000 people.

The report recommends a gradual reduction of aid to cities and a restructuring of how state aid is paid. It also advocates targeting aid to needy cities, providing aid for specific city programs, and giving aid to individuals (rather than cities). And the report suggests allowing cities to use city sales, income taxes, and user fees to make up for decreased state aid.

Affirmative action

The Metropolitan Waste Control Commission (MWCC) has made progress in its affirmative action program, but its work to combat sex and race discrimination isn’t finished, the MWCC chair told a House subcommittee March 20.

“These [affirmative action problems] at the Waste Control Commission didn’t happen overnight, and they aren’t going to be solved overnight,” Lurline Baker-Kent told the Metro Affairs Subcommittee of the Metropolitan Government & Metropolitan Affairs Committee. “We still have a long way to go.”

Baker-Kent’s comments were part of the subcommittee’s hearing on affirmative action plans for metro state agencies.

Nina Rothchild, Department of Employee Relations (DOER) commissioner, reviewed a report on the agencies’ work to achieve a balance of minority, female, and disabled workers that reflects the metro area work force. While Rothchild did present information concerning seven metro agencies, public testimony centered on MWCC.

“They’re not doing the job in the affirmative action arena,” says Joseph Sinnott, a MWCC machinist and a member of the commission’s affirmative action committee.

Allegations of discrimination and harassment, some resulting in lawsuits, have plagued MWCC in recent years. Sinnott charged that he has been physically abused and harassed because he supports affirmative action. Other witnesses testified that they, too, were harassed, subjected to verbal and physical assaults, or demoted because they support an end to racial and sexual discrimination.

Mitch Franklin, another MWCC employee, suggested the commission undertake a “more concerted effort to make middle-level managers accountable for their actions and make employees aware of its affirmative action policy.”

The DOER survey found that the metro state agencies employed fewer women and disabled workers than are represented in the general work force in the metropolitan area, but more minorities. Women make up about 45 percent of the work force, but hold only 20 percent of the agency jobs.
Does the security guard at your neighborhood shopping mall know how and when to use his gun? An amendment that would require privately employed armed security guards to have the same firearms training as peace officers was tacked on to another security guard-related bill and given final approval by the House March 21. Rep. David Bishop (IR-Rochester), who sponsored the amendment, says the bill came about because of an incident in Rochester where an off-duty security guard shot two men. The bill awaits Senate action.

Legislators and legislative candidates would be prohibited from soliciting or accepting contributions from lobbyists during a regular legislative session under a bill approved by the Taxes Committee March 20. The bill would incorporate into law a rule adopted March 5 by the House banning in-session fundraisers, which many argued amounted to a "shakedown" of lobbyists who had important bills pending before the House. The committee referred HF2666 (Scheid, DFL-Brooklyn Park) to the Appropriations Committee for further review.

A bill that would require all furniture in public places to meet certain flammability standards by 1992 was approved by the House March 19 on a 125-2 vote. Minnesota would be the third state in the country to pass such a law, says bill sponsor Rep. Rich O'Connor (DFL-St. Paul). HF1730 awaits action on the Senate floor.

Local police departments received $98,000 from the Department of Public Safety to buy illegal drugs in undercover operations last year, says Marina McManus, Public Safety commissioner. The money came from a fund the Legislature created after law enforcement agencies said they needed more resources to combat illegal drug sales.

Spending money on health care insurance for board members with funds designated for students is wrong, says Rep. Bob McEachern (DFL-Maple Lake). His amendment to the omnibus education bill (HF2200) was approved March 19 by the Education Finance Division of the Education Committee. The provision would prohibit any school or educational board to pay for health care insurance for board members with money designated for students. McEachern says only about half a dozen of the 433 districts in the state have purchased health care insurance for board members.

Financial incentives would be used to improve school performances under a bill authored by Rep. Todd Otis (DFL-Mpls). The bill would establish a performance exam, given over three years, to test the academic improvement of schools. Additional funds would be determined by the level of increase in a school's composite score over the three-year period. The Education Finance Division of the Education Committee amended the bill into the education omnibus bill. HF2200 will go to the Education Committee for further consideration.

People who have applied for a moose-hunting license in the past but didn't receive one would be given preference the next time they apply under a bill approved by the Environment and Natural Resources Committee. HF2000 (Stanius, IR-White Bear Lake) now goes to the House floor for further action.

Interactive television is currently used in more than 140 of Minnesota's 433 school districts, according to a publication by the Minnesota Department of Education. Interactive television expands educational opportunities by connecting students from several locations with a teacher at a different school through television monitors.
When Mary Forsythe ends her political career on the last day of the 1990 legislative session, it will be hard for her to forget the 18 years she has served in the House.

A gold charm bracelet she keeps tucked away will serve as a constant reminder of several firsts that will be attached to her name.

One charm is emblazoned with the date she was sworn in as a representative - Jan. 2, 1973 — which also marked the first time that more than four women were elected to the House at one time.

Another charm marks the date she was elected, the first time a woman had ever been elected representative from her Edina district. Other charms mark the day on which she was endorsed, and District 42B which she represents.

There's no charm commemorating her role as the first woman to serve as chair of the full Appropriations Committee. But that, perhaps, is one she could consider adding during her retirement.

"It's time to move on," says Forsythe, who at 69 is one of the grande dames of the Independent-Republican Party.

In a few weeks, Forsythe will clear out her second floor office in the State Office Building and pack away many other memories of the Legislature.

During the earlier days in the House, Forsythe says women were referred to as "gentlemen" in committee by some lobbyists and people testifying.

"People were not used to having women in the Legislature and they sometimes would forget we were there," she says.

Nor were people used to the idea of female candidates. It was hard to get women to run for office, she says, although she and many others spent a lot of time door-knocking for candidates, and serving as party officers and delegates.

"I think women were hesitant to get into something they considered to be a man’s job and something that was (considered) dirty,” she says, adding that Minnesota politics is anything but that.

Although she has served in the House for 18 years, only in two of those years -- 1985 and 1986 -- were the Independent-Republicans in the majority.

She singled out two bills of note during her career. She sponsored the mandatory seat belt law, which she called the toughest, most time-consuming bill she ever authored. But, she added, it’s also one of the laws of which she’s most proud because of its far-reaching effects and the lives it has, and will continue, to save.

She’s also proud of a measure she sponsored that provided funding for people who adopt hard-to-adopt children — those with mental illnesses or physical disabilities, for example. Because of that legislation, many of those children have received good homes, she says.

Forsythe grew up in Whitehall, Wis., and attended high school there. She obtained a Bachelor of Music degree from St. Olaf College in Northfield in 1942, and later taught music in elementary and high schools while her husband served in World War II.

Forsythe says she has drifted considerably from her childhood dream of becoming a missionary in Africa like her Aunt Mary, for whom she is named.

But in addition to spending time with her grandchildren (she is the mother of five), and reading historical novels and biographies, Forsythe says she hopes to pursue part of that dream: teaching.

Forsythe says she intends to become a volunteer in the state’s literacy program.

“If I’d love to teach someone how to read.”

While preparing a birthday dinner for daughter Joan and granddaughter Ann, Rep. Forsythe casts a wary glance at grandson Matthew.

Who eats more hotdogs, Democrats or Republicans? And how many legislators really prefer the state muffin — blueberry — to other baked goods? For the answer to these and other important political questions, check Roger and Shirley Larson’s snack bar in the Capitol rotunda.

Roger and his wife, Shirley, have been serving legislators, staff, lobbyists, and the public since January of 1983. “We’re kind of here for everybody,” he says.

Larson is quick to point out that his food stand is completely non-partisan. But being located in the center of the action, it’s hard not to pick up on a few legislative bargains being struck over coffee and donuts.

“We hear a lot more than people think we hear,” says Larson.

But offering good service and chatting with the customers is more important to Larson than the deals being struck at what is sometimes jokingly referred to as “Ulcer Gulch.”

“We like visiting with the legislators,” says Larson. “You couldn’t run a stand like this unless you really enjoyed people.”

Roger, who is blind, says his handicap poses no problems on the job, but it has caused him to be a bit wary on occasion.

Once he waited on a young high school student who laid down a $100 bill for a hotdog, and asked for change. Roger, being somewhat skeptical, checked the bill out with Shirley, who is partially blind but can distinguish money denominations.

“It actually was a $100,” he added, laughing.

Toward the end of the session crunch — when hours become late and snacks turn into meals — Larson estimates they have sold as many as 500 hotdogs, 100 bags of microwave popcorn, and 300 ice cream sandwiches in one day. And his vending machines have gone through as many as 30 cases of pop in the same time period, he adds.

Sometimes they open up the stand for eleventh-hour requests for food or change, which can make for some late nights.

Larson says he and Shirley are often at the stand until 2 or 3 a.m. during the busy times, and back at the Capitol by 8 or 8:30 the next morning.

“Shirley’s got to whack me on the head to wake me up once in awhile,” jokes Larson.

The Department of Jobs and Training’s Division of State Services for the Blind sponsors the stand and owns the equipment. The Larsons operate it, and receive all profits. When the session ends, the Larsons will tear down the food stand and store it in the Capitol basement. Their vending machines remain year-round.

Shirley Larson wraps the hot dogs, while Roger makes the change.

Restoration 1989 - 1990

Architect Cass Gilbert is considered one of the premier architects of his day, and the Minnesota state Capitol is one of his finest works.

So when House members decided to renovate the House chamber last year, they proceeded as if Gilbert were watching over their shoulders.

The result?

The brown, gold, and green hues Gilbert envisioned have returned, as have the skylight and many other facets of his regal design.

The “historic rehabilitation” has been captured in a 12-page booklet published by the House Public Information Office. Limited copies of Restoration are available at the office.

For a booklet, call (612) 296-2146 or write to House Public Information Office, 175 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155. Or stop by the office and pick one up.

And if the booklet isn’t enough to satisfy interest in Gilbert’s work, there’s still time to get an informal tour. The last open house at the chamber will be held this Sunday, March 25, from 1 to 4 p.m.
Got a question?
Talk to the sergeant

Andy Remke, chief sergeant at arms for the Minnesota House of Representatives, describes his job as similar to that of an “ombudsman . . . someone House members [or the public] can ask any question of or make a complaint to.”

Remke heads up the Sergeant at Arms Office, which staffs four assistant sergeants at arms, a postmaster and assistant postmaster, and about 40 full-time pages.

“The sergeant at arms is someone who is visible to all the House members and generally the person they’ll get a hold of if they’ve got a problem,” says Remke. “We’re usually able to help them; if not, we can at least steer them in the right direction [for help].”

Whether it’s quieting a heckler at a committee meeting, passing out parking spots, coordinating House members’ transportation needs, or hiring and training 40 new pages every session, the sergeant at arms gets the call.

“Every day is a little bit different,” Remke says.

The sergeant at arms also acts as a security liaison between the House and Capitol Security. “In the case of an audience member shouting obscenities to committee members, I would first explain the policy to the person, and then if there’s still a problem, bring in Capitol Security,” he says.

Other duties of the sergeant at arms include: supervising any ceremonial functions of the state Legislature, controlling access to and maintaining decorum on the House floor, galleries, and committee rooms; overseeing the College Intern and High School Page programs; advising House leadership on the use of House building space; and keeping all the House keys.

Toward the end of a legislative session, the sergeants at arms will often spend their time locating rooms for last minute conference committees, and finding scattered House members when it’s time for them to sit down and vote. The interim is largely spent coordinating any travel or staffing needs for mini-sessions and interim hearings.

Remke has been the chief sergeant at arms since January 1987. The office was created in 1857 — one year before Minnesota became a state.

Sergeant at Arms Charlie Ward urges a group of people outside the House chamber to keep an aisle open so representatives can enter.

Women in government: a long time in coming

For years many people believed women and politics were about as compatible as starched white dresses and dirty coal mines. But running for political office has proved a natural step for women. In Minnesota, the movement started out strong — shortly after passage of the 19th Amendment that gave women the right to vote.

Four women were elected to the state House in 1922, and one woman ran for a state Senate seat and was defeated. But it would be another 50 years before more than four women served at one time in the House.

Anna Dickie Olesen, who was defeated in her state Senate bid, received the most public attention because she was the first woman to be endorsed by a major party to run for the Senate.

The other four — Mabeth Hurd Paige, Mrs. Sue Dickey Hough, Mrs. Hannah Kempfer and Miss Myrtle Cain — went on to become Minnesota’s first women representatives. All were motivated to run by their concern for women’s issues.

Paige, who was elected to the House through the 1930s and was the only female representative during the 1940s, attributed her political drive to her “feminist” views.

But it was Cain who was the most outspoken on women rights. She co-sponsored a 1923 bill “granting equal rights, privileges and immunities to both sexes.” Although the measure was defeated, Cain continued to be a proponent of equal rights. She spoke before the Legislature in 1973 on behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

Women’s rights were not the only issue taken up by these women, however.

Kempfer’s first love was the Game and Fish Division of the Conservation Committee, now the DNR, which she chaired in 1927. She also took a strong stance against military spending.

“We should reduce military expenses and work for peace,” she said at the time. “The victories of peace are lasting. So long as we prepare for war we are sure to reap what we sow.”

Despite women’s strong showing in 1922, the next 50 years saw only one elected to the Senate (Laura Emelia Johnson Naplin, 1926-1934) and 11 others to the House. Women lawmakers were still considered a novelty and newspapers tended to focus on their gender.

“When other lawmakers spend their weekends resting or catching up on proposed legislation, Wabasha County’s newest representative goes home to grab a dustmop,” stated a Jan. 12, 1955 St. Paul Dispatch article on Rep. Joyce Iretrem Lund, who served in the House from 1955 to 1958.

The 1972 election marked a rebirth of elected women representatives. For the first time since 1923, more than four women were elected to the House: there were five.

“People were just not used to having women on the House floor,” said Rep. Mary Forsythe (IR-Edina). She, along with Sen. Linda Berglin (DFL-Mpls), now-Secretary of State Joan Growe, Rep. Phyllis Kahn (DFL-Mpls), and Ernee McArthur, a Republican from Brooklyn Center, were elected to the House in 1972.

“They constantly called us ‘gentlemen,’” Forsythe said. She and Kahn, members of the Appropriations Committee in 1973, decided to take a stand on the issue: when addressed as gentlemen during committee, they stood up.

The number of women elected to the House and Senate has increased every year since the 1972 election.

“Women have begun to take their rightful place in the Legislature, though we’re no dealing from a position with a lot of strength — only 37 of 201 in the Legislature are women,” Forsythe said.

As their numbers increased, so did the position of women within the House hierarchy. The number of women appointed committee chairs has slowly grown and, in 1985, a woman was appointed to a leadership position within the House.

Connie Levi, an Independent-Republican from Dellwood who served from 1979 to 1988, was elected majority leader for the 1985 Legislative Session. Former Rep. Ann Wynia, a DFLer from St. Paul, was elected majority leader for the 1987 and 1989 legislative sessions. She stepped down in September 1989 to become commissioner of the Department of Human Services and was succeeded by Rep. Dee Long (DFL-Mpls).

“I think women in general still work harder than men to get elected,” Forsythe said. But, she added, the work has paid off and continues to pay off because women’s position in government continues to grow.

“Four Feathered Hats Draw All Eyes as Legislature Convenes. Millinery creations of velvet, ribbons and plumes indicate to curious throng where newly elected incumbents sit in State House . . . . It wasn’t so much the hats, although they doubtless helped make for the self-assuredness of the wearers, but the fact that they were on the heads of the four women legislators — Mrs. James Paige, Mrs. Sue Dickey Hough, Mrs. Hannah Kempfer and Miss Myrtle Cain — the first to sit in the state House, that made the difference.”

— Minneapolis Tribune, Jan. 3, 1923
When Governor Orville Freeman signed a 1956 bill reorganizing state government, he thought he had achieved his campaign promises. Instead, the reorganization bill became an example of the importance of Minnesota's legislative journals.

A state employee who hadn't fared well under the governor's reorganization bill challenged the new law in court and won. How? He found a discrepancy between the final bill and the Journal of the House, which records all House and Senate action.

Journal can be used as court evidence

The Journal of the House is the official, legal record of the proceedings of the House. When a court challenge is raised, the courts look to the Journal for the official record of legislative action.

When there's a discrepancy between the Journal and the final bill, the proposed law can be voided. That's what happened in the case that is now referred to as Foster vs. Naftalin.

The Journal — both the daily and permanent one — is a legislative history of what the entire body did. Among other things, it records bill referrals, committee reports, amendments, conference committee reports and individual votes.

The requirement to record all that information accurately and quickly places a heavy burden on Journal Editor Patrick D. Murphy. In most cases, the daily Journal is printed overnight and is available to the public on the morning after session by 8 a.m.

Journal size depends on House action

But sometimes, says Murphy, that isn’t always possible. The largest daily Journal recorded House action on May 18, 1987. It was 1,673 pages long and required three days to print. A typical Journal, however, is 160 pages long and 1,200 of the daily Journals are printed at a time.

That can make for some late nights for Murphy and his three assistants, particularly late in a session when the floor sessions last long into the night or early morning. (A legislative day, as defined by law, is from 7 a.m. to 7 a.m.)

Compiling the permanent Journal at the end of a legislative session is no easy task, either.

The final Journal of the House in 1989 totaled 9,234 pages — or roughly the equivalent of eight copies of Moby Dick. The Chief Clerk’s Office worked five months before the four volumes were bound and printed. Murphy says the growth in size of the Journal is because more floor amendments are now being offered and conference committee reports are much longer.

Journal undergoes careful scrutiny

All permanent Journals are proofread twice, word-for-word, and undergo 21 procedural audits. These audits make sure the number of bill readings and votes for bill passage are correct, and that procedural rulings were accurate.

The Journal is then indexed by bill number, topic, author, and statute section. Employees from the Chief Clerk’s Office, led by House Chief Clerk Edward A. Burdick, proof and prepare the Journal for publication.

Although the careful scrutiny is primarily done to ensure proposed laws would withstand any court challenge, people also use it to research the history of state laws.

In addition, several organizations use it as a reference to compile their annual legislator ratings, and it is also a valuable tool used by both challengers and incumbents in political campaigns to determine voting and attendance records.

Murphy says Chief Clerk Burdick is a stickler for Journal perfection. The 1956 Foster vs. Naftalin case is one way he reminds his staff of the Journal’s importance and the need for accuracy.

And he has a newspaper account of a more recent case from Arkansas taped to the back of Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure as yet another reminder of the snafus that can develop when there is a legislative oversight.

The Arkansas courts declared more than 300 spending bills invalid in 1989 after they discovered that the state’s General Appropriations Act, or spending blueprint, didn’t pass with a three-fourths majority as required by the state constitution. Since that act must be approved before any other spending bills, the others were declared invalid.

That oversight was remedied with a three-day special session that cost taxpayers an estimated $60,000.
